PRESIDENT BACK TODAY TO FACE CAPITOL STORM

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt will return to the capital tomorrow from his fishing holiday to confront an unparalleled state of affairs in his administration and in his party.

With the index of industrial production still going down, the President and the party in power find themselves under the necessity of abandoning soak-the-rich taxes, collectivist innovations, and other radical experiments which they now admit are responsible for the new depression. Returning to his desk Mr. Roosevelt will receive a deluge of advice from business leaders, administration key men, and other Democrats, particularly candidates for reelection, on ways and means of checking the business recession.

Rifts in Congress.

In congress the President will find his party so divided that there is grave doubt of the passage of any major piece of legislation during the current extraordinary session.

A matter claiming the immediate attention of the President is the formulation of his budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1939, which he is required to present to the regular session of congress which meets Jan. 3. Because one of the reasons for the business recession is held to be the protracted failure of the Roosevelt administration to balance the budget and the fear of inflation entailed thereby the President dispatched Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to New York a few weeks ago to make a speech in which the administration in effect promised to mend its ways and take a course conducive to the expansion of private enterprise.

Among other things Mr. Morgenthau, on behalf of the President, pledged the balancing of the budget in the 1939 fiscal year by economies aggregating 700 million dollars. Presumably, therefore, the budget the President is about to formulate will cut government expenses not less than 700 millions. Whether this retrenchment, however, will balance the budget is something else again.

Tax Receipts Shrink.

In the first place the business recession had caused such a shrinkage of earnings of industry that the revenue from income taxes is bound to show an enormous decline. Secondly, the business recession has resulted in an increase of unemployment which soon will be reflected in increased relief rolls. Thirdly, the President is confronted with revolt in his party against the reduction of government spending.

Democratic leaders raised the banner of this revolt when the President last week proposed a 238 million dollar saving in federal aid for state highway construction and the future limitation of such subsidies to 125 millions a year.

Cuts in CCC Opposed.

When the administration a few days ago proposed to reduce CCC enlistment from 300,000 to 225,000 at a saving of 75 million dollars, Representative Jack Nichols (D., Okla.), who led the successful fight against CCC retrenchment at the last session, remarked that there "will be plenty of trouble ahead."

The organization of mayors which met here recently is bringing great pressure to bear to increase relief expenditures and a movement is under way in the house to compel a renewal of PWA activity. Representative A. F. Beiter [D., N. Y.], who organized the bloc last session that forced fulfilment of all PWA obligations is now polling the house on a renewal of PWA activity in the form

THEY ARE PLANNING IT THAT WAY

Carry Muskets to Churches to Mock Blue Law

Bellows Falls, Vt., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Churchgoers carried rusty muskets and police listed names of Sunday yard rakers for possible "arrest" today as Windham county residents staged a comic opera protest against "blue laws," some dating as far back as 1770.

"A little unusual," the parading musketeers agreed, "but entirely in compliance with our interpretation of a law requiring men folk to carry guns to protect women from prowling redskins."

It all started when a theater manager was arrested for running movies on Sunday.

Prosecutor Orders Roundup.

Irate citizens mockingly demanded enforcement of all the blue laws to hasten their repeal, and State's Attorney Ernest Berry laughingly entered into the game. The prosecutor sent police and sheriffs throughout the county to record such "law breakers" as buyers of gasoline, cigarets, and newspapers—one of the ancient statutes forbade any "secular business or employment except works of necessity and charity."

Berry even said he would seek warants for 100 golfers who deliberately defied a hoary ordinance against Sunday participation in "games in which an admission or fee is paid."

"I know it's all ridiculous," the state's attorney acknowledged, "but it's the best way I know to remove these antiquated laws from the books.

Can't Kiss Wife in Public.

"Although officials are on the watch," he announced with mock solemnity, "we have not as yet detected a man kissing his wife in public—that's a breach of the peace, you know."

Other flagrant violations of the 1770 code noted were wood chopping, auto washing, and truck driving.

In nearby Brattleboro food stores usually open on Sunday stayed closed. Some restaurants declined to sell tobacco and candy.

The theater manager who started the whole thing will be arraigned Thursday.

LEVIATHAN BRINGS $800,000 IN SALE TO BRITISH FOR JUNK

New York, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Rejecting a Japanese bid for the Leviathan, the United States Lines announced tonight the sale of the world war troop ship to Metal Industries, Ltd., of London, for $800,000.

The 48,943 ton liner, seized from Germany in the world war and later used as the flagship of the United States merchant marine, will leave shortly for England under power, to be broken up into scrap metal.

Built in 1914 at a cost of 10 million dollars, the Leviathan had a brief career under the imperial German flag. She completed three round trip trans-Atlantic voyages before the world war and upon entry of this country into the war she was seized.

The government spent more than 8 million dollars to recondition her as a luxurious trans-Atlantic passenger liner after the war and paid Germany a war claim of $16,688,000 for her seizures.

Two months ago the maritime commission awarded a contract to the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company to build a replacement liner at a cost of $15,750,000. The government will pay $5,250,000 of the cost for the United States Line.

ILLINOIS TOWN FOR SALE; ONLY 1 FAMILY LEFT

New Lebanon, Ill., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—This De Kalb county town, 25 miles west of Elgin, is for sale. That was revealed a few days ago when Lem Gray inserted an advertisment in a Genoa newspaper, announcing that its last four houses, and the general store, will be sold to the highest bidder.

New Lebanon now has only one family. In its prime there were 30 houses on its one square mile site. The schoolhouse will escape the sale because it is owned by the school district.

When the hard roads came New Lebanon, like many other villages of the horse and buggy days, suffered.

Mountain Baby, Aged 6 Months, Weighs 40 Lbs.

Cumberland Falls, Ky., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—Baby Lambert Ballard Alsip, son of Mr. and Mrs. Estill Alsip, of this Kentucky backwoods town, is thriving on the mountain air. At 6 months he weights 40 pounds, is 2 feet tall, and is growing three pounds a month. His only food is mother's milk. He was of normal size and weight at birth, and both his young parents are normal. He is their first child.

Little Brown Dog Tattles on a Peeping Tom

When Detectives Thomas Mullarkey and Thomas Coen set out to catch the Peeping Tom of Hyde Park, who had peered into at least fifty windows in the last three months, they had one promising clew—the peeper was followed on his rounds by a little brown spaniel.

"With this spaniel and a diphtheria sign I can catch that fellow," remarked Mullarkey.

Having obtained the sign, he and Coen went to work. Their plan of campaign was simple. They followed every little brown spaniel they met and hoped he would lead to the Peeping Tom.

Here's a Likely Animal.

There were many disappointments, but yesterday the pair followed a dog who entered an apartment building at 5346 Ellis avenue. By discreet questioning they learned the animal's name was Topsy and that it belonged to Sidney Marshall, a resident of the building.

When Mrs. Marshall answered the doorbell, Coen told her they had come to hang a diphtheria sign [Mullarkey displayed it] on her door. She protested there was no diphtheria there.

"How do we know your husband hasn't got it?" asked the astute Mullarkey.

"Look at him yourself," retorted Mrs. Marshall. "He's over in a music store at 64th and Cottage Grove."

Find Their Man.

The detectives found Marshall, saw that he answered the description of the peeper, and arrested him. A few hours later he confessed. Six complaints were signed against him by victims. Marshall, who is 24 years old, was convicted several years ago of stealing from mail boxes and was sentenced to ninety days in jail, but the sentence was suspended.

SILENT 50 YEARS; WILL BE TILL HIS GIRL COMES BACK

Audubon, Ia., Dec. 5.—(AP)—A girl left William [Silent Bill] Perry, 76 years old, at the altar for another man 50 years ago, and he hasn't uttered a voluntary word since. He has shunned society, preferring to be alone with his memories.

The suit of clothes which was to have been his wedding suit is neatly put away and he wears it only on Sundays when he walks two miles to town where he attends church.

The aged man, who holds his head erect and throws his shoulders back when he walks, adheres to his vow not to speak until his girl returns to him.

JAPS BOMB TWO BRITISH SHIPS; HUNDREDS DIE

Planes Leave Trail of Death in Wuhu.

NANKING, China, Dec. 5.—(AP)—The commander of the British gunboat Ladybird and two other Britishers were wounded and several hundred Chinese were killed or wounded today when Japanese aviators bombed the waterfront and shipping at Wuhu, Yangtze river port 60 miles southwest of here.

Two British steamers, the Tuckwo and Tatung, were hit. The Tuckwo was set afire and was believed to be a total loss. The Tatung's captain and his wife, both British, were wounded. Their 1,560 ton steamer was beached.

Burning Ship Set Adrift.

The 3,770 ton Tuckwo, in flames, drifted against a hulk [old ship moored offshore to assist landings] belonging to the Jardine, Matheson company, which then also burned.

Both ships flew British ensigns and had big Union Jacks painted on their sides.

[In Shanghai officials of the Indo-China Steam Navigation company, which owns the Tuckwo, said they believed it had between 2,000 and 3,000 Chinese refugees aboard.]

Lieutenant Commander Harry Douglas Barlow of the Ladybird, although suffering from shrapnel wounds, maneuvered his vessel alongside a hulk belonging to the British Butterfield & Swire Co. and towed it away before it was set afire.

The Wuhu American hospital, the only hospital in that area, admitted more than 100 mutilated, burned, or half drowned persons. American and British volunteers worked all afternoon rescuing victims.

Five Planes Drop Ten Bombs.

Five Japanese planes, apparently attempting to hit the Wuhu railway station, swooped over the crowded river port at 11 a. m. and dropped 10 bombs.

[A Japanese statement issued in Shanghai said the attack was aimed at between 30,000 and 50,000 Chinese troops retreating across the broad Yangtze in junks and other craft.]

Several civilians aboard a launch belonging to the British Asiatic Petroleum company were reported wounded by bomb fragments. Some Britishers were believed to be aboard the launch, but this could not be confirmed.

24 Americans in Area.

[Latest consular reports said 24 Americans, 14 women, 4 children, and 6 men, still were at Wuhu. They are: Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Brown, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Dr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Morgan, Galva, Ill.; Cora Rahe and Margaret Lawrence, Indianapolis, Ind.; Florence Sayles, Spokane, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Van Dyck, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Kohfield and one child, Bend, Ore.; Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Springer and one child, Evanston, Ill.; Frances Culley, Rochester, N. Y.; Sister Anna Hayes, Bethany home, Glendale, O.; B. W. Lanphear, Worcester, Mass.; Beth Okey, Cassville, Wis.; Miss E. R. Lewis, Lansdowne, Pa.; Miss E. B. O'Hanlon, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Wesley May and two children, address not given.]

Wuhu, in Anhwei province, is one of the busiest ports on the middle Yangtze being opened by treaty to foreign trade. It is the objective of strong Japanese columns reported engaged in heavy fighting along the Anhwei-Kiangsu border, some 80 miles to the east. Capture of Wuhu would cut off all chance for the 300,000 defenders of Nanking to retreat up the river.

Jap Flyers Raid Nanking.

Japanese aviators also raided Nanking, where ten Chinese civilians were killed or wounded and some 40 humble Chinese dwellings destroyed.

A massive square tower, formerly belonging to a palace of the Ming dynasty, but used by modern China as an ammunition dump, narrowly escaped destruction. Nearby buildings were blown up. The tower is one of the few survivals in Nanking of the glories of the Mings, who ruled China from 1368 to 1644.

The raiding squadron passed over Nanking to raid along the Tientsin-Pukow railway, across the Yangtze. Returning, the Japanese dropped twenty small bombs, hit some gasoline stores, and started fires which

Parents Offer Baby's Body to Fight Epidemic

BY MARCIA WINN.

Another baby died yesterday at St. Elizabeth's hospital, the eleventh victim of a mysterious diarrhea epidemic that appeared in the institution less than two weeks ago.

Dr. Lloyd Arnold.

With the new death, that of Daniel M. Ennesser, 12 days old, 726 North May street, however, hope appeared for the six other babies stricken with the malady. This came through the action of the bereaved parents, Joseph and Angeline Ennesser, in offering their child's body for an autopsy.

Only through post-mortem examination, physicians believe, can headway be made in the seemingly futile search for the cause of the disease. When so informed by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, Mr. and Mrs. Ennesser immediately cast aside their personal antipathy to the autopsy.

Hopes Autopsy Will Help.

"We thought it would help the other little babies," Mr. Ennesser, a chauffeur, said quietly, looking at his wife, Angeline, 26 years old, who sat rocking to and fro in mute grief.

"We thought it would be a good thing in a disease of this kind because these doctors are working in the dark, stabbing blindly at the thing. I thought it would help medical science—for the babies of the future."

"That's right," spoke up his father, John G. Ennesser, who had come with his wife to console the young couple. "You don't want to push science back. You want to help it if you can.

"No," he added, as a neighbor made a deprecatory statement about autopsies on babies, "the little one can't feel any more. It won't hurt the little one. It should be a law," he concluded emphatically. "Where there is an epidemic, the authorities shouldn't have to ask for the body. They should get it at once."

Their First Baby.

Young Mrs. Ennesser, her hands clasped tightly, said nothing. She closed her deeply shadowed eyes and leaned back in her chair.

"She didn't want it, the autopsy, at first," her husband explained. "It was our first baby. But she changed her mind. We feel alike now."

The autopsy will be performed, Dr. Bundesen said, by two eminent physicians, Dr. William Saphir, chief pathologist of Michael Reese hospital, and Dr. Lloyd Arnold, research bacteriologist for the Illinois department of public health.

Find Way to Combat Disease.

While nothing is known of the cause and cure of the disease, Dr. Benjamin M. Levin, head pediatrician at St. Elizabeth's, said the staf at least has found a means of counterbalancing the disease's exhaustion of

END TWO YEARS' EXILE; LEAVE 2 BABIES ABROAD

Go Into Seclusion at Englewood, N. J.

New York, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh came back to the United States today, ending his two years of self-imposed exile with a surprise visit.

Unheralded, amid the strictest secrecy, Lindbergh and his wife arrived on the S. S. President Harding to break for a brief interlude during the Christmas holidays their never explained sojourn abroad.

Reports from London said Lindbergh came on business, while persons close to the family here said it was merely a holiday trip.

The aviator left his two small children, Jon, 5 years old, and Land, 6 months old, in England. They may be at the Lindbergh estate, Long Barn, Sevenoaks, in Kent, England, or with Mrs. Lindbergh's sister, Mrs. Aubrey Niel Morgan, who lives in Wales.

Nearly Escape Notice.

The arrival of the Lindberghs almost passed unnoticed. An alert ship news photographer was the first person to see them. Other photographers and reporters were roving the first class quarters in search of celebrities. Meanwhile Lindbergh, heavily muffled, and his wife hurried down the third class gangplank immediately upon the ship's arrival at its North river pier.

They slipped down a side freight elevator, without going through the formality of customs inspection, and sped away in a private automobile to the home of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh, in Englewood, N. J., fifty miles from the place where in 1932 Lindbergh joined in the search for his son on Sourland mountain near his estate at Hopewell.

First Son Slain in 1932.

Kidnaped March 2, 1932, the Lindbergh's first born son, Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., was found dead in the woods at Mount Rose hill, on May 12, and many months later his abductor, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, was seized as the slayer.

The return of the Lindberghs marked another chapter in the strange saga of flight that began Dec. 22, 1935.

The homecoming was almost as secretive as their departure for England two years ago. On that occasion they were far at sea before the news became known.

The report, which Lindbergh never denied or confirmed, was that he had taken his small family to seek a haven in England because life in America had become unbearable through gangster threats as an aftermath of the kidnap-murder of his first born son and the trial of Hauptmann.

Visit Will Be Brief.

"Their visit will be brief," one of the liner's officers said. "They plan to return to England immediately after Christmas."

The liner is to be laid up until after Christmas. One report had it that the Lindberghs would be aboard her when she sailed on the return voyage to England, and it was reported also that Mrs. Morrow, who has not seen her youngest grandson, would accompany them.

Ship's officers said today that Lindbergh boarded the President Harding at Southampton wearing dark glasses, with his coat collar turned up, and covering the lower part of his face with his arms. He appeared worried, they said, lest he be recognized before the ship left harbor. The Lindberghs secluded themselves behind in their cabin behind locked doors for four hours until the ship left Queenstown—the last port before setting out to sea.

Wireless Messages Barred.

As evidence of their desire to enforce the strictest secrecy, Lindbergh requested the ship's officers to refrain from sending any wireless messages revealing their presence on the liner.

To avoid recognition the Lindberghs boarded ship under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory, a subterfuge that confused Mrs. Lindbergh when their identity became known.

Charles Holldorb, the ship's second steward, said he went to their cabin to invite them to sit at the captain's table during the voyage.

"I knocked on the door and there was no answer," he said. "I knocked again, and a little woman opened the door. It struck me immediately that her face was familiar, especially after she took off her glasses. I asked her if I could talk to Mr. Gregory.

"The lady seemed confused for a moment. Apparently she had forgotten the name they had given. Then she said, "Oh, yes, Mr. Gregory!" and Lindbergh stepped forward.

"He said: 'You undoubtedly recognize me. I am Charles Lindbergh and I do not want any publicity at all."

Gives $5 Tips.

Emil Berstappen, night steward, who attended the Lindberghs, said the flyer was quite liberal, handing out $5 tips.

The couple sat at the honor place at Capt. James E. Roberts' table throughout the trip, with the aviator, who made the first solo flight across the Atlantic in 1927, wearing a tuxedo and black tie.

Capt. J. A. Furer, attached to the United States embassy in London, and the Right Rev. S. C. Carpenter, dean of Exeter cathedral, were mealtime companions of the Lindberghs throughout their voyage.

Once his identity became known, nearly all the passengers asked Lindbergh for his autograph, which he declined to give. He did sign the menus of guests at the captain's table, however, on the last night of the voyage.

They mingled freely with the passengers and Lindbergh exercised on the sun deck every morning. They frequently paced the deck together, but did not attend any of the movies or evening dances, although they were present at Capt. Roberts' dinner last night.

Capt. Roberts said the Lindberghs were exceedingly cordial and friendly thoughout the trip and made no effort to avoid other passengers.

Met by Line Official.

On their arrival in New York the Lindberghs were met by Basil Harris, vice president of the United States Line, who went down the bay on a coast guard cutter to board the ship at quarantine.

Arriving upstream at the pier Harris and a baggage master escorted the couple off the ship. They carried no luggage, arrangements having been made to clear their baggage through customs without their being required to stand by as ordinary travelers do.

Reaching the street, Lindbergh was besieged by newspaper photographers and reporters, but he turned his back on the cameramen and unsmilingly ignored questions.

Their arrival was so secret that New York police were not informed. Lindbergh made his escape a matter of minutes.

Automobiles sped in and out of the vast Morrow estate after the Lindberghs arrived.

None of the drivers or passengers was recognizable as a member of the Morrow-Lindbergh family. Yet all were persons on official business because as their automobiles hove in view of the ivy-coated Brownstone pillars at the entrance, a plain clothes policeman waved them through.

Reporters Kept Out.

Reporters and cameramen crowded about the gate, but the officer permitted them no further. All requests to deliver notes to Lindbergh from his press friends were turned down.

The Lindberghs' intention to remain in this country only a few weeks was evidenced by the fact that they brought little luggage, a trunk and three suitcases.

An aviation official in New York expressed the opinion that he may have returned to confer with government officials on plans for giant flying boats for trans-Atlantic service. The official observed that the United States maritime commission recently recommended the development of huge flying boats rather than further investment in ships.

Lindbergh is associated in an advisory capacity with Pan-American Airways, which already has conducted test flights across the Atlantic. He has been studying commercial trans-Atlantic flight possibilities for the company in Europe.

Negotiations Are Private.

Pan-American officials have never admitted that Lindbergh was engaged in the promotional interests of the company, but the countries in which he spent most of his time were those which are most interested in the hope of flying passengers across the Atlantic, Great Britain, France, and Germany.

The negotiations by which the solution to this problem may be found—unless, as Lindbergh's visit home indicates, it is already solved—are understood to have been carried out in a private capacity between the various companies involved, rather than through the intervention of governmental diplomats.

With a whole season of survey flights completed, many believe next summer will see the beginning of exploratory trips, in which flying boats will test out schedules across the ocean and even may carry mail, preliminary to the transport of passengers in 1939.

HUNT 4 PONTIAC CONVICTS; OPEN QUIZ ON ESCAPE

Seize 2 After Jailbreak; Third Surrenders.

While police were conducting an intensive search for four of seven young convicts who sawed their way out of the Pontiac reformatory Saturday night, Warden Joseph Ragen of Joliet, who is also state superintendent of prisons, yesterday began an investigation of the break. Two of the convicts were captured early yesterday and the third surrendered during the day. All were returned to their cells.

The two, who were captured in an automobile by state highway police near Lemont, were Walter Przybyla of Elmhurst, convicted of manslaughter and auto theft, and George Ramon, alias Raymond, 5012 South Morgan street, convicted of attempted rape. Anton Zalewski, 1434 Dickson street, sent to the institution for robbery, surrendered to Farmer Martin Lund after sleeping in his barn near Odell and getting thoroughly chilled. Lund turned Zalewski over to police.

The Four at Large.

The four still sought and the crimes for which they were confined are Frank Digitis, 4035 South Artesian avenue, robbery; George Le Febre, 1933 Grand avenue, robbery; Lewis Rowski, 2119 Carver street, auto larceny, and George Sotak, alias Sapak, of Springfield, Ill., robbery. The seven range in age from 19 to 24.

The prisoners escaped from a second floor cell block where thirty-one inmates were housed. Stealing an automobile in Pontiac, they drove to Odell. Here they stole two more automobiles and separated.

Into one automobile went Sotak and Le Febre. They speeded to Kankakee, ran out of gas near there, took another machine and then abandoned it near Manteno. They are still at large.

Into the second stolen auto at Odell piled Ramon, Przybyla, Rowski, and Digitis. They went to Plainfield, where Rowski and Digitis left the car and are still free. Ramon and Przybyla drove on toward Chicago and were captured at Archer avenue and McCarthy road, near Lemont.

The seventh convict, Zalewski, was the one who surrendered after hiding in a barn near Odell.

Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission and member of another commission appointed recently to survey Illinois prisons, said yesterday too many prisoners are being housed in the Pontiac institution to carry on approved systems of juvenile reformation. Originally a reformatory, it was made part of the state penitentiary system in 1933.

Urges 1,000 Limit.

The prison commission recommended that not more than 1,000 convicts be held there. Supt. Ragen said there are approximately 2,325 inmates in the reformatory and accommodations for nearly 3,000.

Supt. Ragen said convicts are sent there on the recommendation of the prison classification board of the department of welfare. The board, which includes three psychiatrists, two sociologists, two psychologists, and one physician, examines each convict before a recommendation is made, he said.

Ragen explained that prisoners under the age of 26 who are believed to be improvable are sent to Pontiac if the board believes the reformatory is the proper place for them.

LINDBERGH'S ABSENCE OFFERS NO THREAT TO CITIZENSHIP STATUS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Did Charles A. Lindbergh have to come back to save his American citizenship? No, is the answer of the state department. Even though he left the United States for good on Dec. 22, 1935 [and there were reports that he would seek British citizenship], his status as an American is unchanged. "A native-born American," the department said, "may go anywhere in the world, stay as long as he likes, and remain a citizen of this country until he takes an oath of allegiance to another government."

A. F. OF L. GIRDS FOR C. I. O. FIGHT IN CONGRESS

Green Discloses Text of Labor's Wage Bill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—With the disclosure tonight of the text of the American Federation of Labor bill for government fixing of minimum wages and maximum hours of labor it became apparent that the forthcoming battle over this legislation in the house will be a test of strength between rival labor groups.

The scheme for political regulation of wages and hours pending in the house, with amendments proposed by the Democratic leadership, is favored by John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization. It would commit the fixing of wages and hours to a board or to an administrator in the department of labor.

Because of disillusioning experience with the so-called labor relations board, which, it asserted, is controled by Lewis, the Federation of Labor is opposed to the delegation of wage-hour fixing powers to any agency, even the department of labor. The federation would fix wages and hours in the law itself.

A summary of the federation bill made public by its president, William Green, tonight follows:

1. Wages and hours—Uniform minimum wage of 40 cents an hour and a maximum 40 hour week for workers in low wage industries engaged in interstate commerce, with child labor and convict labor prohibited.

2. Enforcement — Each violation against each employé shall be punishable by a $100 fine, the justice department through its federal district attorneys to prosecute offenders on complaint in the federal district courts.

3. Exemptions—The law shall not affect wage agreements providing for higher pay and shorter hours entered into by collective bargaining nor shall it apply to agricultural, transport, and certain other classes of labor specified in the bill.

4. Emergencies—In cases of emergencies, maximum hour provisions shall not apply but employers will be required to pay time and a half for work in excess of eight hours a day or forty hours a week.

"The great advantage in the measure we propose is its straightforward simplicity," Mr. Green said. "It carries out in full the letter, the spirit, and the objectives of President Roosevelt's recommendations to congress.

"We are opposed to a complex system of federal wage and hour regulations and their administration by a new federal board, as contemplated by the Black-Connery bill. Labor, industry and the public are fed up with federal boards."

GERMAN BISHOP BLASTS NAZIS; DEFIES HITLER

Calls on Roman Catholics to Fight Oppression.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—"The true Christian never will give assent to a dictatorship over his conscience. Every Christian must guard his personal rights and duties, which no earthly power may be permitted to contest."

Count von Preysing, Bishop of Berlin. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

This declaration was made today by Count Conrad von Preysing-Lichtenegg-Moos, Roman Catholic bishop of Berlin, in a pastoral letter read in all Catholic churches in Berlin. The letter was the most strongly worded condemnation of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's Nazi methods yet heard from the pulpit, and the congregations were deeply stirred.

Anti-Christian Spirit Grows.

"One anti-church measure is succeeded by another," the bishop said. "The spirit of hostility to Christianity dominates the public to an increasing extent. The pressure on our conscience grows. The holy father [Pope Pius XI.] is constantly attacked in the press and in public speeches as though his denouncement served political ends. Similarly we bishops are accused of overstepping the bounds of our office and of misusing the church in our fatherland for political purposes.

"A series of state and party measures are aimed—we are assured—merely at transforming a political church into a truly religious institution. In fact, however, these actions are directed against the church's proper work. And yet these people seek to persuade the German people that here in Germany Christianity and the church can carry on their activities freely and unhindered."

The bishop listed measures which have been taken against the church, including the closing of twelve print shops for printing a papal encyclical on the situation in Germany; the dissolution of Catholic young men's associations and the suppression of Catholic periodicals.

Says Catholics Are Outlawed.

"You, yourselves, see every day the result of anti-church and anti-Christian spirit which dominates public life," he continued. "It is enough to stand and look at displays in bookstores and in railway stations. Through means of pictures, caricatures, headlines, bills, and pamphlets an attempt is made to exercise influence on the German people which must destroy all respect and reverence for Christianity and the church in the minds of the young people."

The bishop said it was only speaking the truth to say that the faithful Catholic is an outlaw in Germany.

"He must put up with ridicule and insolence, and he lacks the freedom to exercise his faith without being able to defend himself, while the enemies of the church enjoy freedom to speak out, to attack, and to ridicule," the pastoral letter said.

Charges Campaign of Hate.

"Painful for the mission of our church are the results of attacks on our organizations, but they are not nearly so dangerous as the effect of the anti-Christian spirit, which seeks to penetrate every corner of German public and private life.

"In this spirit, every means is used to impose upon the German people the idea that the supernatural world is the invention of the brains of foolish priests, and not only is superfluous but damaging to the welfare of the nation.

"Christianity is represented as a subversive element in the German body politic, the work of the church is represented as a series of crimes, and the work of the pope as an unceasing effort to hinder the unity and progress of the German people."

Fear Baby Stricken

Mr. and Mrs. George Murawski, whose baby, Roberta, was taken back to St. Elizabeth's hospital when they feared it had contracted the mysterious infant disease which has caused the death of many children there.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Ennesser, 726 North May street, yesterday consented to an autopsy on the body of their baby. It died at the age of 12 days of an unknown disease.

body fluids, which rapidly leads to death.

"We now know how fast these fluids go down," Dr. Levin said, "and can replace them by blood transfusions and saline injections as often as necessary. We also are learning that there are symptoms other than diarrhea, such as lethargy and vomiting, and can control the dehydration before the infection has gone too far."

Seven babies now are under observation, but one, Roberta Murawski, 23 days old, of 2120 North Campbell avenue, apparently is not afflicted.

Two other babies, William Lafferty, 9 days old, 5346 Deming place, and John W. Brautigan, 36 days old, were taken back to the hospital yesterday for observation. The Brautigan baby, taken home before the sickness was discovered, has shown what might be a symptom of the disease.

Of the others, one, regarded as critically ill, is kept in an oxygen tent. An eighth baby, Doris Miska, 940 North Damen avenue, remained in the hospital although it appeared she was not infected.

No New Cases Reported.

No new cases were reported yesterday. Every hospital in the Chicago area is under scrutiny, Dr. Bundesen said. Although it was rumored yesterday that three babies had been stricken at another hospital, immediate inspection by health authorities proved the rumor groundless. Two children were in good health; the third had a skin eruption.

"We have found no evidence at the present time that there is any diarrhea infection in any hospital except St. Elizabeth's," Dr. Bundesen said. "It is essential, however, and the law, that all cases of diarrhea in babies be reported at once."

Otherwise, he said, the infected hospital will be closed.

DOUGHBOY STILL TOPS, JAP WAR PROVES TO U. S.

Gen. Craig Finds Tanks, Planes Merely Are Aids.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—The military defenses of the United States must be brought up to the minimum level of requirements or the nation will be helpless in the face of aggression. This was the warning sounded by Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staf of the army, in his annual report, made public today.

Gen. Craig revealed that modifications had been made in the defense program as a result of the lessons learned in the Spanish civil war and the conflict between China and Japan. These military operations had provided proving grounds for two arms relatively new to warfare, tanks and aviation, the report stated. Nevertheless, it was still the infantry that rendered the decision in the final analysis, the general said.

General Outlines Needs.

"This evidence demonstrates again that neither tanks nor aviation can bring about a decision in land operation," asserted Craig. "They are auxiliaries, valuable auxiliaries, to the infantry."

Inventories of armament, motorization, mechanization, and equipment, in the light of the lessons abroad, show several vital needs of the first line forces, Gen. Craig declared. These needs he outlined as follows:

1. Anti-aircraft—The supply of our anti-aircraft armament is not satisfactory. Major shortages include three inch anti-aircraft guns, fire control directors, height finders, and .50 caliber machine guns.

2. Anti-tank—There is urgent need of the provision of an effective anti-tank weapon of a type that can be given a distribution down to and including the regiment.

3. Tanks—The lessons of the current operations abroad confirm the conclusions drawn from tests made by the war department that in the provision of tanks emphasis should be laid upon a type suitable for close support of the infantry.

Need Aircraft Weapon.

4. Aircraft weapon—There is need for a rifle of greater than .50 caliber for use on airplanes.

5. Field artillery material—The program of supplying active units of the regular army with the modernized 75 mm. gun is progressing.

6. Mechanized brigade—One brigade of mechanized cavalry, comprising two regiments with a field artillery complement of two batteries, is now virtually equipped.

7. Motorization—With the funds made available during the fiscal year 1938 the motorization program will become approximately 66 per cent complete for the regular army and 45 per cent for the National Guard.

MYSTERY GROWS IN BELGIAN KING'S VISIT TO BRITAIN

Brother Arrives; Love Rumor Persists.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Mystery surrounding the visit of King Leopold III. of the Belgians, who arrived back in London less than three weeks after he had paid a state visit to this country, deepened today with the arrival of Prince Charles, count of Flanders, King Leopold's brother. Prince Charles, who is 34 years old, joined the Belgian monarch and their mother, Queen Elizabeth, at Welbeck abbey, the Nottinghamshire seat of their host, the duke and duchess of Portland.

Prince Charles.

Belgian court officials reiterated that Leopold's visit is private and nonpolitical, but rumors persisted that he is in England to negotiate a new marriage. He has been a widower since his queen, Astrid, was killed in an automobile accident in Switzerland in August, 1935.

The Belgian king and queen mother have fallen victims to England's damp cold. She and the king were scheduled to attend church at Worksop this morning, but they did not go because of heavy colds and sore throats from which both are suffering.

Rumors had it that Leopold, who is 36, wants to marry Lady Anne Cavendish-Bentinck, granddaughter of the duke of Portland. This has been denied by Lady Anne's father, the marquess of Titchfield.

Prince Charles represented his brother, the king, at the coronation in London last May. Like his brother, he was educated at Eton. Charles also served as a midshipman lieutenant in the British navy.

Lady Anne, who is 21 years of age, is staying at Welbeck Woodhouse, her families' estate, with her parents. The estate is not far from Welbeck abbey.

SHOWDOWN DUE TODAY IN U. S. FIGHT ON EDITOR

Labor Board Objects to His Criticism.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—A showdown is expected tomorrow on the powers of the National Labor Relations board which elected to use its burocratic authority in citing an editor for an article which the board considered unjust to it.

Instead of making use of the courts to correct any wrong it may have suffered from the article which offended it the board caused Hartley W. Barclay, editor of Mill and Factory, a trade magazine, to be cited to appear tomorrow before a board of examiners in Steubenville, O., for questioning about the article entitled "The True Story of Weirton."

Called "Gag" on Free Press.

Barclay and his attorney, Elisha Hanson, have branded the board's citation as a violation of the freedom of the press guaranteed by the constitution, and the subpena will be ignored.

The article, an exposé of the labor board's methods of investigating the Weirton company, was being read with interest in the capital today after copies of the trade magazine were distributed here. Further action will then be up to the board.

The labor board charges against the Weirton company were initiated last May by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, a branch of the Steel Workers' Organization committee, an affiliate of the C. I. O. Barclay, after visiting Weirton, wrote the article which is a scathing criticism of the actions of the examiner, E. G. Smith, and the attitude of the board.

Assails Curse to Democracy.

"What comedy!" he wrote. "What tragedy! What a colossal burlesque staged with taxpayers' money! What a curse to democracy!"

He branded the Weirton trial now in progress as a menace to democracy because of "the merciless plotting and scheming of the N. L. R. B. attorneys, who take advantage of every technicality for their own defense and make up their own new rules and interpretations extemporaneously to apply to the Weirton Steel company."

"We can see," he went on, "how the rights of liberty are being washed away one by one and the privileges of a free and democratic people are being changed to conform to a tryannical creed."

Condemns Final Decision.

In this connection he mentioned the final decision of the examiner—which may be delayed for months—as an "apparently inevitable directed verdict."

Then came a recital of facts that Barclay described as tragedies in themselves. Among them were these:

"There is tragedy in the fact that the N. L. R. B. selected a C. I. O. organizer as their witness and he testified on the stand under oath during cross-examination that he was a communist and was refused United States citizenship for this reason.

"There is tragedy in the fact that the trial examiner is obviously prejudiced in favor of the C. I. O. in the opinion of typical workers and that the C. I. O. is allowed to use spies to invade the offices of the corporation at night to get information which is admitted as N. L. R. B. evidence.

"There is tragedy in the fact that the local constable, a C. I. O. organizer, goes around the town and the courtroom with a huge pistol strapped to his ammunition belt and ering N. L. R. B. subpenas at night—then spends his days idling about the courtroom.

"There is tragedy in the fact that many of the townspeople fear the activities of the N. L. R. B. combination with the C. I. O. so greatly that they compare it to the celebrated G. P. U. [Russian secret police] and will not discuss their opinions openly in public for fear of being overheard and subjected to reprisals."

Later in the article there was another reference to the gun toting constable as "the young fellow who was elected to office in the Weirton region on the New Deal ticket in the last election—Constable Steve Barron, who goes around wearing side arms and ammunition while delivering N. L. R. B. subpoenas at night and demanding C. I. O. memberships."

Lists Other C. I. O. Agitators.

In conjunction with this mention of the constable, Barclay listed several other C. I. O. agitators who have been active in Weirton. First place he gave to Clinton Golden, former business manager of the Brookwood Labor college at Katonah, N. Y., which the American Federation of Labor repudiated as a hotbed of communism. Next he named Madam Rose Stein, New York communist agitator and writer, and then Kenny Koch, local C. I. O. organizer, who, Barclay said, boasts that he is a product of the Brookwood Labor college.

In his attack on Examiner Smith, Barclay told a street corner story that Smith once went to sleep during a hearing "and an attorney for Weirton accidentally coughed, rudely awakening "his honor," who, through automatic reflexes, immediately barked, "Objection overruled!"

"His record at the end of two weeks of the trial was 455 objections of Weirton overruled against 19 N. L. R. B. objections overruled," continued Barclay.

"The odds against Weirton in the scales of the N. L. R. B. brand of justice calculated on this basis looked as if they had dropped to 50 to 1 instead of 23 to 1 when I checked the record again Sept. 21 to 25."

In a summary near the close of his article, Barclay said:

"You have the government prosecuting charges preferred almost entirely by men not employed by the plant and some who have not been employed since before the Wagner act was passed, a prosecution based on charges preferred by men who never asked the management for the right to represent the workers in a collective bargaining contract negotiation, by men who in total number are less than 1 per cent of the total employment of Weirton.

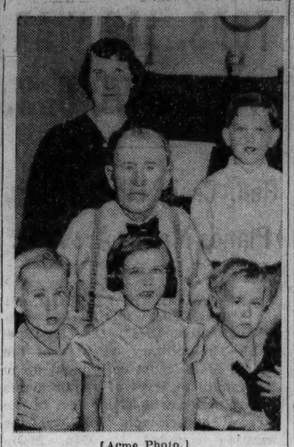
Holds Trial Mockery of Justice.

"The trial, in every particular, has proved to be a mockery of justice and a harbinger of dictatorship. It has invaded the constitutional rights of citizens and has devastated business conditions wherever its influence has extended.

"It has destroyed the confidence of Weirton employés in the possibility of obtaining a square deal from Uncle Sam in the handling of situations provoked by John L. Lewis. The publicity attending the trial is creating a spirit of depression which is best reflected on a broad scale in the repercussions of similar inquisitions elsewhere which parallel this case and which have been largely responsible for the recent decline in the values of stocks and bonds, the lowering of demand for commodities in many lines and the depression growing in the capital goods lines."

Harry T. O'Brien, publisher of the St. Mary's [Pa.] Press, reported today that he had a brush with the labor board over a contributed article attacking the Committee for Industrial Organization. O'Brien said he refused to disclose the authorship of the article and a board representative read to him a section of the Wagner act prescribing fines up to $10,000 for persons withholding information from the board.

Second Family at 92



[Acme Photo.]

Dr. James Monroe Harris, age 92, his wife, and his second family—Robert Lee and Thomas Jefferson, 5, twins; Vera Lee, 6, and James Jr., 11. He has 10 other children by a previous wife.

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Dr. James Monroe Harris, 92 years old, just chuckled today when asked if he is going to have any more children. He is the father of 5 year old twin boys, Thomas Jefferson Harris and Robert E. Lee Harris, who, their father said, "are sound as a dollar, and so am I."

The twins' names reveal the fact that Dr. Harris fought on the confederate side in the civil war—at Bull Run, Pea Ridge, and other places.

Dr. Harris' claims to fatherhood are supported by Mrs. Harris, who is 44. Medical authorities have found similar cases.

There was, for instance, the case of George Isaac Hughes of New Bern, N. C., who died last May at 97 after becoming a father at the ages of 94 and 96. New York medical authorities confirmed his fertility and reported it in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Haris and Mrs. Harris have two other children, Vera Lee, 6, and James Monroe, 11. He had ten children by a previous wife.

MOSCOW SEIZES WOMAN OFFICIAL OF TRADE GROUP

MOSCOW, Dec. 5.—(AP)—A trustworthy source said today that Mme. Tatiana Sofiano, secretary of the Moscow office of the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce, had been under arrest since Nov. 21.

She had been employed by the chamber since 1929 and was known to many American business men. Occasionally she had been in charge of the office during the absences of the American manager, Spencer Williams.

Her associates said they had been unable to learn the charges against her, but recalled that her husband was arrested a year ago and exiled to Siberia and that her brother and brother-in-law were arrested recently.

Dispatches from the provinces reported executions of 14 alleged wreckers and spies. Nine alleged live stock wreckers died in eastern Siberia, three employés of a coöperative organization at Archangel and two grain storage officials at Minsk.

INCREASE TRAFIC FORCE TO HELP YULE SHOPPERS

In expectation of another rush of Christmas shoppers today, extra arrangements to handle smoothly pedestrian and vehicular trafic in all parts of the city were completed last night by Capt. David Flynn, in charge of the police trafic division.

"We expect a big turnout today," said Capt. Flynn, "and have added extra trafic policemen. The rush is naturally bound to increase every day from now on. But we want to assure everybody that no matter how large the crowds, we'll see that there's no unusual congestion, and nobody will have trouble getting to and from stores."

Capt. Flynn said that Saturday's crowds throughout the city were the largest he had ever seen in more than fifteen years in the trafic division. Today's shoppers ought to equal, if not exceed, Saturday's, he added.

2 DEAD, 11 HURT IN CRASH OF BIG BRITISH PLANE

Falls Into Italian Harbor After Take-off.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—(AP)—One passenger and one member of the crew were killed today when the Imperial Airways flying boat Cygnus, en route from India to London, crashed in the outer harbor of Brindisi, on the southeastern Italian coast, with thirteen persons aboard.

Sir John Salmond.

The eleven rescued, including Air Marshal Sir John Salmond, a government director of Imperial Airways, all were injured. The dead were a steward named Stappani and a Capt. MacDonald.

Divers Salvage Mail.

The Cygnus, one of the latest type twenty ton empire flying boats, had landed at Brindisi last night. She crashed at 9 a. m. and sank in the outer harbor after taking off. The cause was not determined.

Sir John, who was returning from a tour of Imperial Airways' far east services, received a cut on the shoulder. He retired as chief of Britain's air staf in 1933 to represent the government on the board of directors of the Imperial Air Service.

One of the passengers suffered a leg fracture. Other passengers and members of the crew all were slightly injured. Some of the mails the Cygnus carried from Australia and India were salvaged by divers. All of the passengers were British.

Boat Cost $200,000.

The Cygnus, commanded by Capt. Roger Pierre Mollard, was one of Imperial Airways' "C" class flying boats costing $200,000. The crew of six was housed on the upper deck and passengers were on the lower deck, where there were ample sleeping accommodations.

A sister ship of the Cygnus, the Capricornus, crashed in France last March, killing five persons and injuring eleven.

WOMAN FREEZES TO DEATH.

Kewanee, Ill., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Emmet Malamphy, 41 years old, wife of a Kewanee musician, was found frozen to death beside a country road near here.

CALLS FASCISM AND BOLSHEVISM TWIN DANGERS

Fascism and bolshevism are alike in their tendencies to place complete authority in the hands of a single leader, Dr. Melchior Palyi, guest professor of economics at the University of Chicago and former economist of the Reichsbank, asserted yesterday before the Charles Carroll forum in the Palmer house.

"Both systems represent new ways of social organization which are inimical to democracy and the powerful leader—be his name Hitler, Mussolini, or Stalin—derives his right to rule not from justice, but from power and force," Dr. Palyi said. "Such authority has no legal, religious, or historical basis."

Dies at 88; Had Helped Bury Dead at Gettysburg

Gettysburg, Pa., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Leander H. Warren, who as a boy of 13 helped bury the Union dead after the battle of Gettysburg, died yesterday after a five week illness. He would have been 88 years old next Tuesday.

Truck Driver Tells How It Feels to Fell Bridge

Frankfort, Ind., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—Landis Thompson, a truck driver, was telling his friends today how it felt to knock a 120 foot steel bridge into Kilmore creek six miles north of here early yesterday and escape with only a few bruises. Thompson's ton and a half truck skidded on the approach and hit an end post on the bridge. Down went the bridge and the truck on top of it. The truck was not badly damaged, but highway officials said it would require $20,000 to replace the bridge.

Jobless; Can't Explain Two $10,000 Bills in His Pocket

Mattewan, N. J., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—John A. Walsh, a jobless bank clerk with two $10,000 bills in his pockets, gave the police of Mattewan a federal reserve gold bank note mystery today. The two bills—largest denomination issued by the treasury department—were canceled, and therefore worthless, but authorities said the prisoner failed to give a satisfactory explanation of how he got them.

Congregation Routed; Fire Destroys Michigan Church

CAR HITS BRIDGE; SERVICE STATION OWNER IS KILLED

Oliver Johnson, 26 years old, owner of an auto service station at Sandwich, was killed early yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding with David Miller, 20 years old, crashed into a bridge in route 34 near Plano. Miller was seriously injured.

A man, who was fatally injured yesterday in front of 3331 West 63d street by an automobile driven by Don Madsen, 6215 South Sacramento avenue, was identified later as John Weyer, 55 years old, 3607 West 68th street.

Mrs. Mae Murphy, 45 years old, 1643 West 80th street, who walked against the side of an automobile Saturday night at 81st street and Ashland avenue, died yesterday in the Little Company of Mary hospital. Sven A. Lillroth, 7738 South Hermitage avenue, was the driver of the car.

An inquest will be held today over Miss Evelynne Buetow, 24 years old, former ballet dancer with the Chicago Civic Opera company, who was fatally injured yesterday when the automobile in which she was a passenger collided head on with another automobile in Dempster street at Monticello avenue in Niles Center.

An unidentified colored man, about 40 years old, was fatally injured last night at South Park avenue and 44th street by a taxicab driven by Eugene Lias, 24 years old, also colored, of 65 East 36th place.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 1,004 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 758 were killed in Chicago, where 21,280 were injured in the same period.

NAVY PIER TODAY BECOMES GREAT CONVENTION HALL

Dream of 20 Years Will Be Realized by City.

The 1937 Automotive Service Industries show, said to be the largest trade show in the world, opens today at Navy pier. With its opening, Chicago will realize a 20 year old dream.

That dream is utilization of Chicago's great lake front pier for industrial conventions. It began in 1916 when the pier, jutting a mile into Lake Michigan, was built at a cost of $4,500,000. Its purpose then was to prevent decline of Chicago's water commerce.

But water commerce veered to the Calumet industrial region, passenger trafic slipped into a historic twilight and Chicago was left with its still-born giant. Its remaining usefulness for recreation or conventions was restricted because the pier lacked heating facilities.

Long Sheds Disappointing.

Of the many divisions of the great pier, the two most disappointing to the 1916 visionaries were the north and south sheds, each three-quarters of a mile long. Originally designed as passenger sheds, they were to be used for the transfer of immigration cargo. But the cargo did not come.

In 1921 the second floor levels of both buildings, with a floor space of some 310,000 square feet, were used for a pageant of progress. The sheds temporarily were lighted and decorated. This was followed, in 1925, by a machinery show. Then again the buildings were empty.

The City Goes to Work.

Not until 1931, when the Garden clubs of Illinois first used the north building for its annual garden show, visualizing the power of the half mile ailes for display and the shattering effect of long vistas, did the convention idea take root. Then the city went to work.

In 1933 the interior of the structure was repainted aluminum gray. It was put into condition and made habitable for the first time.

In 1936, at a cost of $165,000, the north building was made convention perfect. A new system of ventilation, sanitary facilities, weather proofing sheet metal flashing, and permanent lighting fixtures were installed. Eight receiving doors were built along its south side to facilitate the loading and unloading of exhibition equipment.

Heating System Installed.

Most important of all, Martin N. Ottershagen, harbor engineer, said, was installation of a heating system comprising sixty twin unit gas fired air heaters.

Late in 1936 two floors of the terminal building which connects the north and south spurs were heated and improved, and in the last sixty days the east 900 feet of the south spur have received improvements like the north spur at a cost of $117,000.

The result will be seen today, when the total 235,000 square feet of floor space are used for the Automotive Service Industries show. Exhibits, double ailed, will stretch for 3,500 feet, 60 feet wide, down the north spur, around the terminal and up one-third of the south spur.

Between 15 and 20 thousand automotive men are expected to attend the show, the largest in the history of the industry. Exhibits include automotive parts, accessories, service tools, equipment and maintenance supplies.

2,000 JUGO-SLAVS CELEBRATE UNITY DAY IN CHICAGO

More than 2,000 Chicagoans of Jugo-Slavic ancestry gathered yesterday in the Pilsen Sokol auditorium at 1812 South Ashland avenue to celebrate the 19th anniversary of the union of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes into one nation. The holiday, known as Unity day, is observed annually.

Many of the women were dressed in national cotumes featuring embroidered balloon sleeves. The program included speeches, songs, interpretative dances and military ceremonies.

Among those who participated were Thomas Blazina, national commander of the American Jugo-Slav Legion; Col. C. B. Cunningham, commander of the Allied World War Veterans council; Zlatko Balokovic, violinist, and Pero Cabric, Jugo-Slavia's consul general to Chicago.

WINDSORS PLAN QUIET CHRISTMAS ON THE RIVIERA

Villa of U. S. Friend Being Prepared for Them.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANNES, France, Dec. 5.—Lou Viel, the unoccupied Riviera villa of Herman Rogers, is humming with activity in preparation for a Christmas visit of the duke and duchess of Windsor. Rogers is an American friend of the former King Edward VIII. of Great Britain and his wife.

A corps of servants under the direction of Rogers' major domo, Gabriele, is preparing to have everything in order for Dec. 22, when the Windsors are expected for a stay which will last until the new year.

Many Changes at Villa.

Since the duchess—then Mrs. Wallis Simpson—took refuge at the villa Lou Viel during the abdication crisis in London a year ago, considerable alterations have been made both to the house and the grounds.

One part of the house has been converted to a patio, California style, an arrangement which fits the Riviera climate. A new guest room has been added, as well as a private study for Rogers, which can be converted into another guest room. A new garage has been built which can accommodate several cars. The grounds have been enlarged, and the tortuous approaches to the grounds, which made driving in large automobiles slow and difficult, have been straightened out.

Will Spend Vacation Quietly.

Although many names have been mentioned as persons who will entertain the Windsors or be entertained by them, present indications are that they will spend their Riviera vacation quietly. They will leave the villa only to visit spots known to both of them previously in the carefree days when the duke was prince of Wales.

The duke on Monday night will be a guest of honor at the annual dinner in Paris of the Anglo-American Press association. He is reported to be delighted at the prospect of meeting newspaper men under circumstances which are supposed to give him an advantage, since everything done or said at this dinner is "off the record."

SHIVER WEATHER TO HANG AROUND FOR ANOTHER DAY

Fair and continued cold weather, with a minimum temperature of 5 to 8 degrees above zero, will prevail in Chicago today, according to the official forecast, but rising temperature is predicted for tomorrow.

Yesterday's maximum was 20 above zero and the official minimum 13. Brisk winds from the northwest added to the discomfort of pedestrians. In the evening there was a trace of snow. Some private skating rinks were opened, but those in the public park lagoons were not in operation.

Among those who found the Chicago climate inhospitable was Claire Dodd, screen actress, who remained by a radiator in the Dearborn station while she was stopping between trains on a trip from Hollywood to New York.

Union Seeks Sunday Ban on City Auto Salesrooms

An ordinance providing for the closing of all automobile salesrooms in the city on Sunday is pending before the judiciary committee of the city council.

ILLINOIS TRUCK PAYSANDPAYSON INTERSTATE RUNS

High Tax Barriers Block Highway Transport.

BY HAL FOUST.

The National Highway Users' conference has completed a study of the complicated, divergent, and burdensome tax structure that faces an Illinois truck owner undertaking an occasional interstate haul for hire. The study concluded that these excises and accompanying red tape are nullifying the essential advantage which highway transportation has over the railroads—flexibility.

The tax barriers to economic use of the roads, according to the report, are reflected in higher shipping costs, which must be passed on to consumers. So every one has a personal interest in these facts and figures which on their face might seem to be of concern only to truck owners.

To simplify an involved subject, the survey, which was conducted at the request of THE TRIBUNE, totaled the taxes, permit fees, and registration fees that would be paid by an Illinois owned truck on a single round trip to any one of the other 47 states or the District of Columbia.

The prohibitive figure of $223.36 was reached as the average tax payment for one round trip by a loaded eight ton tractor and semi-trailer.

"Furthermore," reads the survey report, "so complicated and lacking in uniformity are the tax and fee demands in the various states that a commercial truck operator would probably have to hire a lawyer and enter into considerable litigation if he were to succeed in making some of these interstate hauls." It was concluded that if the truck owner had any money left after visiting certain states, it would go for attorney's fees.

Different Scale for Regulars.

Trucks in regular interstate service pay taxes on another scale, which is also high, but which contains several annual fees that can be apportioned against the cost of several trips. This makes the tax expense per trip lower. Some of the charges reported in this survey would not be repeated for additional trips in any one calendar year. On the other hand, charges not included in this study of the truck tax situation would be added in some states if the trips were repeated with any frequency.

Of the 220,000 trucks registered in Illinois, no more than 20,000 or 25,000 now cross the state boundary lines with pay loads, according to an unofficial estimate by federal officials. Owners of thousands of other trucks are kept from doing interstate business by high taxes.

$1,757 to North Dakota.

The highest tax paid on any of these 48 theoretical trips was for a haul of 1,760 miles from Chicago to North Dakota and return. The taxes totaled $1,257.42! Here is what the trucker would have to pay and where he would pay it:

Illinois [132 miles]—$5 extra license fee, $2.64 mileage fee, $1.26 state gasoline tax, 42 cents federal gasoline tax. Total, $9.32.

Wisconsin [446 miles]—$165 registration fee, $15 license fee, $10 permit fee, $13.38 mileage fee, $3.66 state gasoline tax, $1.42 federal gasoline tax. Total, $208.46.

Minnesota [882 miles]—$17.78 mileage tax, $10.44 state gasoline tax, $2.61 federal gasoline tax. Total, $30.83.

North Dakota [300 miles]—$925 registration fee, $75 permit fee, $5 for identification plates, $2.86 state gasoline tax, 95 cents federal gasoline tax. Total, $1,008.81.

In contrast, the total levy for the 2[illegible] mile round trip from Chicago to [illegible]e was $42.61.

The Cost of Going Places.

There follows a table listing the theoretical trips by states, giving the mileage of each round trip from Illinois, the total taxes, and the taxes collected by the state of destination:

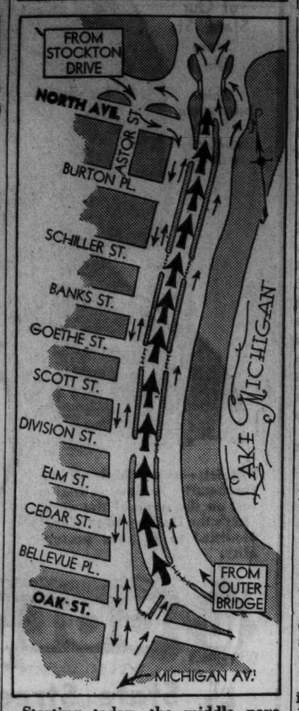
End Oak Street Jam



Starting today, the middle pavement of Lake Shore drive between Oak street and North avenue will be used between 5 and 6 p. m. for northbound trafic only as indicated by heavy arrows. This is expected to end the rush hour jam.

Both express pavements of Lake Shore drive between Oak street and North avenue are to be used for north bound trafic only during the evening peak between 5 and 6 o'clock starting this afternoon. South bound trafic during this period will be confined to the west half of the third pavement between Oak and North. In all other hours, trafic will be routed as it has been for the last two months.

Otto K. Jelinek, trafic engineer of the Chicago park district, in announcing the plan yesterday said that it was expected to break the evening rush hour bottleneck at the Oak street intersection. The Tribune roadster last week found that the average speed of north bound Michigan avenue travel from Chicago avenue to Oak street was 6.8 miles an hour between 5 and 5:30 p. m. and 5.9 miles an hour between 5:30 and 6 p. m. This trafic during this period includes a heavy movement of loaded buses.

Trafic north bound from the outer bridge will also be speeded by this rush hour innovation. It will no longer be halted by a red light for cars entering the express drive from Michigan avenue.

HALF OF CHICAGO BRIDGES FOUND IN BAD CONDITION

City Engineer Blames a Lack of Funds.

One half of Chicago's 82 bridges and viaducts are more than 20 years old, are overstressed and deteriorating rapidly, City Engineer Loran Gayton reported yesterday to Oscar Hewitt, public works commissioner. Because of their condition the bridges are difficult to maintain under modern trafic conditions, Gayton said.

His report, compiled by Otto W. Hanson, bridge maintenance engineer, follows a recent request to the city controler by the division of bridges and viaducts for $475,000 for bridge maintenance next year. In an estimate on next year's budget, made to the council last week, Robert Upham, the controler, reduced the estimate to $323,800, the same amount spent this year.

Spend Less for Maintenance.

Hanson reported that although the inventoried value of Chicago's bridges has increased from $24,000,000 in 1927 to $50,000,000, less than two-thirds as much money is being spent for maintenance now as was spent ten years ago.

"In 1927 $841,000 from the corporate fund and $198,000 from city vehicle tax was spent for bridge repairs, while in 1936 only $298,700 from the corporate fund and $250,000 from city vehicle tax money was used," Hanson said. "In 1937 we had $583,800 in corporate and vehicle tax funds and in October we received $142,000 from the state motor fuel tax fund to be used on arterial street bridges only."

Expenditures for Seven Years.

The bridge maintenance fund, he added, which includes nothing for cost of operation or bridge tenders' salaries, was reduced in 1931 when economy measures were put into effect. Expenditures from corporate and vehicle tax funds for maintenance since that time were: 1931, $538,000; 1932, $303,000; 1933, $342,000; 1934, $422,000; 1935, $511,000; 1936, $548,104, and 1937, $583,800.

Hanson said rust has eaten into the under braces of many of the older bridges and that temporary repairs are made because permanent rehabilitation is too costly. Although the State street bridge has been recently repaired, he asserted that many steel members are rusted into almost useless condition and have not been touched because of lack of funds.

Repaired Temporarily.

The masonry wall between the Madison street bridge and viaduct or approach has been damaged and is now bound together with cables and wood, Hanson said. An important supporting girder of the Randolph street bridge was damaged by a boat some time ago and has been bound up temporarily. Repair work on the Roosevelt road viaduct has been stopped because of lack of funds, he said.

P. O. GETS NO BIDS ON 2 AIR ROUTES, AND NO WONDER!

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—The postoffice department, to the surprise of some of its officials, has been unable to find bidders on two airplane mail routes, one between Juneau, Alaska, and White Horse, Yukon territory, and the other between White Horse and Fairbanks. The postoffice wanted the route flown with multi-motored planes providing seats for ten passengers and room for 800 pounds of mail.

The bureau of air commerce stepped in to inform postal officials that no American plane existed which could comply with these specifications, carry the emergency equipment necessary and, with any degree of safety, use the fields available.

The advertisments have been changed to permit the use of planes with smaller load capacity and the date for opening bids has been postponed from Dec. 15 to Feb. 1.

BANDIT IS BEATEN TO DRAW; SHOT BY A POLICEMAN

Policeman Richard Donovan of the Hyde Park station was a split second quicker on the draw last night than Walter Griffin, a bandit, and not only saved his own life but sent Griffin to the Bridewell hospital with a wound that may prove fatal.

Griffin, 21 years old, who lives at 3632 La Salle street; Louis Robinson, 15 years old, 3803 La Salle street, and Jesse Swanson, 17 years old, 123 East 37th street, all colored, had held up three men in quick succession, getting $65 in loot. One of the victims, Louis Goldberg, 1333 East 50th street, accompanied Policemen Donovan, Louis Schillig, and Joseph Kistner to Dorchester avenue and Hyde Park boulevard, where they saw Griffin and his companions. The three surrendered. Suddenly, however, Griffin drew his own gun. Donovan was quicker. He shot Griffin in the abdomen.

MEAT AND CHICAGO

No. 3 Packingtown

By CALEB

A CHICAGO housewife who dotes on sirloin steak; a young man in a university dormitory whose idea of real food is kidney pie; the maitre d'hotel in a downtown hostelry who thinks of meat only as a problem; and a policeman with a penchant for corned beef would all say they know their Chicago. They all have something to do with meat, but not one of them would ever guess that Chicago's packing plants have an output of about five hundred million dollars a year, or 20 per cent of the value of all of Chicago's manufactures!

There are a few really stupendous things in the world. The Golden Gate bridge is one. The national budget is one. And the packing industry in Chicago is another.

On a year's expenditure of four hundred thirty million dollars for live stock and supplies, Chicago packers added, through all their highly specialized efforts and processing, in preparing and shipping the product and making it available to the retailer, only seventy million dollars, evidencing the efficiency with which they operate and the relatively low cost of the numerous and essential services they perform.

That Chicago is the center of all this activity is Chicago's good fortune. It means some fifteen billion pounds of traffic annually into and out of the city, utilizing facilities which mean business for the public. Fifteen billion pounds is the equivalent of about five hundred thousand loaded freight cars, although trucks get a substantial portion of this shipping. How vast this meat packing industry is, which goes on in our midst though we are hardly conscious of it (employing one out of every twelve of the city's workers), is indicated by the fact that it has an annual volume three times that of Chicago's second industry.

We are glad to be a sister institution to the packers in this great city. The packers, with little fuss and ado—for an extremely small percentage of profit—carry on their tremendously important and highly specialized operations, claiming no credit or special consideration for the development of techniques which make fresh meat everywhere available.

Their only thanks is public patronage—and that not without strenuous competition.

We hear not infrequently of what a city does for its industries. We commend Packingtown for what it has done in the last few decades for Chicago.

CALLS ON G. O. P. TO SAVE NATION FROM DICTATOR

Senator Bridges Issues Challenge to Party.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Senator H. Styles Bridges [R., N. H.] challenged the Republican party today to "solve the problem" of insuring the survival of democracy in the United States.

"All persons who have made a study of world affairs realize that democracies are being subjected to a stern test and know that whether democracy can survive in this country or not depends upon the policy we adopt for the purpose of correcting the dislocation of our present day society," Senator Bridges said in an address at the state-wide conference of the Young Republican Organization of Illinois.

Gives New Hope to Party.

The former governor of New Hampshire said the astounding change that has come over the present administration this year gives new hope to the Republican party.

"Revolt in congress over the court packing bill and the subsequent adjournment without the enactment of any of his [Roosevelt's] socialistically tainted legislation was the first major setback suffered by the President," he said. "This was manna from heaven for Republicans. It showed that Roosevelt was not unbeatable.

"There is no doubt in my mind, however, that before we can attempt to criticise those in power now we must clean our own house. We must see new faces in high places."

Outlines G. O. P. Program.

He said the party's constructive program should include the repeal of the emergency act of 1933, which he called the Thomas inflation amendment, revision of the tax laws, enactment of a common sense minimum wage and maximum hour bill, a neutrality act that will keep America at peace, and a national labor relations act that will give both sides to the controversy a fair hearing.

A declaration of principles presented by Clarence Willard of Oak Park was adopted. The resolution called for the "preservation of the American system of representative constitutional self government," endorsed economy, tarif protection, and collective bargaining for labor and on the farm issue said:

"We believe there should be no government interference with the farmer by means of compulsory crop control!"

Demands Party Purging.

Montpelier, Vt., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Asserting the Republican party approached a state of demoralization, Gov. George D. Aiken of Vermont tonight demanded an immediate purge of the Republican national committee.

In an open letter to the committee, the Vermont Republican indirectly threatened a party revolt unless the baneful influence of the southern committeemen is wiped out, reactionary elements uprooted and a broad affirmative program adopted.

Aiken declared he spoke as the elected leader of one of the two states to vote Republican in the 1936 presidential election, and added that the state of Vermont deserves the respect and attention of the Republican national committee.

Chicago's airport is the busiest in the United States and is badly in need of enlargement. But this comparison shows that it is failing to receive its share of federal funds for construction and improvement of flying fields in proportion to its share of the nation's air mail and air passenger business.

CHICAGO'S SHARE OF U. S. AIRPORT FUND IS SMALL

Out of Line with Trafic in City, Records Show.

Chicago, which is considered to have the busiest airport in the country, has failed to receive its proportionate share in federal funds allotted for airport construction and improvement. This was disclosed yesterday in a study of statistics supplied by the department of commerce and local airport records.

The survey is particularly significant in view of the conference of city airport officials and aeronautical experts called today at Washington by Assistant Secretary of Commerce Col. J. Monroe Johnson. City officials have been invited to the discussion, which will center on airport problems, including finance and maintenance.

City Gets Only 3.8 Per Cent.

Of a total allotment of $56,027,283 authorized by the Works Progress administration in September of 1936 for all the nation's airports, Chicago received $2,136,255, or 3.8 per cent. Such a share was in striking contrast to the activities at the airport last year, the study of records showed.

According to the Air Commerce Bulletin of Nov. 15, 1,466,058 passengers were carried by airplanes in the country during 1936. Of these the passengers entering and leaving Chicago airport numbered 280,585, or 19.2 per cent of the nation's air travelers. The report shows further that in the first six months this year the city airport handled 132,168, or 20.8 per cent, of the total air passengers in the country.

Share of Mail and Express Large.

Likewise, a report of the department of commerce shows that Chicago in 1936 handled 3,095,043 pounds of air mail, or approximately 16.8 per cent of the nation's total air mail of 18,324,011 pounds. Domestic air express in the country last year was 6,958,777 pounds, of which Chicago contributed 912,525 pounds, or approximately 13.1 per cent.

At present only the south half of the 620 acres of the entire city airport is developed and in use. Air line officials have complained that unless the remainder is improved their future giant planes will be unable to land on the present small and inadequate field. A month ago city officials requested an expenditure of $3,062,000 in WPA funds to improve the undeveloped half of the airport, but federal officials have remained silent on the request.

U. S. Circuit Court to Hear Malone's Appeal Today

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals will hear arguments on a motion for a new trial for William H. Malone, former chairman of the Illinois tax commission, who is facing a two year term in Leavenworth penitentiary and a $5,000 fine for violation of the income tax laws. He was convicted before Judge William H. Holly of evading payments of $59,000 for 1929 and 1930.

CITY OFFICIALS APPROVE AIRPORT TRACT ARBITER

Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th], chairman of the city council's special airport committee, and Ald. Bryan E. Hartnett [12th], chairman of the council committee on aviation and recreation, yesterday gave their approval to the selection of Arthur Kruggel as arbiter in the acquisition of a piece of property needed in the airport expansion.

Kruggel, who becomes president of the Chicago Real Estate board today, will decide on the price to be paid Raymond E. Herman, owner of land and rights which until Saturday had blocked the expansion program. With this transaction concluded, the tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad, which now run east and west along 59th street, between Cicero and Laramie avenue, can be moved to 54th street.

ANOTHER "DA-DE-DA" IN TOMORROW'S DAILY TRIBUNE

PRESIDENT ENDS FISHING; TAKES TRAIN TO CAPITAL

Vacation Cut, but He's in Good Spirits.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard Presidential Special En Route to Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt was returning to Washington tonight for treatment of the infected gum of his lower right jaw, which forced him to cut short his fishing cruise off the keys of southern Florida. Despite the sore gum he appeared in excellent spirits.

Tomorrow the jaw will be X-rayed in the White House by Dr. Arthur H. Yando, navy dentist. The infection has clung to the gum since the extraction of an abscessed tooth Nov. 18.

Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician, who has been treating the gum with various lotions, said the infection was but a small dot of white on the gum today. He said he counseled return of the President to the White House for treatment by a dentist.

Holds Press Conference.

At a press conference aboard the presidential yacht Potomac shortly after it docked at Miami today the President was asked if his jaw still was sore.

"Well," he replied with a laugh, "it's still sore enough so that if anybody punched me I'd resent it."

The President wore a gray sack suit and was seated at a table in the wardroom of the yacht.

He scanned the faces of the correspondents and twitted them about their lack of tan. Told that his own was slight he said there had been but little sun and the party had encountered rather brisk weather.

On his fishing he reported that his catch had been excellent.

He volunteered the information that all the members of the party proved themselves good sailors in rough weather going down to the Dry Tortugas and equally rough weather on the return trip to Miami. This, he said, included Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Harry Hopkins.

Sidesteps State Questions.

Mr. Roosevelt sidestepped questions on international and domestic affairs. On his return to the capital tomorrow afternoon he will be confronted with a rebellious congress. One report said he would consider invoking the neutrality act in the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Asked if he hoped to push through his four point program, which apparently is bogged by the revolt, he suggested that his message to congress be read.

Asked if he planned to send a special message to congress urging revision of the anti-trust laws to crack down on price fixing combinations, he said he did not plan to send any messages to congress until his report on the state of the Union which he will deliver at the opening of the regular session in January.

From his yacht Mr. Roosevelt motored a few blocks to his special train. He went aboard at 2:20 p. m. and the train left ten minutes later for Washington.

ST. MICHEL DE WENTWORTH, Quebec, Dec. 5.—(AP)—A mother and her four children were burned to death early today when fire swept their village home. The four children, ranging in age from 8 to 15 years, were trapped in their beds as they slept. An overheated stove was blamed.

MRS. LOLITA VAN WYCK.

New York, Dec. 5.—[Special.]—Mozellecita Stapp and Mrs. Lolita Cordoba Van Wyck, who get along like Mussolini and Haile Selassie, have called off their war and murmured words of forgiveness. "I forgive her," said Mozellecita after Magistrate Edgar Bromberger dismissed mutual charges of disorderly conduct. "And I forgive her too," said Lolita.

Miss Stapp, the favorite of Prescott Van Wyck, nephew of the first mayor of Greater New York, until Lolita came into his life, insisted on taking the stand yesterday to tell how Mrs. Van Wyck and her wealthy artist husband broke into her apartment last Nov. 16 and raised a rumpus. Then Lolita had her turn in which she declared that Mozellecita had been far from ladylike in her treatment of a guest.

When the charges were tossed out, the magistrate made them promise not to molest each other in the future.

PRESIDENT BACK TODAY TO FACE CAPITOL STORM

of new loans and grants. Of 125 replies he has received so far only two are unfavorable.

What with the diminishing income tax revenue caused by the business recession and the hostility of the Democratic majority in congress to retrenchment there appears to be little chance of balancing the budget unless additional taxes are voted, and the only taxes promising a sufficient yield are sales taxes, which hitherto have been rejected by the Roosevelt administration and the Democratic majority in congress because of their unpopularity.

Jones Statement Recalled.

The general expectation is that any purported balancing of the budget the President may submit to congress will be highly imaginary. Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC, let the cat out of the bag when he said that "a few weeks ago it seemed that the budget could be balanced by the next fiscal year, and if we can get business started again and people back to work it probably can be, but not otherwise."

The President is to continue his conferences with public utility heads in an effort to induce them to proceed with expansions aggregating 3½ billion dollars which have been held up, they contend, by the threat of government competition. The utility chiefs say they can't obtain capital for expansion because of Mr. Roosevelt's antagonism. Mr. Roosevelt has suggested that the government loan the utilities the necessary funds.

Democrats in Confusion.

On Capitol hill the President will find his party in a state of confusion on two major items of the program of legislation for which he called the extraordinary session—the farm dictatorship bill and the scheme for political regulation of wages and hours, both measures that would take America far on the road toward the totalitarian forms of government that prevail today in Germany, Italy, and Russia.

So badly are the Democrats split on the bill for federal fixing of minimum wages and maximum hours of labor that hope of enacting it into law at this session has been abandoned.

Jury May Be Picked Today for Test Handbook Case

Prosecution and defense lawyers in the trial of State's Attorney Courtney's test gambling case against handbooks were reported ready to select a jury today before Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court. Last Wednesday Judge Sonsteby denied motions to quash the search warant and suppress the evidence obtained in the raid Sept. 16 at 139 North Wabash avenue. Nineteen men were arrested as keepers, but the state announced it would try only one of them, Rocco Collucio, 40 years old, 6832 Paxton avenue.

PLAN TO FLY 20 WOMEN, CHILDREN FROM POLAR ICE

RUDOLF ISLAND, Franz Josef Land, Dec. 5.—[By Wireless to Moscow.]—(AP)—Preparations were made today to fly 20 women and children by moonlight back to the mainland from three ships frozen fast in this region of polar ice.

The icebound ships, the Rusanov, the Roshal, and the Proletarii, brought equipment and provisions with which to renew the search for Sigismund Levanevsky, soviet flyer who was lost on a flight across the north pole. The aerial hunt was expected to be resumed about mid-December, when a full moon will permit flights during the polar night.

When flights become possible, Ivan Mazuruk, aviator stationed at the Rudolf Island base, was ordered to fly the women, children, and sick members of the crews to the Russian mainland. The planes were being equipped with landing skis by the light of projectors despite icy gales and a temperature of 40 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

JAPS BOMB TWO BRITISH SHIPS; HUNDREDS DIE

Planes Leave Trail of Death in Wuhu.

Japs 20 Miles from Nanking.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 5.—(AP)—A Japanese army spokesman said today Japanese troops were within twenty miles of Nanking, from which the Chinese government has fled. He said thousands of Chinese troops and civilians were streaming from the former capital.

The Japanese spokesman said Japanese sailors, braving heavy Chinese artillery fire, had crossed the Yangtze near the Chinese boom at Kiangyin, ninety miles east of Nanking, and had captured the Ninghai, Chinese cruiser beached there after being damaged by Japanese air bombs two weeks ago. One Japanese was killed and one wounded. The spokesman said the boom still was intact, preventing Japanese warships from approaching Nanking.

A Japanese naval spokesman said there were no Japanese forces on Tsungming Island, in the Yangtze estuary, where the British steamer Suishan was fired upon yesterday while trying to approach the island to take off nine French-Canadian nuns. The rescue was prevented.

Demand Briton Be Punished.

The Shanghai Japanese Residents' association adopted a resolution demanding that Japanese officials make sure that British authorities take "adequate action" against E. T. Maitland, Shanghai Britisher. Maitland broke the staf of a small Japanese flag Friday when molested by Japanese watching the Japanese army's "victory march" through the international settlement.

A Japanese move to set up an autonomous government for the conquered Chinese territory around Shanghai was seen in a proclamation issued by Su Hsi-Wen, announcing his assumption of the duties of mayor of "The Great Way."

Su is a native of Fukien province and was educated in Japan. He said the Japanese army had "rescued Shanghai" and pledged coöperation with the Japanese. Observers interpreted his proclamation to mean he had replaced O. K. Yui, former mayor of Shanghai. "The Great Way" apparently is to be a new name for the Shanghai area.

NIGHT WATCHMAN SPENDS HIS DAY CALLING POLICE

Frank Morgan, 24 years old, 4400 Van Buren street, is night watchman. Daytime is playtime. Yesterday his play took the form of drinking highballs and other spirit lifters and putting slugs in a public telephone.

All his calls were to the police. He reported four holdups and two murders, one after the other, and all in the same drug store. The thing that irritated the police was that his voice was so fuzzy they couldn't make out which of the more than 2,000 drug stores in Chicago was the scene of all the violence.

When Morgan reported a third murder, Policeman Dominic Mullaney of the police radio room had the call traced and in a short time the fuddled Mr. Morgan was seized in a drug store at 4256 Wentworth avenue and taken to the Stockyards lockup. There were no murders and no holdups.

NUTS! SAYS U. S., FIGURING WHAT TO SELL BRITISH

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—(AP)—"Nuts to you!" says Uncle Sam to John Bull while he starts preparations for the forthcoming Anglo-American trade agreement. And he means it. He means over half a million dollars worth of nuts a year.

The United States is looking to Great Britain to absorb a large percentage of this year's bumper crop of nuts. In 1936 we sold them 5,366,296 pounds of English walnuts for $486,687. Pecans added nearly $10,000.

If the agreement follows the lines of those concluded with other countries, the United States can figure on a reduction of from 23 to 50 per cent in the nut duty.

Bombs Kill Hundreds

Japanese aviators yesterday bombed Wuhu, on the Yangtze river southwest of Nanking, killing or wounding several hundred Chinese. Two British ships were hit by bombs. Arrow points to scene of incident.

LOYALISTS BOMB REBELS TO BLOCK ARAGON ATTACK

HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Fleets of government bombing planes were reported today to have succeeded in breaking up insurgent troop concentrations by repeated raids on the Aragon front in northeast Spain. Government artillery maintained heavy fire along the Aragon line as a check against an insurgent offensive.

Military dispatches indicated the government was attempting to thwart any attack from Aragon toward Catalonia or Valencia, while the insurgents were probing the central front with a view to a possible attack on Madrid simultaneously with their expected drive against Almeria in the south.

A CONDUCTOR'S SUNDAY PUNCH FLOORS ROBBER

A man boarded a north bound Ashland avenue street car yesterday at 14th street, pointed a sawed off shotgun at James Moynihan, 7013 South Elizabeth street, the conductor, and demanded his money changer.

At that instant the car started up and the bandit was thrown off balance. Moynihan swung his fist to the man's jaw and sent him spinning to the street. As he landed, the jar discharged the shotgun, surprising the robber, who grabbed it and ran.

JAPS SEIZE ISLE WHERE SAINT DIED IN 16TH CENTURY

HONGKONG, Dec. 5.—(AP)—News reached Hongkong today of the Japanese occupation of St. John Island, 120 miles southwest of here, famous as the place where St. Francis Xavier died and first was buried.

Japanese marines took possession of the island on Nov. 28. It long has been a pilgrimage spot for Chinese and other far eastern Catholics. St. Francis, great Jesuit missionary of the sixteenth century, died and was buried on St. John in 1552. Later his body was moved to Goa, India.

Arrow indicates St. John Island [in black], seized by Japan.

Father John Consdine, secretary general of the Maryknoll mission at Ossining, N. Y., said last night Sisters Monica Boyle and Maria Basto were the only nuns on St. John Island. The sisters are there with the Rev. Robert Cairns of Worcester, Mass., a Maryknoll father, in charge of a mission station, a small convent and a shrine church on the hillside where St. Francis died.

NEW PHILIPPINE TYPHOON SWEEPS 2 MORE ISLANDS

MANILA, Dec. 6 [Monday].—The Philippines' latest typhoon moved slowly but with great force across the Visayan sea today, sweeping over Romblon and Masbate and toward the southern part of Luzon Island, about 150 miles south of Manila.

Government and populace anxiously awaited first reports of the storm's toll. It was the third typhoon to hit the Philippines in three weeks, the other two having caused at least 280 deaths and left more than 200,000 homeless.

The "L" carries one-half of all Loop "rush-hour" traffic using public city transportation!

It's our regular everyday job . . . 50% of all the people who use public city transportation in and out of the Loop during the rush hours, come and go on the Elevated Lines! And that's merely the fair weather figure! In stormy weather, the "L" carries an even greater share of the traffic . . . much greater. And no wonder!

ALL-WEATHER, DEPENDABLE TRANSPORTATION

Fair weather or foul . . . Summer or Winter . . . day or night . . . few people who live near the "L" use any other form of transportation!

Some choose the "L" because of its greater speed . . . protected stations . . . heated trains. Others prefer it because it carries them up in the fresh air and sunshine . . . above the monoxide belt. Others single out the "L" because of less noise . . . fewer stops . . . direct platform connections to other parts of the city . . . free transfers to street cars and buses. Still others prefer it because it is the only local transportation agency which also serves the North and West suburbs (1,570 trains daily). And many ride the "L" because of the combination of all of these things . . . exclusive features the "L" alone provides.

BACKBONE OF CHICAGO TRANSPORTATION

5,383 trains every working day! 1,500 cars through the Loop during the morning and evening rush hour periods! 82.15 route miles of private right-of-way that links the residential and industrial sections together as a unit! These things make the "L" the backbone of Chicago transportation.

Use Rapid Transit service more. Find out how much it can add to your pleasure and convenience. Ride the "L"!

AN INTERESTING FACT!

The Rapid Transit Company is the only public transportation company now paying so-called City Compensation. In the last six years—1931-6—the amount paid was $1,390,700. This money is paid directly into the corporate fund for general city expenses, no part of it being usable for "L" improvements.

If the City Compensation paid by the Rapid Transit Company in the last 30 years had been held intact by the city and 3 per cent interest received on the payments, the fund would now total $10,343,000.

GET THERE! Ride the "L" THE FAST, COMFORTABLE WAY

WHY THE TRIBUNE HAS THE ABLEST NEWSPAPER STAF IN THE WORLD

PAYING the highest wages and salaries, the Chicago Tribune attracts the ablest workers for every specialized task involved in producing and delivering the newspaper.

When people come to the Tribune, they generally stay. Of the 2,764 members connected directly with the Chicago plant, 1,263 have been on the job more than ten years.

One Tribune employe has been on the job for more than 49 years, nine others for more than forty years, 54 between thirty and forty years, 176 between twenty and thirty years, and 1,023 between ten and twenty years.

Why Members of the Tribune Stay

They stay because they find at the Tribune the opportunity, the surroundings and the spirit which enable them to capitalize to the full their talents and their ambitions.

When they come, they find in every branch and division of the Tribune the finest available tools and methods and the most modern equipment.

As fast as science and the inventiveness of the staf devise better methods to lighten heavy tasks and abolish monotonous and hazardous ones, the Tribune adopts them.

For example, as soon as air conditioning was perfected, it was installed throughout Tribune Tower and the plant at a cost of $400,000. Lighting equipment is continuously replaced as fast as better, more scientific principles of illumination are discovered.

Executives Promoted From the Ranks

The Tribune does not go outside to fill important posts. Its executives are promoted from the ranks.

It does not have to go outside because the people who make the Tribune find every encouragement to develop the superior ability which finds speedy recognition and reward in a growing, thriving organization.

They are encouraged to contribute ideas and methods which will make the Tribune a better newspaper and improve its service to readers.

They are encouraged to make the Tribune their chief interest and to regard it as their own enterprise.

They are made to feel important factors in the Tribune and to look forward to continuous employment by the Tribune. They are given the assistance and cooperation which helps them to achieve their aims and ambitions.

Purchase of 485 Homes Financed

Typical expressions of the Tribune tradition of mutual helpfulness are the homes pictured on this page—homes of Tribune staf members built or purchased with the aid of the Medill Building and Loan Association.

Organized by Tribune employes with Tribune help in 1922, this association has helped to finance the purchase of 485 homes. Of this total, loans on 339 have been paid off, Tribune employes now owning them free and clear of encumbrances.

Total loans involved were in excess of $2,500,000. At present, 746 Tribune staf members own shares of stock in the association having a matured value of $1,867,000. Now being financed are 146 homes representing a loan value of $586,950.

Other Measures Build Tribune Spirit

Other arrangements which contribute to the solidarity of the Tribune personnel include the benefit plan under which 277 sick and disabled workers last year received $50,000 in wage payments; the bonus plan under which every employe last Christmas shared in the distribution of $765,000; the group insurance plan under which the lives of 2,321 staf members are insured for $8,840,000; and the pension plan under which 67 retired veterans last year received $66,000.

These facts contribute to the solidarity of the Tribune personnel. They stimulate individual enterprise and develop the highest degree of personal technical ability. They explain why the Tribune has the ablest newspaper staf in the world—and how, as a result, it can deliver to readers the world's most interesting and best printed newspaper.

POLICEMAN AND OUTLAW SHOT IN GUN BATTLE

Crashes Squad Car to Halt Flight.

La Crosse, Wis., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—A policeman was wounded seriously and a confessed robber was shot and captured here early today when their cars crashed on an icy roadway after a chase of several miles with a kidnaped policeman in the robber's car.

The wounded policeman is John Donndelinger, 38 years old. The man who shot him is Charles Kirbeck, 33 years old, who told the police his home is at Carrollton, Ill., but that he had been living in Chicago recently.

Donndelinger and Patrolman Granville Smith, cruising in a squad car, halted Kirbeck after he had run through a stoplight shortly after midnight. Smith then got into the car of the stranger and directed him to the police station, Donndelinger following in the squad car.

Demands Flight Directions.

In front of the station Kirbeck thrust a pistol at Smith, disarmed him and demanded directions on how to cross the river and get into Minnesota. Smith, kept a prisoner, gave advice that required a roundabout way to the old wagon bridge.

Donndelinger, following, realized that something was wrong and picked up Patrolmen Paul Snyder and James Christie. The trio were close behind as Kirbeck rolled upon the bridge. Christie began firing at the fugitive's car. Then Donndelinger, speeding up, deliberately crashed the police car into Kirbeck's car. Both vehicles were tossed to the side of the road.

Battle Before Headlights.

Kirbeck leaped out into the road, with Smith following and striving to strike him with his fists. Donndelinger also stepped into the road. In the light from the cars' headlights the patrolmen and the outlaw began shooting.

Struck in his abdomen and thigh, Donndelinger fell. From the pavement he continued to fire, striking Kirbeck three times in his right arm. The other policemen then went to Smith's aid and overpowered the man. The battle was observed by several motorists.

Kirbeck, who had three car license plates, two pistols and a rifle in his car, said he came here to seek work as a crane operator. He admitted that he had committed two robberies in Chicago before coming here.

Student's Finger Is Cut as Plane Is Demolished

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Albert H. Bolson, 20 years old, a student pilot, crashed today. In its descent the plane brushed two power lines but did not break them. It narrowly missed a schoolhouse as it plunged into some shrubbery. Bolson forgot to cut off the ignition, but the craft did not catch fire. The plane was demolished and Bolson escaped with only a cut finger.

DIPLOMACY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Dec. 5.—Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister, will leave Warsaw tomorrow with the Order of the White Eagle, Poland's highest decoration. This appears to be the sole tangible result of Delbos' visit. His conversations with Col. Josef Beck, Polish foreign minister, convinced Delbos that it was impossible to coördinate Polish foreign policy with that of France.

The Polish viewpoint is that under the Franco-Polish alliance Poland will help France if it is attacked by Germany, but until that moment arrives Poland will continue to follow an independent foreign policy, even though it runs counter to French interests in other sections of Europe.

Delbos today received the Russian chargé d'affaires and the ministers of Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, and Czechoslovakia for informative conversations. Tomorrow he will head for Bucharest, Rumania; Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia, and Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Which Shall It Be . . .

Railroads have been paying more for what they have to buy and charging less for what they have to sell.

In order to balance costs and prices of transportation, it is necessary to increase freight rates roundly 15 per cent. When the rates are thus increased, they will still average about 15 per cent less than they were immediately following war-time federal control.

There is only one alternative to increasing the rates. That is to reduce payrolls and purchases, which constitute the expenditures of the railroads.

Nobody wants to see that happen and unemployment increased. Railroads should relieve instead of add to unemployment in their own ranks and—through purchases—in other lines of business.

This statement is made in the confident belief that the American people in their own interest will approve the choice between these two alternatives which the railroads are making.

OTHER PEOPLES' COLONIES.

A new obstacle to the settlement of the African colonial problem has been raised by Portugal and Belgium. Both these countries have notified Great Britain that Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Eden in seeking to satisfy Germany need not hope to give Hitler Belgian and Portuguese territory. This interposition of self-interest in the good will proceedings by which Great Britain and France had hoped to convince the Nazi state of their friendship strikes a jarring note in the harmony proposed.

Both France and Great Britain have told Hitler that they were in accord with him spiritually and theoretically. As colonial powers they must concede the validity of colonial possessions. A great European nation without a white man's burden somewhere, without territory to which viceroys or lieutenant governors can be sent, is no better off than a guest at an imperial banquet who has to make his way on foot through the rain and check his umbrella while he observes the other guests rolling up in their coaches. Such a power is a poor relation, aware of indignity and inferiority and always tempted to exchange his umbrella for a sword cane and get his in any manner possible.

France and Great Britain are both so embarrassed by the wealth of their possessions that they don't know what to give up. They can't bring themselves to hand over anything that has been trod by Frenchmen or Englishmen, any place where the French or British flag has been raised, or where there has been a French or British officer or commercial agent.

The Portuguese and the Belgians, noble but smaller peoples, might be assumed not to have such sentimental attachment to the lands overseas and they might very well make a few concessions to improve the peaceful state of Europe. It will no doubt seem to be an unreasonable frame of mind which declines to offer anything to the cause of better European understandings, particularly when it would be possible to make so many satisfactory arrangements for France and Great Britain with a distribution of Portuguese and Belgian holdings.

FOSTERED TO DEATH.

Representative Mead of New York took occasion to regale the national house with some remarks regarding the Pan-American Airways' service to China, the other day. "It has completed 162 scheduled flights without a forced landing or accident of any kind . . . has increased mail volume this year by 173 per cent . . . and has carried nearly 2,000 persons across the Pacific. The cargo department shows even bigger figures. Since schedules were started the Clippers have carried 505,944 pounds of merchandise in addition to passengers and mail load. Medical supplies have been rushed to the orient and news reels have been flown to the states.'

While his laudatory statement was being made by the chairman of the house committee on postoffices and postroads another congressional group was affirmatively considering the recommendation of Chairman Kennedy of the maritime commission that the development of over-water mail routes be placed under the jurisdiction of his bureau so that their efforts might be properly correlated and coördinated with those of our decrepit merchant marine.

If private initiative has so successfully built up transoceanic flying as to incite the admiration of politicians, why in the name of common sense cannot they leave it alone? Do they not realize what government interference and "fostering care" have done to our railways, our overseas and coastwise water carrying trades, and are doing to the trucks and buses on our highways? Are they too blind to see that if government burocracy assumes the prerogatives of airway management the magnificent start that has been made must sooner or later bow to the efforts of subsidized competitors operated by foreign governments?

MODERN BATTLE AS IT IS.

American contributions to the professional discussion of the military lessons of the great war have been overshadowed by the earlier and more comprehensive work of European military men. Our service journals, of course, have published many articles of value which are available in the files of libraries. There is the notable volume, "Infantry in Battle," a project of the military history and publication section of the infantry school, directed by Col. George C. Marshall, an officer of the former First division. The body of the text is matter supplied by combat officers reporting actual experience in battle, obtained not only from the records of our army but from the German and French official records. Space does not permit quotation from these records, although they present a most extraordinary picture of modern warfare as it actually is. Told by lieutenants, captains, and majors from their fresh experience in the thick of fighting they constitute invaluable material for the student as well as an unsurpassed, if not unequaled, visualization of actual battle conditions which even the civilian must find illuminating. Among these records, for example, which the civilian will be especially interested in, is the story of the "Lost Battalion," a heroic chapter fully equal to that of the Alamo.

This material has been skilfully chosen from the mass of available material and expertly classified to illustrate the special tactical lessons and principles presented, with editorial comment summarizing the conclusions of the editors and of the staf of the infantry school. The text is fully supplied with excellent plans elucidating the actions described. We wish civilian historians would show equal consideration for their readers.

Col. Marshall has said that the purpose which inspired his project was to get across to the younger officers of the army the veterans' experience and understanding of tactics and troop leadership, in contrast to the heavy doses of theoretical instruction and elaborate technique they receive. We can imagine nothing more useful for the instruction of the officer than this volume. But it is more than that. It is a contribution of the first rank to the history of warfare.

FOR A MORE ORDERLY CITY.

The difficulties that are being encountered in moving the belt railway tracks from the Municipal airport serve to remind the citizens of Chicago of the tangled mass of railway trackage within the city limits. Here are two belt railways, performing almost identical functions and operating along two city streets almost within half a mile of each other. Perhaps there was an element of beneficial competition between these carriers originally, but all that has long since disappeared.

Practically every one of the twenty-three railway lines that serve Chicago approach the city as straight as the strands of a spiderweb. As they come within the influence of Chicago's industrial development, however, they adopt the meanderings of a mountain stream to weave their way to the several depots through a veritable tangle of trackage. As a single instance, the Baltimore and Ohio skirts the lake shore for miles, to be seized with a desire to tour the west side, and finally approaches the Grand Central terminal with locomotives facing east—the direction from which they came. Perhaps this is the worst offender, but there are others.

In the construction of these loops and turns the railways were seeking access to the great Chicago industries. In the early days competitive position was everything. Then came the development of the railway-owned belt lines and an interswitching arrangement under which the Michigan Central, entering the city from the south, can offer delivery on the North Western's industrial sidings at the flat Chicago rate. Of course, the Michigan Central pays the North Western for switching service, but then the Michigan Central makes similar deliveries for the North Western, and there is little interchange of cash.

The operating plan that has just "growed" like Topsy still survives, however. Each railroad must make up its daily "drags" of freight cars for each of its direct connections with other drags to such railways as it may serve through the various belt lines. What a magnificent opportunity for a railway owned terminal company, operating over all the tracks of all of the railways, serving all of the depots, and doing all of the switching with modern Diesel power! Passenger trains would not make loops within the city limits, but would go directly to their logical stations. Hundreds of short freight drags could be consolidated, and dozens of small yards abandoned.

Such improvements are in existence at other points. There is a consolidation of effort at St. Louis. Peoria has its terminal line. Even at Chicago a group of railways has made a small beginning in the Belt Railway of Chicago. Two years ago the coördinator of transportation produced a plan, but that is the wrong method of approach. The terminal company should be a practical railway man's job, not a government sponsored effort, and no plan is necessary. There should first be a consolidation of the properties and then eliminations of waste effort.

This is just one of the dozens of benefits that our railways can confer on Chicago if given adequate earnings to proceed with such a colossal undertaking.

Editorials of the Day

POISON DARTS IN THE JUNGLE.

[Kansas City Star.]

People who live in a world of electrical miracles, airplanes, and civilized luxuries are inclined to feel that horizons are limited, adventure is stultified, and life in general pretty much circumscribed on this planet. It is almost a relief, therefore, to learn that there are such lands and adventures remaining as those just described by an engineer returning from the jungles of Venezuela.

Oil derricks are rising in the thickly verdured, miasmatic tangles of Ora and Catumba river valleys. Every foot the drills bite into the tropic soil brings peril to the drillers. Day and night finely meshed wire screens surround the men who bore the deep holes. At night, as an additional precaution, powerful searchlights play constantly on the surrounding underbrush.

For a strange, malignant tribe of savages known as the Montliones constantly lurk in the shadows ready to send an arrow, tipped with poison, into the body of any unwary roustabout, tool dresser, or driller. Even the protective measures have in part failed of their purpose, for several oil workers have been killed.

To add to the mystery, it is believed that the Montliones, who keep furtively out of sight, are true "white Indians," descendants of early Dutch explorers who were lost in the jungles, intermarried with the natives and fathered this particularly deadly tribe.

A DOG FIGHT.

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

When an obscure scientist recently stated as his opinion that dogs can not think ahead or plan for the future he stirred up a hornet's nest. His critics have asked him to explain just why, if a dog has no power of foresight, he buries a bone and then goes back for it days later. The scientist's comeback to this jab is that the dog acted by instinct. He gives the same answer when the subject of dogs who wait for their masters at a certain point every day or perform errands for them is brought up.

We have a few questions to put to the scientist that we doubt if he has answered: How about the shepherd dog who can round up a herd of sheep or cattle, take charge of them, balk the waywardness of the animals without losing his temper, and force them into a pen or shed with as much finesse as a human being? Then, again, what would he have to say about the Saint Bernards, who have been locating and bringing succor to lost travelers in the Alps mountains for many years.

And if that is not enough, how about taking our scientist friend to the movies and letting him see a real dog picture? If the canine hero does not look ahead, behind, and to all sides in delicate situations in a manner that most people are incapable of we miss our guess.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

HIGH ABOVE THE NORTH SHORE towers the glistening dome of the Bahai temple in Wilmette, where we take you today. Seven years more, they tell you in the temple, will see the exterior completed. That will be 32 years after the temple grounds were dedicated, 22 years after construction was begun. When the interior will be finished, no one can say. After these many years the lofty columns which will one day be concealed by ornamental walls still are bare; the floor has never been surfaced. In a room below the temple proper Chicago leaders of the Bahai religious movement hold their meetings, content with their progress. Were funds immediately available to complete the temple, they say, long years would nevertheless be required. The facing that is applied to the present concrete exterior is quartz embedded in cement, and must be made slowly, patiently. They are still pondering what kind of wall to use in the interior. The temple is 135 feet high and nine sided, each side with an entrance. The great quartz covered glass dome is 75 feet across. The temple will have no visible light fixtures and no art work save the design of the open work interior walls. By day its light will come streaming in from the outside through the open work of the two walls; by night illumination will be from a lighting system between the walls.

SINGING HEARTH.

I'll build my home about my hearth—
It always should be so—
For fires leapt up at caverns' mouths,
Long and long ago
Before a wall had braced a roof
Or yielded to a door,
When death crouched near on four soft feet
But dared not pass the roar
And flash of flame upon the stone,
When man and fire stood all alone
Against the jungle and the night.
Symbol of safety, warmth, and light
My hearth shall be, where red flame rages
And sings the story of the ages.

Rowena Bennett.

WHY THEY'RE NOT SPEAKING.

If buying tickets in advance for the Brookfield zoo seemed an unnecessary precaution, Harry Baraunchig didn't question it; his Michigan relatives were his favorites. Their concern at being 45 minutes late puzzled him when they picked him up at home for their guide, but every one seemed much too excited for questions. They looked politely at the bears he showed them at the zoo, but said they really had to get on at once or they'd miss the whole football game. That's when he discovered that the bears they wrote they wanted to see were the Chicago Bears.

A MODERNISTIC SANTA CLAUS with a decoration like ambassadors wear on their shirt fronts has Santa Claus, Ind., biting its nails. Some think Santa should be left alone, and others say streamlining him would make it easier for him to get up and down chimneys. But Emil Strauss, the Chicago artist who painted him and gave him a chromium helmet, says his Santa is authentic.

THE MOST DISAPPOINTED DOG in town is Gunnar, Kurt Graff's Great Dane, when the dancer drives off these mornings without giving him permission to follow. Gunnar got his exercise that way, at quiet times on the outer drive. But his master got caught in trafic the other day; Gunnar became lost and began following another car. When Mr. Graff called to him, Gunnar thought he was being reproved for a dumb bunny, hung his head so that he couldn't see trafic, and almost got run over. Now Mr. Graff's afraid to let Gunnar go along.

Going Fast—The Linebooks!

SPATS MANUFACTURERS say it's going to be a big winter for them, even though there haven't been so many spats seen thus far. They credit the world war with making America spats conscious. The soldiers liked the heavy wool socks they wore, and brought them into vogue in civilian life. That ended the high shoe era. When men found they really wouldn't catch their death of cold in low shoes after Oct. 1 they experimented with lighter socks and still didn't sniffle. Then they went back to silk socks, bought spats, found they weren't suspected of going high hat, and spats were in for the average man as well as the one who carried a walking stick.

What's New York got that Chicago hasn't? Give up? Sandhogs. Evelyn.

WOMEN WHO WERE LITTLE GIRLS when it was called Death Corner come to wait upon you in the shops at Cleveland avenue and Oak street. No one has been shot there in years, they tell you, but they remember with dread the days when assassins used to get their men at the corner. It was Milton avenue and Oak street then. The women say changing the name of Milton avenue was a good thing; people don't remember so easily that it was Death Corner. Some credit the police with breaking up the Black Hand gangs responsible, but many believe Al Capone ordered those killings of the early days of prohibition stopped when he seized the gangland throne.

WHY BOTHER ABOUT ADHESIONS?

ONE of the most curious and yet vital tissues of the body is the membrane which lines the abdomen, covers every loop of bowel, and reflects itself over the viscera. It is called the peritoneum and is designed to present a smooth bearing so that friction cannot possibly take place during contractions of the digestive tract or movements of the trunk.

But these highly important surfaces can become inflamed by disease [peritonitis] or irritated by rough handling. Every surgical operation within the abdominal cavity, therefore, carries with it some slight possibility that a bit of this thin material may become congested and thus adhere to an adjacent segment. It does not take long for such a situation to develop—in fact, during the period of convalescence a raw surface may become attached to another part that is free from trouble. Thus when the bowel moves it may lack its aforetime freedom and be folded into a kink or loop which interferes with the passage of digested food.

These stringlike bands may stretch and elongate, and during the twisting and turning of the alimentary coils may grasp within their folds a knuckle of this tubing. This accounts for some cases of intestinal obstruction which may demand an operative procedure, whereupon these ribbons are cut, freeing the imprisoned areas.

Adhesions are the bane of abdominal surgery. Nevertheless, were it not for the peritoneum many lives would be lost, as it serves to pocket and confine within a small space infected substances that may be poured out from a ruptured appendix or an ulcer anywhere along the alimentary tract.

Fortunately, the process of repair is so rapid and effective that restoration occurs in most instances before permanent guy ropes are acquired. This is the reason that we attempt fairly soon—following the removal of some diseased organ—to restore peristalsis [bowel contraction]. Fortunately again, many of these affairs show a tendency to spontaneous recovery. They undergo the same recession as a scar and the very activity of the colon may obliterate many of them. We may regard them then as typical scars—the outgrowth of injury—and while they have no malign significance, yet we always are alert to their possible ill effects.

Because of our anxiety we are all too prone to attribute some trivial ache or pain to adhesions, when, in reality, a mild type of irritation within the bladder or bowel itself is to blame. In other words, we can infer their presence only when they give unmistakable signs that they are interfering with the functions of the abdominal structures. Intestinal obstruction is the factor that should be watched, and unless there is definite evidence of this disorder the reason for minor twinges must be sought for elsewhere.

Prevention is the end sought by every skilled surgeon and long ago the practice of introducing gases, oils, or waxes into the cavity was abandoned. Such measures were found ofttimes to bring on the difficulty rather than stop it. The main effort should be to establish contractions as soon after operation as may be considered safe, when adhesions—if they exist—will be dislodged. We can say with certainty that in a large majority of cases—even though they have formed—they will cause no disturbance of function or of sensation.

Many physicians are now advising X-ray exposures beginning with very light doses for the purpose of producing a firm thickening or toughening of these external linings. The irritation produced by radiation is sufficient to bring about only a slight degree of hardening, which is desirable. In a sense, the X-ray treatment acts as a sort of counterirritant. Furthermore, it may result in complete absorption of bands which still are fibrinous.

EXAMINATION IS ADVISED.

J. M. writes: I am 48 years old. Up to about a year ago my memory was very keen, but lately it has become faulty. I have particular difficulty in trying to find the correct words to use. Working conditions have not been changed. Is there something that needs correction?

REPLY.

Many people experience a mild slowing up of the mental processes as age advances. To be on the safe side, have an examination for possible circulatory disease or anemia. A simple correction of some blood condition may be all that is required. Is your nutrition at par?

TRY MASSAGE, TOO.

S. H. writes: Can you tell me something about cold, creepy flashes which occur in my legs several times a day? My physician says it is the circulation. He has ordered hot foot baths which have not benefited me so far.

REPLY.

In addition to hot applications add massage. I presume you have had a thorough physical examination and that no disease has been discovered. Such a symptom, as a rule, indicates lack of blood in the extremities. Sometimes, however, the condition has a nervous origin.

PROPERTY TRANSFER.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. A woman with two children owns a home and wishes to transfer said home to one of them. What should the procedure be in such case?

2. Is she, upon her death, compelled to leave any of her possessions to the other child?

3. If the home is given to the first child, would there be any legal difficulty after the mother's death?

I would appreciate your advice as I agreed to get this information for a good friend who wishes to give the home to the child who helped pay for same the last fifteen years and [4] does not want said child to have any trouble in the event she should pass away. D. E.

VERILY, AREN'T THEY?

Chicago, Dec. 2.—Who is he, this phenomenon, modern man? Women are besieged with advice on how to get and hold him! Their hands must be kept wonderfully soft and smooth. Their complexions must be suggestive of a rose petal. They must possess a bewitching smile, enchanting eyes, and wear a scent that will make them irresistible. They must be ever watchful of their diet; guard against the ravages of age; remain perennially youthful, and at all times be bright and cheery. Their whole being must be aglow in his presence. His roving eyes and appraising, furtive glances, scrutinizing with enviable deftness every minute detail of their conduct and appearance from finger tips to toes command perfect daintiness and exquisite grooming. Verily, they must be paragons of all the virtues, clothed in loveliness. MERE WOMAN.

THE COST OF AIRPORTS.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—The carrying of passengers, freight, and mail for profit is the business of those using the airport. Should we be taxed an additional $810,000 plus for the benefit of those users? Just as logical to build stations or terminals for railroads, shipping, trucks, and others at the citizens' expense.

How will we taxpayers gain by enlarging the airport? If it were possible for us citizens to refuse to be the goats would the favored business boycott Chicago? No, they would soon acquire what they needed to maintain and expand their service. C. L. HYNES.

LUCAS FOR SENATOR.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—John L. O'Brien says in the Voice of the People, "We need a man for senator who is a real true progressive, not merely a conformist to administration policies as Senator Dieterich has been. A real progressive will be a real liberal who can be counted on to vote his convictions."

Scott Lucas is just the man to meet Mr. O'Brien's ideal except for one thing. Scott Lucas will not vote his convictions, but the convictions of the majority of the people he represents.

I've known Scott Lucas for over ten years and have watched his actions from his first political job of state's attorney of Havana, Ill., to his present position as representative of Illinois. His sole thought seems to be to give the majority of the people he represents the laws they want and he does the utmost in his power to do just that.

Because of his honesty, his will to fight for anything to make living conditions better, Scott Lucas would make the ideal senator for Illinois.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT CENSUS.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—The generous coöperation of daily newspapers in the educational campaign covering the unemployment census proved exceedingly helpful to the government as well as to the many persons throughout the land interested, directly and indirectly, in the success of this undertaking.

The voluntary nature of the census made it essential to obtain a wide dissemination of information. The shortness of time, due to the necessity of getting this work out of the way before the Christmas rush in the postoffice department, made an intensive campaign necessary. That the educational campaign was effective is indicated by the fact that the telegraphic reports from fourteen typical cities show that the unemployment report cards were filled out with such accuracy that only 1 per cent required call backs. To this result daily newspapers made a major contribution.

The editorial coöperation of daily newspapers was likewise an important factor in obtaining public acceptance of the importance to the nation of getting the basic facts of unemployment as a preliminary step in a long range plan of reemployment.

Officially I acknowledge your part in this great public undertaking and, personally, I thank you.

JOHN D. BIGGERS,
Administrator, Census of Partial Unemployment, Unemployment, and Occupation.

RETAIL COAL LICENSES.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—I understand that the city of Chicago is going to put a $50 tax on all individual retail coal dealers. This tax is going to be unfair to us, because we only get five months of steady work out of the year. And if it goes through we may be obliged by the Coal Drivers and Helpers' union to join the union. The wholesale coal dealers only allow us $1.25 on Pocahontas mine run, and there is a 25 cent state sales tax to be taken out of the profit. If such a license is passed my family and I will have to go on the relief rolls and many others will be in the same condition. All of us coal dealers are against this license fee and we would like to prevent it from being passed.

Between the city license and the Coal Drivers' union and Coal Dealers' association the poor, who have only 30 cents to buy one bushel of coal, will sooner or later be forced to buy in ton or half ton lots only or go without heat.

LETTER TO CONGRESSMEN.

Waukegan, Ill., Dec. 1.—The only way our senators and congressmen can know what the people are thinking about or want is through letters, short and to the point, as they have no time to read long articles. If your readers will take the time to do this they will in all probability receive an answer to their letters and bring a pressure on our lawmakers. There is a common belief that we cannot do anything about it. I want to suggest that your readers try it because I know it works. H. C. PATTERSON.

ANOTHER POPULARITY CONTEST.

A WEALTHY client of Dorothy Liebes of San Francisco, the blonde and gifted weaver woman, who was in town last week, and whose hand woven textiles are being shown in the art museums of the country, took her through his large house and asked for her suggestions as to new drapery and upholstery fabrics. Mrs. Liebes rapturously outlined color schemes for the various rooms and talked about pinky beiges and warm grays and how well her delphinium textile with blue and green strands interwoven would look here and her magenta and Guatemalan yellow would look there. She asked for further time to think over the rooms. Then her client said he had a confession to make.

"See this?" he said, flipping his tie out from his vest and pointing to the under side, where "No. 35" was plainly marked. "I'm color blind," he said in answer to her look of inquiry. "My tailor sews numbers in all my suits and ties, and if I put on suits and ties with corresponding numbers I don't get my colors all wrong. So you'll have to use your own judgment about the coloring, but I did want to hear it all described."

A CHARMING young woman interested in art addressed M. Boutet de Monvel, the painter, who has been in Chicago and Lake Forest the last few days.

"I did so admire that picture of yours—now, what was it? . . . the one Mrs.——" She turned helplessly to her husband. "Dear, what was the name of the woman who has the painting by Mr. De Monvel I liked so much, the name of which I can't remember?"

MORGAN JONES, member of parliament for the Caerphilly division of Morganshire, South Wales, who is in town lecturing for a few days, tells the story of the visitor to a town in South Wales who observed that the entire town turned out for church on Sunday. Observing the crowds pouring into the church, he commented on the religious ardor of the townfolk.

"O, it's not religion," said his companion. "They're betting on the number of the first hymn."

A LINE in this space last week called attention to the 1937 concert fan—the timpani player in the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, who, when the orchestra played in Chicago with Rachmaninoff as soloist, popped up to snap camera shots of the pianist while he was bowing to the applause. Seems it isn't a 1937 concert note, after all. One of the men in the Philharmonic took a number of such shots of Arturo Toscanini and made up a booklet of them for a present for him when he retired from the Philharmonic in 1936.

GOOD FELLOWS PLAN 2 PARTIES TO RAISE FUNDS

Marek Weber Will Play for Tea-Dance Friday.

The Good Fellow movement to furnish Christmas baskets to underprivileged children will gather further momentum this week with two events.

Marek Weber.

On Friday afternoon, Marek Weber, Viennese violinist, and his orchestra will give a Good Fellow tea-dance in the new Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel. The entire proceeds will go to the Good Fellow fund. Mr. Weber will play a number of violin solos dedicated to the youngsters who are to be remembered by the Good Fellows. Otto K. Eitel, hotel manager, will oversee the filling of the Good Fellow baskets provided by the tealiance.

Aviation Good Fellows to Meet.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon, the Aviation Good Fellows will meet in the National Guard Officers' club at 3932 South Cicero avenue. They will go over plans for the annual Good Fellow party to be held at 10 a. m., Dec. 23, in the auditorium of the Chicago airport.

Capt. Ora W. Young, acting supervising inspector of the bureau of air commerce, is chairman of the Aviation Good Fellows.

A Big Heart and $5 Needed.

All you need to be a Good Fellow is a heart as big as all outdoors and about $5. For that is the cost of a basket of food, toys, and candy. And for the name of that family we suggest you get it from the Chicago Tribune's Good Fellow bureau at 1 South Dearborn street in this newspaper's Public Service office. The phone number is Superior 0100. Or, if it is more convenient, fill in the Good Fellow coupon which accompanies this story and mail it in to the bureau.

It is well to get your Good Fellow family early, as many like to visit them now and find out just what best to put in the basket. It helps, too, in the selection of toys for the children.

ABBOTT SURFACE LINES COMMITTEE REPORTS TODAY

A discussion of the feasibility of swift action toward unification of Chicago's local transportation system is expected today in the court of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who is to hear a report of the Abbott committee on reorganization of the Chicago Surface lines.

Several months ago Judge Wilkerson warned the Abbott group that its plan would have to fit in with the city's general scheme for modern transit facilities. Otherwise, he intimated, he might select another reorganization medium. Indications have been given that the Abbott committee will argue its plan can be carried out satisfactorily.

Mayor Kelly and Hugh Young, chief engineer for the Chicago plan commission, will speak on the proposed traction consolidation plan tomorrow at a luncheon of the North Central association in the Drake hotel.

ONLY 100 ATTEND FINAL SHOW BY CIRCUS TROUPE

The Performers' Benefit circus closed at the Coliseum last night after its third performance to raise money for members of troupes that were stranded here last week by failure of the Circus of the World, sponsored by the Chicago Milk Fund association.

Only 100 persons braved the cold weather to attend the final show.

Profit for the three performances was estimated at $235 which was divided into 96 equal shares, each actor and property man receiving something less than $2.50. Plans were were being made to seek further aid for the indigent circus folk through radio appeals.

Brocades Give Luxury Touch to Yule Gifts

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The luxury touch and modest price marks make gifts from the orient desirable finds of the Christmas season. For sums under $5 you'll gasp at the assortment. Some of the loveliest brocade bags start at this low mark. They're unusual in shape, exquisitely made, and lined with shimmering fabrics that are seldom duplicated in any two bags. The more expensive [and worth every penny] have handsome jeweled clasps and the like.

If you want to apparel any thick telephone book in splendor this season, you'll like the brocaded covers. The desk gadgets include brocaded folios and blotter pads. But to our mind the prize finds are the intriguing boxes of varying size and unusual shapes, swathed in beautiful mellow toned Chinese brocades. All of these are low in price for such distinctive gift possibilities.

No woman ever has enough lingerie cases. Therefore hosiery cases, folders for facial tissues, the flat long glove folder, and the square handkerchief cases provide the answers for names on your list. All are priced under $5. Some of the folders and cases make splendid travel extras, too.

The magnificent ceremonial robes of hand painted heavy silk are luxury gifts without equal. Less spectacular are the stunning quilted robes of heavy silk brocade, semi-fitted and cut with dashing wide chest revers. These come in flattering colors—jade green, tea rose, and rust.

Amusing and gay are the miniature kimonos. These are printed in cheery colors on pure silk crêpe. They have the long sleeves, just like kimonos for adults, and come in sizes 5 to 12. These also bear moderate price marks.

One of the best gifts in town for the difficult person on your list is the amateur garden and flower set. All the handware it takes to keep a good garden is fitted into a case.

Address books, cigaret cases, match folders, book marks, coin purses, comb and case, all made of colorful brocades, are small but individual pieces that are plentiful and unusually low in price.

No Deodorant Ever Should Be Substitute for the Bath

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"No amount of deodorizing will serve as a substitute for a good old-fashioned bath!"

When a line like that is expressed by a manufacturer whose mainstay is a well known brand of deodorant, you may be sure that there is no substitute for the bath.

Here is where the work of these modern blessings, liquid non-perspirants and their allies, the powder and cream deodorants, comes in. The use of one or another of the safeguards becomes as essential a part of the daily beauty routine as does the bath.

With the appearance of colder weather a woman often may think she does not need the same vigilance in this regard. This is a false assumption and a dangerous one.

It's true that people perspire more in hot weather, when temperatures soar and humidity is high, but the normal body exudes anywhere from a pint to a quart of perspiration every day of the year, regardless of the weather, so that this body dampness always is a problem and, in some ways, is more urgent in winter than in summer.

The cool clothes that we wear in the summer months allow much of the perspiration to evaporate. There are no tight sleeves and armholes, no heavy fabrics to absorb the moisture. Another summer advantage is that perspiration has no odor when it comes to an open surface and is immediately evaporated. Odor arises only when it is allowed to grow stale on the body or the clothes. With the cold weather come tweeds and woolens, sweaters, and heavy suits.

Sweaters, especially, are cut to cling to the figure, particularly in the hollow beneath the arm. The result is that perspiration comes to the surface of the underarm, meets heavy wool, and is immediately absorbed by the material, where it remains, giving off a most offensive odor. So an underarm liquid non-perspirant becomes necessary as a safety measure or some one of the other equally efficacious modern methods we have of eliminating offense.

We read some statistical survey reports the other day which would indicate that bathing suffers considerably in cold weather as a daily habit. Surprising that the bath ever should be looked upon as a seasonal enterprise! But a word to the wise being sufficient, especially on a subject that is one of the least pleasant to write about, that's all we'll say today.

'Must' Bills a Form of Tyranny, 'Asserts Prof. David Muzzey

David S. Muzzey, professor of history at Columbia university and widely known among American youth for his high school history text books, yesterday told the Chicago Ethical society that "must" legislation is tyranny. The society meets each Sunday morning in the Studebaker theater.

"Must legislation seeks short cuts," said Prof. Muzzey. "It discounts discussion. It avoids important considerations of sectional and individual differences. We must be alert and vigilant that we do not fall into the error of thinking that we must either be communistic or fascistic."

Lively Hansel Again Ushers in Yule Music

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Humperdinck's "Hänsel and Gretel," traditionally a holiday opera, has brightened exactly forty-four Christmases on this planet. It was sung in English yesterday at the Civic Opera house to begin the city's 1937 Christmas musical season and to acquaint the children of a new generation with the unfading beauties of its story and its music.

On the fairy tale of the brother and sister who were lost in the wood and who underwent divers experiences with a sandman, a dewman, a witch and a gingerbread house, Humperdinck has lavished music which is full to bursting of the open-hearted poetry of childhood. Its melodies are jolly and infectious one minute, sweetly grave the next.

Singing the rôle of the brother was Maria Matyas, widely known for her successful enactments of boys' parts and a veteran of some hundreds of "Hänsels." She makes a saucy and likable peasant boy, overacts the part a little but gives it the benefit of her rich, accurate vocalism. And Miss Matyas is tremendously agile. She scoots around the stage like the 12 year old she is impersonating.

Eunice Steen, jaunty in tattered muslins, sang Gretel with a pleasant open voice quality and a stage demeanor which fitted the part. The blend in the second act Prayer was exquisitely calculated. May Barron made a thoughtful, heavy hearted, and vocally expressive mother. Her husband was confident and sonorous Mark Love, only made in the cast.

Sonia Sharnova sacrificed all considerations of personal appearance to enact as weird and frightening a witch as ever rode a broomstick through the skies or smacked her lips over paunchy children. And she endowed her voice with a shrill querulousness well suited to the rôle.

The sandman and the dewman, respectively, were the charge of Elizabeth Brown and Louisa Hoe. Leo Kopp conducted. The performance went off quite nicely, if you will overlook some minor difficulties in synchronization in the first act, and a few spots where the balance of stage and pit forces could have been improved.

OPERA STARS IN RECITAL

BY CECIL SMITH.

Elisabeth Rethberg and Lauritz Melchior, both old acquaintances at the opera house, appeared together in recital at the Auditorium theater yesterday afternoon. The concert was the second in a distinguished series sponsored by Northwestern university.

Mr. Melchior sang with such artistic integrity that any comment upon the increasingly odd quality of his voice — especially his husky pianissimo—is really extraneous. He knows how to shape a phrase, how to build a climax, and how to make a compelling unity out of each song. Since his American career has been almost exclusively concerned with Wagnerian opera, it was something of a revelation to discover that his less pretentious undertakings are illumined by the same musical insight and maturity of style.

By making use of a soft volume Miss Rethberg kept her tone beautiful most of the time. Her full voice was no less strident than at the beginning of the opera season, however, and I fervently hope she will do something about it. As a recitalist she presents her music with a somewhat monotonous sameness of mood, although there is no gainsaying the sturdy and sound musical discipline underlying all she does.

The Great Northern theater was the scene yesterday afternoon of the usual weekly Illinois Symphony orchestra concert. Oscar Anderson, supervisor of instrumental music in the Chicago schools, conducted competently a program of works by Beethoven, Schubert, Saint-Saëns, Sowerby, and Johann Strauss. The soloist was Melvin Baddin, violinist, a talented youngster of 16 who is concertmaster of the Lane Technical High school orchestra.

An Inexpensive Gift Item

WOMAN'S AND MISS' APRON.

There still is time to make a few of those little, inexpensive but always acceptable gifts, presents which are doubly appreciated, because you created them with your own fingers. You undoubtedly have a great many women friends on your list who must be remembered with something useful, pretty, but not too lavish. The ideal solution to such gift-giving problems is the apron. Even girls in bachelor apartments need aprons, for they do a great deal of hostessing and preparing of their own single dinners after office hours.

The model offered in our pattern today is the simplest possible, styled to suit any type of figure. It's comfortable to wear and just as easy to sew as A-B-C. Simply a few snips of the scissors, a whir of the machine, the application of bias binding or rickrack, and the task is done in a few minutes flat. The garment may tie in the back or the sash may loop around again to the front, forming a graceful bow at the waistline.

Any type of washable material will make up well, since this garment is so tailored. Prints are equally as acceptable as plain shades. And think of the remnants you can pick up in the stores!

Style No. 3334 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. The medium size requires 1¼ yards of 35 inch material, with four yards of binding or rickrack.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—The young people of Washington closed the week with two merry and important parties, both in old residential circles. The most brilliant was the fancy dress ball given by the Sulgrave club by Mrs. Stapleton, formerly of Omaha, and her daughter, Miss Stellita Stapleton, who made her debut here three years ago. It was preceded by a number of dinner parties.

Another pretty party was at the North Wales club, Warrenton, Va., given by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hagner, nee Roebling, for the former's sister, Miss Marguerite Hagner, and her fiancé, Francis Moran McConihe. There were one hundred guests at dinner.

Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace gave a tea this afternoon for the officials of the agriculture department, in their apartment in the Wardman Park hotel.

Red, Chapped Rough Hands Healed Overnight

There is one sure way that has never failed to heal rough red chapped hands. The way Doctors, Dentists and Nurses do—and every one knows how important it is for them to keep their hands in good condition.

Hands get chapped, rough and red when essential skin elements are destroyed by harsh treatment and bad weather. The way, then, to heal them and to make them soft and white, is to replace these essential skin elements. To do this, get a jar of Mystic cream from any druggist or department store. Mystic cream supplies everything your skin needs to make it soft, smooth and white.

Apply Mystic cream at night before retiring. It is absorbed almost instantly. Mystic cream is not the least bit sticky or greasy, and it won't stain. Results are quick and sure. In most cases, hands are healed overnight.

No work will be too harsh. Bad weather won't bother you. You will always have soft, smooth, lovely hands if you get the habit of using Mystic cream. This simple treatment never fails.

BY JUDITH CASS.

INVITATIONS will go out this week to another gay Christmas holiday party, a tea-dance Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall G. Sampsell, and Robert Adams Carr will give on Dec. 21 in the Arts club for Miss Katherine Carr, Miss Martha Carr, and Miss Vesta Culbertson.

The Misses Carr are nieces of Mr. and Mrs. Carr and cousins of Mr. and Mrs. Sampsell [Margaret Carr] and Robert Carr. Miss Culbertson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace F. Kirk, is engaged to Robert F. Carr Jr., a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Carr.

The party is one of several that have been planned for Miss Martha Carr, a debutante of the season, and her sister, who are daughters of George R. Carr, and it will be one of many that will precede the wedding on Jan. 15 of "Babby" Culbertson and "Bobby" Carr. Miss Culbertson and Miss Laura Moyer will be the especial guests at a cocktail party Miss Virginia Anne Hodges will give on Dec. 23 in the Lake Shore drive apartment of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Hodges.

Also planned for the 21st is a tea-dance Mr. and Mrs. Telfer MacArthur will give in the Woman's Athletic club for their debutante daughter, Miss Dorothy MacArthur.

Mrs. Carpenter to Give Tea for Visitors.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter is giving a small tea Thursday in her Lake Shore drive home for the Zlatko Balokovics and Mrs. Ernest Ives. Mrs. Ives, who with her diplomat husband is spending his leave of absence in this country, will be visiting Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne for the Assembly on Friday and she will return to Chicago for Christmas as the guest of the Carpenters. The Balokovics, who were with the Carpenters a week or two ago when Mr. Balokovic played Mr. Carpenter's new violin concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, are returning to Chicago for a recital Mr. Balokovic will give Sunday afternoon in Orchestra hall.

THE place to be this afternoon is the Quest Art galleries, where, from 2:30 until 6 o'clock, there will be a private view of an exhibition of Children in American Folk Art. Tea will be served from 4 o'clock on with some of the youngest and most attractive of the directors of the Chicago Public School Art society assisting the president, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, in receiving and pouring.

The exhibition will include work done by children between 1725 and 1865 as well as portraits of children of that time and their toys. The exhibition created a furor in New York last spring and every one interested in art is looking forward to the exhibit here. The show will continue for two weeks, the proceeds going to the society which places pictures of esthetic and educational value in the public schools.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

It's a constant marvel to us, in our rôle of professional shopper, that gifts in good taste are available for such small sums. Wonderful country, this! Everything is styled these days, from the ten cent powder puff up to the perfume beyond price.

For your Christmas consideration we offer a trio of fine perfumes, in purse size flacons, assembled in one of the simplest, most stunning packages you can find. Here's beauty, assembled inexpensively.

For a few dollars you can present some one with three lovely perfumes, one a fine violet, another a floral blend, the third a blend of a different type. The three bottles are inserted in a circular platform base. Covering them is a transparent cylinder with three bright ribbons of blue, red and white, running from a ribbon covered button on the top down to the base. It's simple and smart—and ideal to tuck into the toe of a stocking.

The same house offers you a "tantalus" set of three generous sized bottles of their finest perfumes. The lovely perfumes are securely locked in a metal frame—and all are safe because opening of the bottles is barred until they are unlocked with a key. The frame is chrome, the bottles beautifully styled. There's nothing gadgety about this. It's as stuning a little piece as you could own or give.

Here, again, the perfumes are the kind she'll love. They're not new, but immensely popular the world over. More and more women are preferring their perfumes in variety, and love having a selection for the mood, the costume or the occasion.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Again Leslie Howard steps out of the sort of character he usually plays and gives us some good comedy.

Perhaps he was becoming tired of being "typed." However that may be, he handed us some refreshing laughs in his first serio clowning venture, "It's Love I'm After," and in "Stand In" he gives us some more money's worth.

In this story—originally from the pen of Clarence Budington Kelland—you are treated to the unusual sight of Hollywood's looking at itself in a glass darkly, and, frankly, not liking what it sees. That beautiful face is marred by blotches of extravagance; the eyes have a slight cast of treachery and there is a disconcertingly vapid expression caused by constant and often useless activity.

To this Hollywood comes Mr. Atterbury Dodd, financial wizard of Wall street, working in the interests of the stockholders of Colossal Pictures, Ltd. He is there to find out WHY Colossal is beating against rocks instead of being on crests of waves . . . And discovers that a Mr. Nassau, who absorbs independent companies as soon as they become successful, is the big bad blow that's the reason.

The adventures of Mr. Dodd, who doesn't drink, dance, or mess around in any conceivable way, are remarkable. While his trained mind is an instant detector of the phony, it is still just a mind drilled along only certain lines. A little Miss Plum, fading stand in for a fading and two-timing star, teaches him the difference between "units" and people—and lights a fire under the robot.

The satire unreels, for the most part amusingly, to the patter of pretty good dialog. It is well staged.

Joan Blondell brings a lot to the rôle of Miss Plum—who becomes Mr. Dodd's secretary. A most unusual one—for she memorizes notes instead of taking them down in shorthand, and the boss finds to his amazement that she can do same the while apparently absorbed in the acts of making her red lips redder and the seams in her stockings straighter.

Humphrey Bogart as an honest producer is good. Maybe he too was getting tired of being "typed."

Cast performances are all excellent and the director was onto his job.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

The Week's Wash

Palm Springs, Cal., Dec. 5.—For the past nine weeks, or ever since I've been on the coast, I've been anxious to see Palm Springs, famous desert resort about 125 miles out of Los Angeles. Over the week-end the wish came true and as your reporter pointed the car toward the desert, he was very happy. The day was beautiful, the birds were singing, Sunset boulevard was gay with Christmas decorations and Milton Bren had turned over his house to us.

It was in this happy frame of mind that your reporter sped along, and suddenly a siren sounded directly behind him. "Sullivan, huh?" said the motorcycle cop. "My name's Sweeney." We smiled pleasantly at each other. "Been out here long?" he asked cheerily, pulling a little pad out of his pocket. "Do you need a pencil?" I asked, not to be outdone in courtesy of the road. "How tall are you, Mr. Sullivan?" he asked. "How tall are you?" I said, charmed at the unusual turn the conversation had taken. "About 5 feet 9," he said. So using him as a yardstick I computed my height at 5 feet 10½. "Blue eyes," he commented, interestingly, and at this delicate touch, your reporter blushed.

Still smiling, Sweeney gave Sullivan, his astounded Irish compatriot, a ticket for doing 60 miles an hour in a 45 mile zone, but let it be said that I've never been pinched more pleasantly.

L. B. Mayer's resignation from M. G. M., with a year to go on his contract, was the big news of the week-end. . . . R.-K.-O., Universal, and Paramount seem to be the logical spots for him. . . . Universal could use his bank roll. . . . To take the edge off Hollywood's rebuff of young Mussolini, Hal Roach is sending Jean Negulesco to Rome to write for Italian flickers. . . . Andrea Leeds and Ken Murray are an item. . . . Mrs. Nathan Burkan's wedding to Dr. Weiss confirms a scoopee in this space. . . . Twentieth Century-Fox will show a $10,000,000 profit this year. . . . Jack Benny's next picture was sold to Paramount by Eddie Cantor for $20,000. . . . The Thelma Todd murder has been compressed between book covers as a mystery yarn. . . . Claire Trevor's honey is Bentley Ryan. . . . Ben Blue is taking up his option on Paula Dekardos. . . . Ditto Fred Keating and Paula Stone. . . . Jack Warner Jr. is making passes at Diana Lewis.

Why aren't Claudette Colbert and Marlene Dietrich speaking? . . . Paramount will deny the well founded rumor that Adolph Zukor is to step out Jan. 1. . . . Myrna Loy, M. G. M.'s biggest money maker in the last twelve months, will be rewarded with a terrific contract. . . . The George Raft-Virginia Peine idyl has been wrecked by a prominent director, and it looks like curtains. . . . Billy Bakewell's crush of the week is Norma Saylor, a Beverly deb. . . . U. S. C. undergrads are burning up at Ginger Rogers for refusing to lead a cheer at Saturday's game after Pat O'Brien and Judy Garland did.

Judy Garland Leads a Cheer.

To pacify the indignant letter writers, Groucho Marx is growing a mustache for "Room Service." . . . Robert Young's appeal to Tecumseh in "Navy Blue and Gold" is one of the finer moments of 1937 celluloid. . . . Alice Brady and Allen Fairman are like-a-this-a. . . . Best poker players out here are Joe Schenck and Irving Berlin, who never met in a game. . . . "It cost me $75,000 to learn," says Schenck. "The first big money I ever made was at Palisades Amusement park, in Jersey—$100,000. I lost most of it in a poker game in a saloon at 119th street and 3d avenue." . . . Harry Richman goes into Chicago's Chez Paree Christmas week. . . . Most startling development of the national Movie King and Queen poll was the strength displayed by Robert Taylor and his honeybunch, Barbara Stanwyck. . . . Champions elected by fans in 55 cities will receive their crowns on the M. G. M. coast-to-coast hookup over NBC Thursday night.

Before pulling out for Chicago, Barney Balaban bit a chunk out of the coast dice tables. . . . "Half Moon on the Hudson," which Tony Martin and Alice Faye will warble in the Fred Allen picture, is part of the grand score penned by two newcomers, Spina and Bullock. . . . What happened to the movie extra racket story? . . . Florence Eldridge is getting all the notices in the Fredric March show, which pleases him immensely. . . . Theirs is one of the nicer marriages out here, and March turned down story after story because his part was TOO good! He wanted her to take all the bows.

Recommended: Joel McCrea, Frances Dee and Bob Burns in "Wells Fargo." . . . Miss Dee [Mrs. McCrea to you] in this picture emerges as one of the real breath-takers of the industry. . . . "Tovarich," which elicited raves here as superior to the Broadway stage play, isn't. . . . The performances of Marta Abba and John Halliday were better by far, for my money, than the performances of Charles Boyer and Claudette Colbert. . . . The stage version was better because it was keyed much lower.

Californians and Floridians engage in bitter battles over the relative merits of Palm Springs and Miami Beach. . . . Perhaps the disinterested views of a New Yorker may shed some light on the sectional issue of the two winter resorts. . . . In the first place, outside of a similarity in daytime heat, there is no common yardstick to apply. . . . Because of the mountains that surround Palm Springs, the sun goes down between 3 and 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon and nightfall occurs at 5:30. . . . The air then turns chilly and topcoats are in order. . . . All bathing at Palm Springs, because of its desert location, is in pools of artificially heated spring water contrasted to Miami's ocean bathing, which is unsurpassed on either side of the ocean. . . . Californians' strongest argument is that their famous winter resort is only three hours distant from Los Angeles, hotel prices are much more reasonable and the whole set-up more restful. . . . But it actually is as silly to compare the two as it would be to argue about chocolate and vanilla . . . or how high is up!

RUN!

By Patricia Wentworth

[Copyright: 1937: By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull.]

SYNOPSIS.

Delivering a new car to a customer, James Elliot, lost in the fog, finds himself on some one's estate. Groping his way to the dark house he stumbles over a bicycle. The front door is ajar. Entering, his flashlight reveals a girl, who commands him to "run!" A shot whistles after them as they flee to hide in the hayloft. The girl tells James she was searching for a necklace her dying Aunt Clementa had told her was hidden in the house. The girl vanishes before James can learn more. At his cousin Daphne's party James meets the girl. She is Sally West, the sister of his college chum, Jocko West. She hints of danger to him—because of what he saw—her brother and herself. Sally is terror-stricken when Ambrose Sylvester, the novelist, and his wife, Hildegarde, arrive. Jackson, a rival salesman, takes credit for driving the car the night of the fog and is run over on the road and killed.

INSTALMENT XIII.

THE WRONG VICTIM.

"There is some satisfaction in thinking that poor Jackson was killed instantly. Probably never knew he'd been hit," said Mr. Parkinson. "Only what took him down into the country like that is what I don't understand. Walking, too—must have been to be run down in that way. I should never have put Jackson down as a walker myself."

Mr. Parkinson continued to hold forth, but James only heard the sound of his voice. His mind was occupied with a most insistent fact.

Jackson never walked. The idea of his leaving town for the purpose of taking exercise in the dark along a country lane was purely fantastic. Even old Parkinson was finding it difficult to swallow. Somebody else could believe it if they liked, but to James it was a sheer impossibility. He followed Miss Callender into her little office, stood with his back against the door, and said abruptly:

"What was the name of those people who telephoned—the firm of solicitors?"

Miss Callender sat down because her knees were shaking.

"Now, Mr. Elliot, you promised—"

"It was Hazeby, Meredith & Hazeby, wasn't it?"

Miss Callender's large blue eyes were frightened. Her brightly made-up lips took an obstinate line.

"I'm not saying anything—I told you I wasn't."

"That was what you did say."

He took pencil and paper off her table and wrote the names down. Then he stood back against the door again.

"Now look here—these people rang up and Jackson took the call. But are you sure that he hadn't stopped talking to Hazeby and got on to some one else by the time he was making that appointment?"

"I'm not saying anything at all," said Miss Callender firmly. "I'm not going to get drawn in—I told you I wasn't."

"Well, I don't believe you heard anything. I don't believe you could possibly follow what was said at the other end of the line."

"Well then, I could!"

James made an unbelieving face. The telephone bell rang.

"All right," said Miss Callender, "you take this call. And you go away as far as the cord will let you like Mr. Jackson did, and see if I can't tell you what they're saying on the other end."

The cord took him some four feet away. He said, "Hullo!" and then, "Speaking." And then after a pause, "Yes, that's right. . . . Yes, tonight if you can. . . . Thank you."

He hung up the receiver, and Miss Callender tossed her head.

"That was Luca's, and they're sending off the coil and distributor for Mr. Haydon's Lagonda. Well?"

James laughed scornfully.

"You just chanced that. You knew they were to ring up."

"Well, then, I didn't! And I heard what he was saying—every word. And I heard what that Mr. Hazeby said to Mr. Jackson, all except a bit here and there like I told you."

"Look here, Daisy, will you swear Jackson made that appointment with Hazeby?"

"Well, he did. And if you're going to call me a liar, we shan't be friends any longer!" She had a bright natural color in her cheeks and she looked very pretty.

"I'm not calling you a liar. I just thought he might have switched over to someone else without your noticing."

"Well, he didn't!"

"You're sure about that?"

"Of course I'm sure! That Mr. Hazeby said he was to be outside the B. B. C. and wear a buttonhole because the young lady wouldn't be sure of him on account of only having met him in such a fog. And he said—Mr. Jackson did—that he couldn't be sure of getting a buttonhole so late, so he'd carry his handkerchief instead, and Mr. Hazeby said that would be all right. And I'm not gong into any court to swear about it, but I could, because it's true."

James had got what he wanted. If you made a girl angry, she'd blab anything. He said in a pacific voice:

"I don't want to make you do anything."

Miss Callender produced a handkerchief and dabbed at her eyes.

"I've had a most awful row with Lenny, and I just don't feel I can stand any more, Mr. Elliot."

James felt some remorse.

"I say, I'm most awfully sorry. What's it all about?"

Daisy Callender gulped.

"Sometimes I wonder if I'm doing right marrying anyone so jealous as Lenny is. I just happened to say we were all quite worried about Mr. Jackson not turning up—yesterday, you know—and there he goes off the deep end. You mean you're worried, he said, and then a lot about my thinking more about other men than I would about him if he didn't turn up, and how I needn't think he'd break his heart if I changed my mind, because if there were other men in the world, there were other girls, too, and if poor Mr. Jackson was so good-looking, he wasn't the only one—only he didn't say poor Mr. Jackson.

"Well, you know how they go on, Mr. Elliot. And I'm sure if I'd known what Lenny was like, I'd never have said how good-looking Mr. Jackson was, because he's got a most terribly jealous disposition, and there's no getting away from it. So I can't help wondering whether it's worth it—marrying Lenny, I mean—because there's always the chance Mrs. Rowbotham mightn't like it with her friend, and if she said she was coming to us and Lenny said she could, well, I don't see what I could do about it, Mr. Elliot—do you? Once we were married, I mean."

"I should think it over," said James. "You're quite sure it was the car I took out for Colonel Pomeroy that Mr. Hazeby was asking about?"

"Well, he said so."

"He used Colonel Pomeroy's name?"

"No, of course, he didn't. But he said it was a foggy day—the day before yesterday it was when he telephoned, which would make it the fourteenth—and he said Sussex, so I suppose I've got enough sense to add that up, and if it doesn't come out to the car you took out for Colonel Pomeroy—"

"You're quite sure he said those things, Daisy—the fog, and Sussex, and the fourteenth?"

"Yes, I'm sure," said Miss Callender crisply. "But I'm not going to say so to any one but you, so don't you think I am, Mr. Elliot. And if you want your lunch you'd better be going out for it, because that Mr. Hartley's coming in just after two, and I suppose he'll want to try half a dozen cars and go away and think about them like he did last time."

James went out to lunch. He had a plate of cold beef and a cup of coffee, and he did a lot of thinking. Daisy Callender kept adding bits on to the telephone conversation she said she had overheard, but he didn't think she was inventing them. Girls were like that, you never got the whole story at once. They kept thinking of new bits and tacking them on, like trimming a dress, but it didn't necessarily mean that they were making them up. It was just the way their minds worked.

And this was where James had to make himself face what he had been avoiding ever since Daisy Callender had told him that the police had found Jackson dead. He had to face the suspicion that Jackson was dead because he had claimed to have driven the car into Sussex under a trade number on the foggy afternoon of the fourteenth. But it wasn't Jackson, who has driven the car, it was James Elliot. If the suspicion was true, it amounted to this, that Jackson had died instead of James Elliot.

Any plump apple is good baked, but most cooks prefer to bake the large, tart apples rather than the sweet juicy delectables which are so good eaten raw.

This year brings a bumper crop of apples into the markets. And there are many kinds: Apples for nibbling; apples to give the kiddies between meals; apples for sauces, pies, and cobblers; apples for baking.

Baked Apples with Pineapple.
[Serves Six.]

6 baking apples
12 whole cloves
1 cup pineapple bits or crushed pineapple
6 tablespoons sugar
½ cup water

Core apples and peel the upper half of each. Stick 2 cloves in top of each apple. Stuff cavities with drained pineapple and sprinkle 1 tablespoon sugar over each. Pour water around stuffed apples in a baking dish and bake at 375 degrees for forty minutes. Baste occasionally with the liquid during baking.

Sausage Stuffed Apples.
[Serves Six.]

6 large, tart apples
1 cup bulk sausage or 6 link sausages
Salt
Brown sugar

Core and hollow the apples, leaving a shell ¾ inch thick. Chop the removed pulp and combine with sausage if bulk sausage is used. Peel the skin around the top of each apple. Stuff apples with sausage and sprinkle salt and brown sugar over the peeled surface. Place in pan with a little water and bake in a 375 degree oven until the apples are tender, basting frequently.

Date and Nut Stuffed Apples.
[Serves Six.]

6 large baking apples
12 dates, sliced
¼ cup finely chopped nuts
¾ cup sugar
1½ cups water

Core apples and remove a wide strip of peel from the stem end. Stuff cavities with dates and nuts. Dissolve sugar in the water in a baking pan. Place apples in pan and bake at 375 degrees until the apples are tender, basting with the sirup in the pan. Pour sirup over apples when ready to serve.

Baked Apples and Sweet Potatoes.
[Serves 4.]

2 large baking apples, halved
¼ cup sugar
½ cup water
2 large sweet potatoes, cooked and mashed

Scoop out cores of apples. Cook sugar and water together for five minutes and pour the sirup around the apple halves in a baking dish. Pile seasoned mashed potatoes into the hollows and over the surfaces of the apples, and bake at 375 degrees until apples are tender, basting several times with sirup.

Basket Pattern with Poppies Is a Popular Quilt

Basket of Poppies.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Basket patterns have few equals in popularity in the quilt world, either in pieced or applique work. They are exceedingly effective on any bed, and all types of flowers may be used with the baskets, or baskets may be used alone. "Basket of Poppies" is one of the favorite patterns in the poppy group because of its gay, cheerful colors. Orange and tan form the color combination for the basket, while a harmonizing shade of red is used for the flower. The black stitching adds a striking note. The finished block measures 17½ inches, and the applique blocks are set together in an alternate arrangement with white blocks in a diagonal manner.

Play Really Important in Child's Life

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

No matter how much you may care about your homemaking [or your career, if you're a mother with a definite talent]—no matter how absorbed you may become in your business or profession [if you're a father]—you neither care more nor are absorbed more in your pursuits than your child is in his play.

And neither is your work or your profession any more important to you than play is to your young son or daughter. Play is the business as well as the joy of their lives. Through it they not only experience pleasure but they learn a thousand things.

They learn, through play, gradually and increasingly to use their hands; they gain balance and control of their whole body. They learn to use judgment, patience, self-control. They experience, through play, success and failure. They learn to concentrate and to play alone; they learn to play sociably with other children.

Play isn't just a time-using or time wasting occupation; play isn't "just play," it's the big business of the children's lives. It should be encouraged.

For another thing, they should be provided with a place to play and that doesn't mean necessarily a playroom but a place in the house where they are welcome to play freely, without their playthings being considered a nuisance and without being accused of "messing up the house" and making work for mother. And they should have toys and all sorts of other materials to play with.

Take Over Counters to Raise Funds.

Emerson House association has hit upon a novel idea for raising money this year. The members will take over the Collector's corner at A. Starr Best and for one week, beginning today, they will help with sales and receive a percentage of all that is sold. This afternoon at 3:30 the association, whose president is Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins, will initiate the project at a tea. Those who will assist with the tea and also throughout the week are Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Mrs. Solomon B. Smith, Miss Elizabeth Smith, Mrs. William M. Collins Jr., Mrs. Morrison Waud, Miss Barbara Bastien, and Mrs. Byron S. Harvey Jr.

The Service club has invited the following young women, all of whom took part in its recent revue, to become members: Mrs. Barbara Emerson, Miss Barbara Hess, Miss Mary Armstrong, Miss Louise Galbraith, Miss Susan Ballard, Miss Mardi Burnham, Mrs. George Winterbotham, Mrs. Frank Davis, Miss Peggy Sargent, Miss Eleanor Wilson, Miss June Nelson, Miss Eleanor Reid, Miss Ellen Munster, Miss Anne Loeber, and Miss Patricia Jane Kelly. A general meeting and election of officers of the club will be held this morning in the Saddle and Cycle club.

Wives of Pennsylvania Grads Hold Tea Today.

Mrs. Paul B. Magnuson, Mrs. Magnuson Jr., Mrs. Ernest Ballard, Mrs. Cecil I. Crouse, Mrs. John Walter Miller, Mrs. Lucius A. Andrew Jr., Mrs. Howard Emig, Mrs. Horace E. Newcomet, Miss Marion Newcomet, Mrs. Arnold D. K. Mason, Mrs. John V. Taylor Jr., and Mrs. R. Martin Stevenson are some of the twenty-five women, wives of graduates of the University of Pennsylvania, who will have tea in the Woman's Athletic club this afternoon with Mrs. John Dern. They will discuss plans for helping their husbands entertain the university's dramatic association, the Masque and Wig, when it comes to Chicago to give a performance the night of Dec. 29 in the Civic Opera house. After the show the Chicago Pennsylvania club is giving a dance in the Bal Tabarin in the Sherman hotel.

This afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Girls' Latin school the executive committee and workers in the school's $100,000 building fund drive will meet. Joseph T. Ryerson, chairman, has already announced more than $40,000 in gift subscriptions, and it is expected this total will be swelled materially by reports at the meeting.

Besides Mr. Ryerson the executive committee for the drive includes Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson, Mrs. William C. Parsons, Mrs. John L. Cochran, Mrs. Cyrus G. Hill, Mrs. Robert C. Orr, Hopewell L. Rogers, Henry Taurot Jr., Darrow B. Fulton, and William Bartholomay Jr.

University School Seniors Plan Dance.

The senior class of the University school for Girls will give its Christmas dance on Dec. 17 in the school. Miss Marjorie Paschen is in charge, assisted by Miss Bird Littlefield, Miss Maxine Bullis, Miss Alma Levinson, and Miss Barbara Ellis. All of the upper school girls have been invited to the dance.

The annual meeting and luncheon of the Evanston Infant Welfare juniors will be held today in the Georgian hotel, Evanston. Mrs. Robert M. Grier is the retiring president of the organization.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 5.—(AP)—W. Reginald Watkins, Maryland Art institute teacher who contends Baltimore Art museum juries select "outlandishly childish stuff," disclosed today a jury had picked for exhibition a water color picture of a mill by his 10 year old son did five years ago. "I had only preserved it as a souvenir of a childish endeavor," said Watkins.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

The first National Self-Rating Bridge Examination is over, and I must say that I am enthusiastic over the results. Although the examination was essentially a self-rating device, some 1,200 readers scattered from one corner of the country to the other took advantage of my offer to grade their answers and set their final mark. Naturally, this will take me a few weeks, but, as soon as possible, certificates bearing the final grade and class [master, expert, or advanced] will be mailed.

Now for the announcement as to the method of classification. Readers will have noticed, of course, that the demerit and credit system employed makes it possible for contestants to end with a final mark over 100. Obviously, then, this figure 100 does not refer to a percentage grading. Instead it is a sort of "par," just as 72 or thereabouts is the par for a golf course. There is nothing to prevent a champion golfer from breaking par by several strokes, and nothing to prevent a bridge master from going over par in an examination such as that just conducted. Hence, after the most careful weighing of each individual question and the part attached thereto, I have set up the following table as the most accurate and definitive possible:

Dub	Below 50
Weak average	51-60, inclusive
Middling	61-75, inclusive
Post-graduate	76-89, inclusive
Expert	90-99, inclusive
Master	100 and over

My fact finding has not yet been completed, but one thing I already have learned from a superficial reading of the answers sent in, that is that the average player bids too conservatively, also that he is inclined to dodge responsibility in close decisions by "passing the buck" to partner whenever possible. Later this week I will prove my point by referring to questions that brought this particular trait to light.

TODAY'S HAND.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

The team that bid as above did not do so well on this board! West opened a low diamond and declarer could run only eight tricks before relinquishing the lead to the club ace, whereupon he was swamped with West's established diamonds.

I report this bidding so that I can agitate against it. Duplicate players are much too inclined to play every hand in no trump. Admittedly, it is wise to lean in that direction, but when the responder can see that a game in partner's major suits is virtually certain [as South should have seen with this hand] it is ridiculous to forget all principles of rubber bridge in deference to so-called duplicate philosophy. South's additional reason for responding with no trump rather than a strong spade raise was that he "wanted all of his kings and tenaces led up to rather than through." This theory also has merit but only to an extent that does not conflict with the sounder theory that, given a good fitting suit, it is almost always possible to make at least one more trick with that suit as trump than at no trump.

It is true that in this hand there was an unfortunate duplication of doubletons in the diamond suit, but even had North held three diamonds to the queen and only two clubs, spades would have been a much better contract than no trump. As the cards lay, obviously the bid of five spades was cold, and three no trump unmakeable.

The Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Electrical devices make household tasks light and easy. One of the most efficient and best looking waffle irons we've seen is run by electricity, and would make an acceptable Christmas present to newlyweds.

It is of gleaming silver metal, with handles of walnut. A broad tray to which the waffle iron is attached prevents spilling. This base is insulated. There is a heat indicator which shows when the grids are ready. The price is extremely reasonable.

For information about this item telephone Edith Weigle, Tribune Public Service office, Superior 0100.

HAWKS LOSE TO CANADIENS, 3-2; DROP TO THIRD

POOR DEFENSE COSTS CHICAGO TWO GOAL LEAD

Drouin Breaks Tie in Third Period.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Montreal Canadiens last night spotted the perplexed Blackhawks to a 2 to 0 lead at Chicago stadium, then speeded up to give them a 3 to 2 spanking before 13,000 of the faithful. The Chicagoans plunked back into third place in the American division standings as the result of their foldup.

The Hawks played brilliantly until they had acquired that 2 to 0 lead in 3:44 of the second period, but seemed to curl after Toe Blake had nudged away Marty Burke with a gentle flick of his elbow to shoot a leisurely goal. Blake's maneuver, which made Burke such a pathetic figure, was scored in 16:08 and was followed in 1 minute 57 seconds by the tying counter, in which the Hawk defense, almost always negligible because of the necessity of using Seibert as a sort of old fashioned rover, again was outsmarted by the visitors.

Drouin Decides It.

The winning goal was scored by Polly Drouin late in the third period because the Hawks were outskated and overpowered, the helplessness of the Hawk defense line not being especially emphasized on this occasion.

The two goals which for some time led the Hawks to believe they might score their first victory of the year from a Canadian division team, were scored by Louie Trudell, assisted by Johnny Gottselig and by Paul Thompson, assisted by Seibert and Roger Jenkins.

With Lepine and Levinsky in the penalty box, Trudell engineered a sally which Cude was able to turn back only through great dexterity. The puck then went to the Hawk end of the rink, but Trudell and Gottselig fetched it right back. When Louie and Johnny approached the Canuck blue line, on their left ice, Louie took an oblique pass from Johnny, skated a couple of glides into Canadien ice, then loosed a long range shot which whizzed past Goalie Cude. The time was 8:00.

Hawk Defense Is Embarrassed.

The score became 2 to 0 in favor of the Hawks in 3:44 of the second period. Jenkins picked up the puck in neutral ice and nudged it over to Seibert who hugged his right boards as he sped into Canadien ice. Seibert whanged one against Cude's boots and Thompson rushed in to pick up the rebound and shoot straight at the open cage for the goal. Seibert and Jenkins drew assists.

The first Canadien goal got under way when Blake evaded Seibert in neutral ice and took to his left boards. Burke sought to halt the solo flight, but was held off by Blake's elbow. When Blake got ready to shoot he gave Burke a little nudge. The Hawk defense man fell back and the shot went back of the unprotected Goalie Karakas. The time of the solo was 16:08.

This Is Carelessness.

The tying goal, made in less than two minutes, was due to the inability of Seibert and Burke to watch more than one man at a time. Babe Siebert of the Canadiens rushed down the middle of the rink and Seibert and Burke, concentrating on the rush apparently failed to notice that Lorraine was figure skating around them. As soon as Lorraine got back of the Hawk defense men Siebert passed to Lorraine, who bore down right on top of Karakas before cutting loose with his scoring slash. The time of this one was 18:05.

The Canadiens took the lead in 15:24 of the third period, mostly because Drouin could skate faster and more elusively than any Hawk on the ice at the time. Drouin, a plump little fellow, skated the length of the rink, but at first was unable to get a shot. Lorraine and Mantha moved up to aid him, however, and after deceiving the Hawks for awhile with a series of short jabs, Drouin took the puck out of a mêlée and rammed it past Goalie Karakas.

Gay Blades Cast Pleases Arena Crowd

BY HOWARD BARRY.

An international group of figure skaters calling themselves the Gay Blades opened a series of exhibitions last night at the Chicago Arena. The show, built around Karl Schaefer of Vienna and Maribel Vinson of Boston, undertook a colorful and ambitious program of ice ballet, spiced with quite a few light touches and comic effects.

The production as a whole was marked by a suavity exceptional in shows of this kind, and the performance of the principals was marked by a finish such as is attained rarely upon the ice.

The charming and graceful Miss Vinson, who has been winning national figure skating championships since she was a child of 12, drew an enthusiastic response from the near-capacity crowd with her solo number, Park Avenue Fantasy, and with other routines she performed with various members of the company.

Miss Vinson Shows Assurance.

Miss Vinson seems entirely impervious to that ever-present spectre of the figure skater—the fear of falling. That fear, subconscious though it may be, lends just a suggestion of the dancing bear to many a highly rated skater. But never to Miss Vinson. Through a series of routines that called for a combination of dash and delicacy, she moved with an astonishing assurance and precision.

Schaefer also drew enthusiastic encores. With numerous skating medals on the chest of his military jacket, this rather handsome young man looked like some youthful Austrian officer of the nineteenth century as he came swinging on to the ice for his big number. This consisted largely of the routines that won him Olympic fame. The medals were accumulated in the course of taking 25 assorted championships of Austria, Europe, the world and the Olympic games.

Frances Claudet, Guy Owen, Frederic Mescot, Ted Cave, Alfred Trenkler, Mary Jane Halsted, and the Simpson sisters were among the other members of the cast who distinguished themselves.

There's a Plot, Almost.

The production is built around several numbers patterned after the art of ballet dancing; that is, a semblance of a plot or at least a thread of interest, runs through several sequences. These ballets included "1860 in Vienna," "Hey! Hey! Farmer Gray," "Modern Movement," and "Rhapsody in Blue."

The Viennese number was highly effective and might have been even more so if the lighting facilities of the

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

PAUL HUMPHREY, co-captain of Purdue's 1938 football squad, told a story on Jim Zachary, Boilermaker end whose expert catching of forward passes was a feature of nearly every Purdue game this season, that had guests roaring at an Indianapolis High school banquet last Thursday night. . . . A Purdue history professor, according to Humphrey, asked Zachary, "Who was Talleyrand?" . . . "She was a fan dancer," Zachary replied, "and you don't need to pull that baby talk on me. . . . William Vernon Platt, who succeeds Clint Frank as Yale's gridiron captain, is the Elis' star defense man in hocky. . . . Ed Klewicki, Detroit Lion end who retired from professional football after the Bears game Thanksgiving day, has moved to Muncie, Ind., to become assistant purchasing agent of a motor plant. . . . Of the 104 who have been awarded cross-country letters at Wisconsin since 1905 103 are alive. The 104th was killed in an automobile accident. . . . Michigan has raised admission prices for home basketball games from 40 cents and 75 cents to 75 cents and $1 to conform with scales at other Big Ten schools. . . .

Roy Reigels will have a chance to repay his "debt" to California New Year's day. . . . It was Reigels who in 1929 made that famous reverse run against Georgia Tech which lost the Rose Bowl game for California, 8 to 7. . . . He later became a high school coach at Tamalpias, Cal., where he developed Sam Chapman, regarded by many as the greatest back in California history. . . . It will not be surprising if Chapman is the star of this year's Rose Bowl contest. . . . Hooley Smith, whom the New York Americans bought from Boston for $1,000, was sold by the Ottawa Senators to the Montreal Maroons a few years ago for $22,500. . . . Although Indiana loses some of its leading football players by graduation, it is likely Bo McMillin will turn out another strong eleven in 1938, because this year's freshmen squad was one of the best the school ever has had.

BEARS ROLL UP 42-28 VICTORY OVER CARDINALS

Point Total Sets Record for Pro League.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

It is possible but doubtful that football history contains the record of a more hilarious game than that with which the Bears and Cardinals, playing in basketball shoes, closed their regular National league schedules yesterday at Wrigley field.

The final score was Bears 42, Cardinals 28, setting a new record for total points in a National league contest. Sixty-four passes were thrown with thirty completions for a total gain of five hundred and one yards and eight of the ten touchdowns.

Play was called with 2 minutes and 51 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter after most of the period had been played in darkness and half of the frozen crowd of 7,313 had followed Gaynell Tinsley up the field on his ninety-five yard run with a shovel pass for a touchdown. Officials awarded the Cardinals the extra point after this score without even the formality of an attempt.

Field Is Slippery.

A solid coating of ice covered the south end of the field extending from the 30 yard line on through the end zone. The frozen condition of the remainder of the playing surface made it impossible for linemen to get leverage or backs to drive, nullifying running plays. All the touchdowns were made on the ice over the baseball infield, where defenders, once they started could not turn or stop.

This heightened the hilarity as backs went skidding along in undignified positions and linemen, coming out of the huddle, often arrived at the line of scrimmage on their bloomers. Three bon-fires in the bleachers added a carnival touch as the game wore on into darkness. The contest came to a close in a sand lot atmosphere when spectators, unable to see from the stands, gathered around the teams on the field and officials had to escort the rival coaches to the bench during an argument.

Buivid's Passes Score.

Leading rôles in the travesty were played by Buzz Buivid, the former Marquette star, receiving his first real test in the major league; his Bear colleague, Les McDonald, a freshman end from Nebraska, and Gaynell Tinsley, the Cardinals' sensational end, who caught six passes for a total of 155 yards, setting a new all-time National league record of 693 yards for gains on passes in a season.

Buivid passed fourteen yards and forty-two yards to McDonald for

Mungo and Lively Ball Keep Big League Gossips Guessing

American Hopes to Help Pitchers Next Season.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

American league club owners and managers will present a two ring circus today at the Palmer house. The owners' act will involve various items—due to come before them at their annual business session, always held in soundproof rooms. Meanwhile the managers, who will establish headquarters behind various pillars in the hotel lobby, will try to get serious about the many trade proposals which have been discussed informally for the last week.

The main article on the owners' program covers removal of at least a bit of speed from the jack rabbit baseball now in use. The two major circuits agreed on this operation a year ago but after numerous experiments still are at the point where they started. However, they have hopes of coming to some sort of a conclusion in time to have a less lively ball in play for next season.

Samples Proved Failures.

At the request of President William Harridge of the American league Julian Curtis, representative of the manufacturers of the ball employed in both majors, will appear before a joint session of the sixteen club owners tonight and render a technical explanation of what his company can and cannot do. Various sample balls which were tried in practice during the summer lost their shape under pressure of one good solid smack.

Curtis has already assured the two league presidents that the problem has been solved, probably by using a thicker cover, which would mean an added rise to the seams. The thicker hide would remove some of the present carry of the ball and the higher seams would make it easier for the pitchers to get a grip.

The American league apparently will take no action on the reported plan to raise the player limit from twenty-three to twenty-five. Except for the Yankees, there is no sentiment in favor of the increase, so if a proposal of this sort should be introduced it probably would be defeated.

Seek Answer to Injury Jinx.

For two years in a row a limited group of American league club owners have been trying to get across a regulation by which a team encountering serious injuries still would be able to keep twenty-three players in action. The proposal was to do this by creating a disability list, by which not more than two players of one team, out of service for a stated period, could be removed from the active rôle, thus leaving the team in a position to call in enough farm hands from the minors to keep the twenty-three maximum intact. This suggestion may be brought up again today or tomorrow.

The American league rumor market was at a low ebb yesterday, the various managers continuing to spar for time. However, indications are excellent for several important player transactions within the next 48 hours.

The swap by which Boston's Red Sox, who have gone no place despite prodigal expenditure of Owner Tom Yawkeys money, will get at least a pitcher from Cleveland and the latter would receive an infielder, is hot.

Red Sox Want Harder.

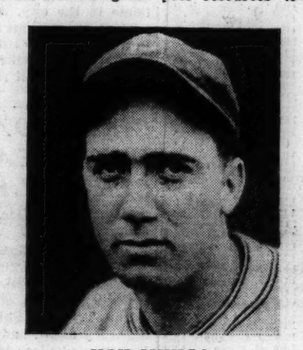
Boston wants Mel Harder and Cleveland is offering Willis Hudlin. Infielder Odell Hale will be included along with which ever one of the two pitchers finally is named. The men Cleveland desires to get in return are infielders Eric McNair and Pinky Higgins.

Oscar Vitt, the new playing boss at Cleveland, also has been seeking a bidder for Outfielder Earl Averill, Terry for use in Jersey City.

Dodger Star's Fate Excites National Club Owners.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The National league probably will pool resources to give Van Lingle Mungo a handsome present after the winter baseball meetings are over. He has been and is the dandiest smoke screen. Talk of Mungo has been much more pleasant than world series reminiscences and other topics that omnipresent killjoys might bring up. They still were talking almost exclusively about Mungo as the National league nabobs warmed up at Congress hotel headquarters yesterday.



VAN MUNGO.

The major league meetings do not start until today, but there was almost a full membership in town yesterday, all National leaguers talking about Mungo, just as they did at the minor league meeting in Milwaukee last week. It has become such a habit that even such American league notables as Mickey Cochrane, Joe Cronin, and several dozen others went over to the Congress from the Palmer house and joined in the National league talk about Mungo.

They'll Hear More of It!

Mungo's usefulness as a smoke screen will not end with the three day convention. All next summer when the fans in one city or another are yowling about having to look at the same old stumbling casts, each National league impresario who did not get Mungo will submit to interviews in which he will speak as follows:

"We tried to deal all winter, but all the other teams wanted to give us was a bat boy for our stars. As far as money is concerned, it is a matter of record that we offered $1,000,000 for Mungo, but they told us our currency was made up of relics of the confederacy, etc., etc., etc.

It has been said that Mungo positively will not pitch for Brooklyn next year, that he loathes Burleigh Grimes and Burleigh Grimes loathes him. The act must not be one of those orchestra leader-columnist things we hear in radio, for Mungo did pull a big duck last year at great expense to himself, not to mention the fact that his retreat left Brooklyn with virtually nothing but a ball park and four hot dog stands.

Still such things can and have been patched up, and there are those who believe that Van Lingle Mungo will pitch the opener for Brooklyn come the opener next year.

One of these is Bob Quinn, president of the Boston Bees and general manager of Brooklyn before Mungo got temperament.

Benswanger, Traynor Give Up.

Bill Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and the Pirates' manager, Pie Traynor, were among the most active of the lobby millers yesterday, but both said they had lost all hope of completing a deal of any importance. Mr. Benswanger intimated that he had joined the bidding for Mungo merely as a matter of league smoke screen loyalty, but denied emphatically that he had offered Paul Waner as part of the proposed transaction.

The latest doped up deal anent Mungo had the Brooklyn star going to the Giants with Buddy Hassett for Mel Ott and cash. Armed with cash, the Dodgers then were to buy Dolph Camilli and Bucky Walter from the Phillies.

It scarcely seems possible that the National league will go through the minor and major league meetings without stirring things up a bit. But the only transaction of the informal opening day was produced by our old pal, Babe Herman, who succeeded in peddling his body and soul to Bill

58,285 WATCH BAUGH STAR IN ROUT FOR TITLE

Completes 11 of 15 Passes.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 5.—Washington's Redskins massacred the New York Giants this afternoon at the Polo Grounds, 49 to 14.

That's correct; the score of this battle, believe it if you can, was 49 to 14, the largest ever marked up against the Giants in the history of professional football.

As a result of their victory and their capture of the eastern division championship, the Redskins' war path now points toward Chicago, where next Sunday they will meet the Chicago Bears for the National league title.

Washington's terrific assault against the Giants—an attack which piled up twelve first downs before the Giants received credit for one by penalty, and which amassed a 21 to 0 lead at the intermisison—was seen by a record crowd of 58,285 which packed every seat in the Polo Grounds. Only when Red Grange appeared here during his 1925 exhibition tour have there been more people at a professional game. Today's attendance, however, stands as the all-time mark for a scheduled league contest.

Some Offensive!

This throng, which included 7,000 loyal followers of the Redskins, headed by their Indian band, saw one of the finest exhibitions of offensive football ever presented. From the opening kickoff Washington asserted its supremacy, advancing methodically and irresistibly. Washington's line, led by burly Turk Edwards, ripped the Giants' front defenses apart as if charging against a schoolboy eleven. And Washington's backs, with Cliff Battles in the hero rôle, swept around the flanks or through center at will.

Then there was Sammy Baugh, first year man from Texas Christian university, who last September tossed the pass to Gaynell Tinsley that whipped the Green Bay Packers for the first collegiate victory in the annual All-Star games sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Last week Baugh's passes again had whipped the Packers, and the thousands today had come more to see this star than in support of either team.

Baugh was received tumultuously when his name was announced in the starting lineup. He was cheered with a vast roar of approval which rolled across the bleak Polo Grounds and reverberated from the sounding board of Coogan's Bluff as he trotted from the gridiron in the final period.

Sets a Pass Record.

Baugh today threw eleven successful passes in fifteen attempts. And he established a new professional record for marksmanship with eighty-one completed passes this season. Baugh, however, was more than a passer. He was a driving, accurate blocker for Battles, he used his passing ability on fakes to rip through the line, and he sent long, high kicks down field on the infrequent occasions when Washington needed to kick.

When Baugh left the game, hundreds broke police lines hastily thrown up along the sides of the gridiron to pat Sammy on the back. Washington led, 42 to 14, when Baugh and Battles retired. So, with Riley Smith directing, Washington moved to a final score. This, a pass by Riley, the only completion other than those thrown by Baugh, was caught by Wayne Millner. And Smith's seventh consecutive place kick for the extra point of this contest ended the most impressive scalping party since the Five Nations swept through Cherry valley.

Washington's nineteen first downs furnished an accurate idea of the Reskins' supremacy. But more important, the Redskins rushed New York's line for 262 yards and yielded only 15 yards. Only in passing did

MORRO DISPUTES DAY'S RIGHT TO FISTIC HONORS

They'll Say It with Gloves in Marigold Ring.

Johnny Morro of the Bronx, New York, tonight will fight in Chicago for the first time in a ten round bout with Davey Day. Davey is a leading lightweight title aspirant by reason of five straight triumphs he scored after losing a disputed decision to Champion Lou Ambers in a nontitle bout in Manhattan last February. The match is scheduled at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

In previous appearances this year Davey has made all his opponents, with the exception of Ambers and Enrico Venturi, look mediocre. The unfortunate lads were Charley Gomer, who fell a knockout victim Sept. 7; Johnny Durso, stopped July 26; Jimmy Garrison, given a lesson June 2, and Charley Baxter, who was knocked out April 26.

Davey's Just Too Good.

Every one of these victims invaded the city in possession of worthy records. Yet none was a match for the wiry Day.

Morro may fall like the others, but he enters the combat with a record that merits consideration. He was proficient enough to whip the clever Leo Rodak and other topnotchers in 1935 when only 21 years old.

A promise to head a second card at Marigold in two weeks if he makes a creditable showing is incentive for Morro to score an upset though such an inducement appears unnecessary.

Scheduled First Nov. 22.

Morro originally was booked to face Davey Nov. 22, refusing a bout at the New York Coliseum to accept. Unsuccessful negotiations for a contest between Day and Milt Aron at the Stadium Dec. 10 caused a postponement until this evening.

Joe Louis will be a spectator.

Tom Kenneally, who won the Catholic Youth Organization heavyweight championship in 1934, will make his professional debut in a four round encounter against Scotty Withers. Combatants in additional engagements at four rounds will be Emil Campagna and Mike Edwards, and Harry Fredricksen and Owen Woods. Rivals in a five round semifinal will be Tony Zale, Gary middleweight, and Jimmy La Marr, aggressive Cleveland battler.

Steve [Crusher] Casey, 225 pound wrestler from Warsaw, N. Y., tonight will make the first of three appearances in this city in successive days in a one hour struggle with Charley [Gorilla] Grubmyer at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. In a co-feature Fritz von Schacht is paired with Sun Jennings. Casey also is matched to meet Danny Winters at the Park Casino tomorrow and Jack Claybourn at Rainbo Fronton Wednesday. His proposed meeting with Bobby Bruns at the Coliseum Thursday has been canceled.

Buddy Baer, California heavyweight challenger, and Eddie Hogan of Waterbury, Conn., have been matched to meet in a ten round bout at the New York Hippodrome, Dec. 17. The match, presented under the auspices of Mike Jacobs, replaces a proposed encounter between Henry Armstrong, featherweight champion, and Enrico Venturi. Buddy will stop in the loop tomorrow en route to the scene.

Inability to obtain a suitable foe for Verne Patterson has deferred his appearance at Marigold until next Monday. . . . Tommy Howell, who broke his thumb while scoring a knockout last week, has undergone an operation for a nasal operation. . . . The bout involving Jack Gibbons and Andy Miller, scheduled at Des Moines, Ia., tonight, has been shifted to Minneapolis and will be held Friday. . . . Virgil McKinnes, St. Charles welterweight, yesterday was signed to box Lou Angelucci at Cicero stadium Wednesday. . . . After his feature match with Big Jim Clintstock at Marigold Friday, Gus Sonnenberg will encounter Ray Steele at the Milwaukee auditorium Dec. 15. F. M.

ISBELL, SWEENEY AGREE TO PLAY WITH EAST TEAM

Cecil Isbell, Purdue half back, and Charles Sweeney, Notre Dame end, yesterday were added to the All-East football team being assembled for the annual East-West Shrine benefit game to be played at San Francisco on New Year's day.

Three middle western players have accepted invitations to join the East squad to date. In addition to Isbell and Sweeney, Corby Davis, Indiana full back, has sent his acceptance. The East team, which is to be coached by Bernie Bierman of Minnesota and Andy Kerr of Colgate, will consist of eleven players from the middle west and eleven from the east. The squad will assemble at Dyche stadium, Northwestern university, Dec. 18, when equipment will be issued and the first workout held.

Barney Ross, New York Girl Are Married

Welterweight Champion Barney Ross and Miss Pearl Siegel of New York were married yesterday at a private ceremony in the Congress hotel by Cantor D. Tevele Cohen of Congregation Beth Itzchock. Mickey Farr, boxing promoter, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. A. Robert Siegel, the bride's parents, were among the guests.

After a wedding dinner the couple boarded a train for New York en route to a honeymoon in Bermuda. They will return in three weeks to establish residence in New York. Thus, Barney again will live in the town of his birth. He was born at 258 Rivington street in Manhattan in 1909. His correct name is Barnet David Rasofsky.

Barney will be a frequent visitor to Chicago, however, inasmuch as he retains several interests here. For one thing his mother, Mrs. Sarah Rasofsky, will continue to reside on the west side. Then, too, his managers, Sam Pian and Art Winch, make their home in the city. Besides these important connections Ross is interested in a loop jewelry concern. The champion, who may make his next title defense in May, will resume fighting in March.

CHICAGOANS STAY WITH LEADERS IN CENTRAL BOWLING

Dayton, O., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—Chicago bowlers were among the leaders in every division today as the second week-end of the Central States tournament neared its conclusion.

The Triangle Shirts, who bowled Saturday night, had a 3,057 total that took second place in the team event, while the Mineralites were fourth with 3,021, and the Michelobs, last year's champions, sixth with 2,973.

George Theel scored a 706 series for second place in the singles behind Charley Kotarski of Cleveland, who shot 724. Frank Wright, with 683, stood fourth in the singles and George Galder was eleventh with 651.

Babe Bunning and Chuck Collier did the best work in the doubles, posting a 1,273 aggregate for sixth place. Bunning had 667 and Collier 606. In the all-events Frank Wright held second place with 1,943. He shot 640 in the team event, 661 in the doubles, and 683 in the singles. Theel, with 539 in the team event, 648 in the doubles, and 706 in singles, posted 1,893 for seventh place.

ICE SKATING ASSOCIATION TO MEET TONIGHT

Plans to change the constitution and name of the Illinois-Western Skating association will be taken up at a meeting of the officials tonight at the Garfield park administration building.

Activities in speed skating, which get under way Christmas week, will start with tonight's meeting. Two new clubs are seeking membership and racing dates and many of the old time champions are coming back into the sport.

President Earl W. Solem of the skating association will discuss the possibilities of weekly indoor competition at the Chicago Arena to prepare the Chicagoland skaters for the national indoor races at the Chicago Arena in February.

St. Benedict's Eleven Defeats Rockhurst, 6-2

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Thompson's 50 yard return of an intercepted pass in the first period gave St. Benedict's college the scoring opportunity needed to beat Rockhurst, 6 to 2, today. Danaher smashed the remaining ten yards across the goal in four plays. The safety came in the final period when Di Franco intentionally grounded the ball after a penalty had set the Atchison team back on its 1 yard line.

INDIANA FIVE TO PLAY FIRST GAME TONIGHT

Hoosier Sophomores Face Test by De Pauw.

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—Indiana university's basketball team will open its 20 game schedule here tomorrow night against the veteran DePauw team.

DePauw is expected to start the same team that took the floor against Rose Poly last Thursday, while it is likely that Ernie Andres and Joe Platt will be the only veterans in the Indiana starting lineup. Bill Johnson, forward, has been ailing, and may not start, which would put three sophomores in the starting group.

This will be the first varsity competition for 11 of the 17 players on the Hoosier squad. Probable lineups:

DE PAUW.		INDIANA.
Kixmiller	F	Johnson, Stevenson
Mackie	F	Dorsey, McCreary
Franke	C	Huffman
Landeck	G	Platt
Landsay	G	Andrew

Referee—Nate Kaufman, Shelbyville. Umpire—Bob Nipper, Indianapolis.

BADGERS WARNED

Madison, Wis., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—Beaten by Marquette in the opening game of the season, Wisconsin's varsity basketball squad today faces the threat of a major shakeup in the lineup unless there is imp ovement in the game against North Dakota university in the fieldhouse tomorrow night.

Coach Harold Foster indicated he would start off with the same lineup that faced Marquette, but that changes would come fast and plentiful if some of the varsity players didn't show more of a disposition to drive in for rebounds and at least keep fighting to the final gun. Probable lineups:

WISCONSIN.		NORTH DAKOTA.
Rooney	R. F.	Lemaire
Powell	L. F.	McCosh
Jones	C	[C] Robertson
Mitchell	R. G.	Rittleson
Frey	L. G.	Pepke

LOYOLA OF COAST WINS, 13 TO 8, OVER GONZAGA ELEVEN

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Loyola university of Los Angeles completed its football season today with a 13 to 8 triumph over the Bulldogs of Gonzaga. The Lions bottled up Gonzaga's chief threat, George Karamatic, allowing him to break loose but twice—for sprints of 19 and 33 yards. George Sims, colored back, scored both of Loyola's touchdowns.

The game attracted many motion picture notables and some of them participated in sideline attractions.

Bing Crosby, film singer and a one time Gonzaga undergraduate, sang a song to his alma mater. The Ritz brothers, madcap comics, helped the Loyola cheer leaders. One of them brought Pat O'Brien to earth with a very adequate tackle as O'Brien was leaving the field between halves following a speech over the field's loud-speaking system.

Swedes Defeat Sparta Seconds in Cup Play, 2-0

BY OFFSIDE.

The Swedish Americans defeated the Sparta Seconds, 2 to 0, yesterday at Sparta stadium in a second round match in the national amateur cup series.

A. Johnson kicked off for the Swedes against a strong wind and on a field partly covered with ice. The Swedes, forcing play, opened the scoring after 10 minutes as A. Johnson beat the Sparta goalkeeper from 15 yards.

Both teams then went scoreless until 30 minutes through the final half when the Swedes made it 2 to 0 as Hampson slipped past the Sparta defense to tip the ball into the net.

The Olympias won from Calumet Park, 2 to 0, Wearer and Kriz scoring for the victors. The Oak Park Acorn and American Nickeloid match was called on account of cold weather.

The Maccabees defeated Bratislava, 4 to 0, in an exhibition game at Kuppenheimer stadium. Pearlman scored twice and Wright and Al Waldron once each. The International league furnished an upset when the Schwabens defeated the unbeaten German Americans, 2 to 0, in a first division match.

BEARS ROLL UP 42-28 VICTORY OVER CARDINALS

Point Total Sets Record for Pro League.

touchdowns in the second quarter, fifteen yards to Pug Rentner, eight yards to McDonald and twenty-one yards to Gene Ronzani for scores in the third period. Another Buivid to McDonald pass for twenty-six yards was complete in the end zone, but was nullified by an official penalty. He wound up the Bears' touchdown efforts by taking a four yard pass from Sam Francis in the third quarter. Dick Plasman, freshman end from Vanderbilt, kicked two extra points; Jack Manders, the league's leading scorer, came in just long enough to kick one, and Bulvid and Francis each added one. The Bears' two other points were scored when a Cardinal kicker, standing in the end zone, was unable to see the pass from center in the dark and it rolled into the crowd at the end of the field for an automatic safety.

Tinsley Gets Away.

McDonald, who has not seen a great deal of service until yesterday, established himself as one of the league's better pass catchers. He was eclipsed in this respect, however, by Tinsley, whose ninety-five yard run was a comical, but fitting climax to a remarkable season. The field was enveloped in complete darkness and the Cardinals were back on their own 5 yard line when he took a shovel pass from Coffee on an end around. He ran up the sidelines and was at midfield before the Bears realized any one was loose. Even then they had their doubts for all that was visible of the runner in the darkness was a pair of silver pants. Some Bear hero, whose identity was hidden by night, then realized pants seldom go running around without a sponsor and gave futile chase.

Cardinals Start Drive.

The Cardinals made twelve first downs to the Bears' ten and outgained them by piling up 316 yards on fifteen pass completions in thirty-three attempts. Their net by running was sixty-four yards. The Bears got only ninety-three yards by running and 185 yards by passes, completing fifteen of thirty-one passes. The Cardinals intercepted one pass and the Bears two.

The Cardinals began the first drive, the only sustained offensive of the first half, after Plasman's attempted field goal fell short for a touchback. Coffee made fourteen yards around the Bears' left end, then passed twenty-one yards over center to Tinsley who lateralled to Russell for eight yards, making it first down on the Bears' 37 yard line.

Coffee faked a pass to Tinsley on the next play, but tossed over center to Russell. Russell had no trouble outrunning Molesworth, who floundered around on the ice attempting to cut back and pick up the fleeing Cardinal. Baker added the extra point.

Francis fumbled a few minutes later and Pangle recovered on the Bears' 36 yard line. Coffee's first down pass to Russell netted thirty-two yards to the 4 yard line and after Coffee had fumbled and Tyler recovered for no gain, Coffee passed to Tyler for the touchdown. Baker again kicked the extra point.

Molesworth Misses Kick.

On the second play of the second period MacDonald recovered Molesworth's quick kick after it had touched Tyler and ran to the Cardinals' 16 yard line, where it was first down for the Bears. Buivid made three yards, then passed to MacDonald for a touchdown. Manders replaced Thompson at tackle and place kicked the extra point.

The Cardinals received the kickoff, but immediately gave up the ball on Russell's punt out of bounds on his own 43 yards line. Buivid made a yard then passed seventeen yards up the middle to MacDonald, where the big end made a one handed catch of a low toss and went twenty-five yards for a touchdown. Molesworth's kick was low.

Plasman returned the kickoff at the start of the third period sixty-five yards to the Cards' 18 yard line. Buivid made three yards on a buck and then passed to Rentner in the end zone for a touchdown on the third play of the period. Plasman kicked the extra point, giving the Bears the lead, 20 to 14.

After Grosvenor's punt had gone out of bounds on the Cardinals' 33 yard line a few minutes later the Bears began passing. Buivid tossed one nineteen yards to Rozani and three plays later passed eight yards to MacDonald for a touchdown. Plasman added the extra point, making the score 27 to 14.

Bears Renew Attack.

The Cardinals, striving to get off the ice, elected to kick off this time, but Ronzani brought the ball back forty-six yards to the Cardinals' 49 yard line. Buivid's first two passes were incomplete, but his third was caught by Rentner for eighteen yards. MacDonald took his next pass, gaining ten yards and placing the ball on the 21 yard line. Buivid's fifth consecutive pass was incomplete, but his sixth dropped in Ronzani's arms over the goal line for a touchdown. Buivid added the extra point.

The Bears got back into stride almost immediately with Buivid passing. The drive came to an abrupt halt when MacDonald fumbled after taking a sixteen yard pass and Carter recovered for the Cardinals on their 14 yard line. But Coffee lost nine yards on the first play and Grosvenor punted on the second, Ronzani returned the punt nineteen yards over the ice to the Cardinals' 17 yard line. Francis hit center for ten yards and for three, then passed to Buivid for the Bears' sixth touchdown. He added the extra point, making the score 40 to 14.

The Cardinals started their fourth touchdown drive from their own 48 yard line at the opening of the final period.

Coffee passed to Reed for a five yard loss. On the next play he passed to Tinsley for eight yards and Tinsley lateraled to Baker for ten, making first down on the Bears' 39 yard line. Another pass went astray, but Coffee's fourth consecutive attempt went to Reed for four yards. Reed dropped the next pass, but on fourth down Coffee passed fifteen yards to Tinsley. Coffee's eighth consecutive pass in this series was taken by Pangle for seventeen yards and a first down on the Bears' 3 yard line. Pangle bucked it over on the second attempt. Baker kicked the extra point.

The Cardinals held for downs on their 5 yard line later in the fourth period, leading up to the safety. Ronzani returned the Cardinals' free kick 45 yards to the Cards' 12 yard line.

The Cards took the ball away from the Bears again on downs, this time on their own 5 yard line. On the first play Tinsley broke away for his ninety-five yard touchdown run.

Americans Whip Red Wings, 2 to 1; Near Division Lead

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Dave [Sweeney] Schriner shot the New York Americans to within a point of the Canadian division leadership of the National Hocky league tonight with two first period goals for a 2 to 1 conquest of Detroit's champion Red Wings. A crowd of 9,000 saw the game.

His first shot, a low, 30 foot drive from right wing after passes from Art Chapman and Lorne Carr, beat Goalie Norm Smith at 4:42. The second came at 16:50 on a short poke that climaxed a neat bit of passing in which Chapman and Johnny Gallagher took part.

Aurie Scores for Wings.

Detroit's revised forward lines were so ineffective in the opening period that Manager Jack Adams experimented thereafter. The high scoring combination of last season—Larry Aurie, Marty Barry, and Herb Lewis—was used to start the final period and Aurie scored in 20 seconds, a spectacular passing play from Barry and Lewis laying the puck clear in front of the goal.

It was Detroit's seventh defeat in ten games, and the Americans' sixth victory. The lineups:

Clint Smith, rookie center, paved the way for the Rangers' triumph by scoring the opening goal in the first period with the aid of Lynn Patrick. Thereafter the Bruins, leaders of the league's American division, were forced to sacrifice defense for attack in an effort to tie the count.

The Rangers were unable to capitalize on this strategy, however, until the third period, when Art Coulter, Butch Keeling, and Patrick topped off three man breakaways by scoring. Coulter also earned two assists, as did Patrick and Cecil Dillon.

O, CADDY! AND PROS ANSWER AS WIVES PLAY GOLF

Coral Gables, Fla., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Golf widows played a tournament of their own today, but their husbands—all ranking professionals — didn't stay at home and knit.

The husbands, who start shooting Friday for the Biltmore open's $10,000 purse, caddied.

Mrs. Denny Shute, with the P. G. A. champion carrying her clubs, won the nine hole event with a 53. Mrs. Ralph Hutchinson was second with a 65.

Mrs. Harry Cooper, Mrs. Lawson Little, and Mrs. Roland MacKenzie also competed with husbands caddying, but Mrs. Jimmy Thomson—the former Viola Dana—had to call on a pinch hitter.

REDSKINS ROUT GIANTS, 49-14, BEFORE 58,285

Giants Try, Anyway.

Although completely outplayed in the first half, trailing 21 to 0, New York came back with a scoring flurry which brought them two touchdowns in seven minutes. The first was achieved by the alertness of Ward Cuff, who grabbed a pass that Ernie Pinckert had knocked out of the hands of Will Walls, one of the Giants. The second was accomplished in a seventy-three yard drive, ending when Ed Danowski completed a fourth down pass for six yards to Tuffy Leemans in Washington's end zone.

After each Tillie Manton kicked the points. Thus New York, which only needed to tie the Redskins today to win the eastern title, was within striking distance of that championship. But the Giants only had invited the whirlwind. On the sixth play after the second Giant score Baugh dropped back, faked a throw to Malone, and then threw far down the field to Ed Justice, full back, who was scurrying along the side line unnoticed. Justice grabbed the ball on New York's 12 yard line and went on to score. The pass gained forty-three yards. Riley Smith followed with the kick for the point.

The Giants Fade.

From this point on the Giants were a sadly whipped team. True, they did not cease fighting, but they were greatly overmatched.

New York threatened briefly but passes failed and Washington took the ball on its 26 yard line and on the opening play of the final period quick kicked to the Giants' 20 yard line. On fourth down Danowski dropped back to punt. Edwards and Millner swarmed in, and the ball bounded off Turk's chest to roll back to the end zone where Millner fell on it for the Redskins' fifth touchdown.

Edwards kicked off deliberately out of bounds as he did on every kickoff except after the Redskins' first score. Then the Giants successfully passed their way to midfield. Here Hank Soar threw a long pass down field and the alert Battles intercepted and came back on the most stirring run of this contest of thrilling plays.

He Cuts, Then Reverses.

Battles caught the ball on his 23 yard line, cut over to the south side line, shook off two tacklers, and then behind a screen of blockers came down to the Giants' 32 yard line. His blockers now had gone down in front of their opponents, so Battles shifted direction, reversed across the gridiron to the other side, and missed a touchdown only when Les Corzine knocked him out of bounds on New York's 1 yard line.

On the next play Riley Smith sneaked through center, kicked the point, and Washington led, 42 to 14.

Tuffy Leeman's fumble, recovered by Washington on the Redskins' 45 yard line, opened the way for a fifty-five yard march for the seventh Washington score. Max Krause, who had replaced Battles, led the drive, carrying the ball seven times in succession to New York's 28 yard line.

After three plays had failed to click Riley Smith fired a pass to Millner, ungarded in the south corner of the end zone. Smith placekicked for the seventh time.

Almost Score Again.

The game ended three minutes later, after Washington had marched 43 yards in eight plays to New York's 5 yard line. A ninth play on which time expired, a pass that Dixie Howell threw, was intercepted at the goal line.

New York got a break on the second Washington play from scrimmage in the opening period when Battles fumbled and Jim Poole recovered for the Giants. But Washington's line held and on fourth down Cuff punted to Battles, who was downed on his 17 yard line. From this point the Redskins paraded eighty-three yards for touchdown No. 1, Battles scoring on a two yard plunge.

Battles Races 75 Yards.

New York received the kickoff and Danowski punted into Washington's end zone. On the first play Battles shot outside the Giants' right tackle and outran the three man Giant secondary line until pulled down from behind on New York's 5 yard line by Cuff. It was a seventy-five yard dash. From the 5 yard line Battles carried the ball three times, going over from the 1 yard line. Thus Washington led, 14 to 0, at the end of the first period.

Washington advanced to New York's 5 yard line in the second quarter, where the Redskins failed by inches to make a first down. But Washington came back at once with a fifty yard march for a third touchdown.

Baugh Gets Going.

Until now Baugh had just warmed up his arm and to make amends he threw five successful passes in six plays and the ball was on the Giants' 5 yard line. On the first play Baugh faked back as Max Krause crashed through center to the goal.

New York's first touchdown was scored on the second scrimmage play of the second half. From his 38 yard line Danowski passed to Walls. Pinckert grabbed for the ball. It bounced into the air and Cuff took the ball at full speed on Washington's 38 yard line and continued on to score.

DOYLE LEAVES BILLIARD FIELD AFTER 31 YEARS

New York, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Jack Doyle, New York's betting commissioner and one of Broadway's most notable figures for three decades, is retiring from billiards promotion after thirty-one years as proprietor of an establishment famous in the annals of American sport.

Doyle will continue to act as a betting commissioner and odds layer. This work, which he calls his hobby, has won him international fame. But this winter he will go south and his billiard parlor will be run by George Lovel.

Since opening his first billiard parlor in 1906, with John McGraw and Tod Sloan, the jocky, as partners, Doyle has grown to a national figure as arbiter of betting arguments and odds maker for every big sporting event.

GAY BLADES CAST PLEASES CROWD AT OPENING NIGHT

arena had been used more appropriately.

Schaefer was the apex of a romantic triangle which was completed by Miss Vinson and Miss Claudet. Owen took the part of a certain menace billed as the Show Off. With these principals, and with the entire company figuring in the ensembles, the Viennese number moved gayly to the music of Strauss the elder and Strauss the younger. The only inadequate note seemed to be the lighting. Instead of the dim blues and the pale roses that the situation seemed to call for, the lights glared with a brilliance that showed up nearly every gloomy steel rafter in the structure.

An Ineffective Number.

The "Farmer Gray" number seemed ineffective for the obvious reason that ice skating is a poorly suited medium for the staccato stompings of the country barn dance.

Miss Vinson, who is production director and who does most of the company's choregraphy, is experimenting with various methods of getting figure skating out of the realm of mere gymnastics.

To the layman, it seems that the future of the art should lie in the perfection of smooth, flowing routines rather than in the stressing of motions that are more effectively performed by slippered feet upon the firm footing of a stage.

The show will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night.

Five Members Win Trophies.

Five members of the puppy match association recently were awarded trophies for winning most awards at shows held during the last year. The winners of these trophies were Frank Cory, Evanston; Edwin McK. Johnston, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Peet, Glen View; Miss Helen Nowicki, Chicago, and Mrs. Carol Maiss, Chicago. Dogs owned by Mr. Cory won the most awards in the sporting dog group; Mr. Johnston's dogs were high in the working dog classification; Mr. and Mrs. Peet's dogs in the terrier group; Miss Nowicki's Pomeranians and Chihuahuas won the toy division, and dogs owned by Mrs. Maiss won the nonsporting group. Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Henre, Hammond, Ind., won a trophy for having the most entries in shows held during the year.

It's an Informal Event.

Although entries in the match to be held Wednesday night are open only to members of the association, Mrs. Harry J. Lowenbach, secretary of the organization, states that any puppy owner may apply for membership the night of the match and then enter his or her puppy in the competition for prizes. The entry fee is 75 cents for the first puppy and 25 cents for each additional puppy entered. The public is invited to attend the match. This department recommends a puppy match such as this to all dog owners as the event is informal and one has many opportunities to talk to breeders and learn about dogs while looking at the finest show prospects from Chicagoland kennels.

COURTNEY CUTS CRIME RATE BY SPEEDY JUSTICE

80 Per Cent of Accused Persons Convicted.

Speedy justice, says Thomas J. Courtney, brings more convictions. To back that statement the state's attorney points to figures showing that 80 per cent of all persons charged with crime in the last five years have been convicted.

Five years ago 100,887 crimes were committed in a year. For the first ten months of this year there were only 34,000. The prosecutor attributes much of that decline to the fact that 81 per cent of the indictments handed up at the October term were disposed of within thirty days. Five years ago, when Mr. Courtney took office, the docket was clogged with 1,085 indictments. Often it was six months to a year between indictment and trial.

191 Repeaters Get Life.

Mr. Courtney believes also that his use of the habitual criminal act has proved a crime deterrent. His office has sent 191 repeaters back to the penitentiary for life, 6,460 defendants to the penitentiary, and 2,057 to the Bridewell and county jail.

Mr. Courtney also gives credit to Public Defender Bachrach and his staf for speeding up court machinery to the point where the 7½ million dollar criminal courts building presents an appearance almost of emptiness, compared with the feverish activity found there in former years.

The public defender's office represents 60 to 65 per cent of criminal defendants. Of 11,814 indictments Bachrach and his staf have defended, 4,084 landed in the penitentiary, 1,632 in the Bridewell, and 247 in the county jail. The public defender's policy of refraining from demanding a jury trial is given credit for speeding up action. In seven years the office has taken only 989 trials before a jury.

Chief Justices Lend Aid.

To Judge John Prystalski goes some of the credit for rallying the war on crime, which has not ceased since 1932. In that year at the judge's suggestion seventeen judges were put to work in the Criminal court to clear the dockets of their staggering load. By 1934 the list of pending cases was reduced to 400. Judges Philip Finnegan, Denis E. Sullivan, Denis P. Normoyle, and Michael McKinley, who followed Judge Prystalski as chief justice, kept up the war until in 1935 the goal of an up-to-date calendar was achieved.

Runways will be expanded to accommodate the largest of transports and in addition new runways 4,500, 4,000, 3,500 feet in length will be constructed. Subsequently new types of experimental runways will be developed.

Mayor Walter C. Boetcher announced that the city will make every effort to increase the aircraft industry which already has several factories here.

LOOK FOR CLIMAX OF SAFETY COURT SQUABBLE TODAY

After a conference between State's Attorney Courtney and his first assistant, Wilbert F. Crowley, it was reported yesterday that a showdown might result in the Safety court of Judge J. M. Braude this morning. Assistant State's Attorney John J. Phillips was ordered to return to the courtroom from which he was twice ejected by bailifs last week at Judge Braude's order.

Judge Braude said he did not know whether there would be a repetition of the procedure of the last few days, in which all Safety court cases were continued or taken from him to the Jury court.

Sweet Fifteen

Deanna Durbin, film actress, blows out the candles on her cake at a party in Hollywood on her fifteenth birthday.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Deanna Durbin had a cake with candles for her fifteenth birthday yesterday, but she didn't get that customary Hollywood success symbol, a mink coat. The James Durbins could well afford it, but they just aren't mink minded. Their daughter's income totals about $2,500 a week.

"Deanna likes little things, lots of little packages to open," says her mother. "She asked for perfume and books and phonograph records."

Deanna's birthday almost coincided with the beginning of her second big year in the movies. Herbert Marshall and Norman Taurog and others who are making "Mad About Music" gave her a party. Later the Durbins held the usual family dinner at home.

VETERAN AT 90 RE-ELECTS SELF C. A. R. POST HEAD

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—Smith H. Carlton, Michigan state G. A. R. commander, has been reëlected commander of the Kalamazoo post by a margin of one vote. To be exact, only one vote was cast, and that by Carlton, who is 90 years old. When Orcutt post, No. 79, had dwindled to 25 members the veterans pledged themselves to carry on as long as at least one survived. Now the post includes only Carlton and Lewis Sergeant, 93 years old, who is too frail to participate in post affairs. In addition to reëlecting himself yesterday Commander Carlton read his annual report and recited Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

WORM MERCHANT MOANS WPA HAS RUINED BUSINESS

New York, Dec. 5.—[Special.]—Henry Ernst is a worm merchant and collector. He is the early bird who supplies the red worms used by aquarists for fish food. Mr. Ernst sees nothing but a gloomy future for worming because of the operations of the Philadelphia group and the injury done by the WPA by filling up sump holes where the worms are found. As a result the local supply of worms is short and large shipments are being moved from Philadelphia and thrown on the market at $4 a gallon, a fourth of the price of local production costs.

If I never see another cathartic, that'll be soon enough!

Here's a way to avoid two tyrants—common constipation and cathartics. It's a way that beats the medicines at keeping you "regular." But without discomfort and without habit-forming.

Simply put back in your diet two of Nature's own laxatives that are lost by eating "refined" foods. These natural laxatives are the intestinal-tonic vitamin "B,"—and "bulk." "Refined" foods toss out Nature's richest sources of vitamin "B,." All-Bran is a good source of it—to tone your intestinal tract and promote elimination.

And All-Bran also has "bulk"—it absorbs water and softens like a sponge. This water-softened mass aids elimination.

Kellogg's All-Bran is a crunchy, toasted cereal. Eat it with milk or cream and fruits. It also makes marvelous muffins. But, however you eat it, use it regularly. Follow this Daily Routine: eat two tablespoons of All-Bran and drink plenty of water. If you do this every day you can avoid common constipation and cathartics, too! Every grocer sells All-Bran. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

INT'L HARVESTER EMPLOYES GIVE $13,500 TO FUND

Employés of the McCormick works of the International Harvester company have contributed $13,500 to the Community Fund campaign, it was announced yesterday by Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the campaign. He said that reports of progress in the campaign, leading up to the final meeting on Thursday, are encouraging.

"The organization is making every effort to wind up the pledges necessary to achieve the goal of $3,550,000," he said, "but if the 2,500 solicitors are not successful by Thursday the campaign will continue informally until the objective is reached."

Yesterday contributions were $370,000 short of the goal. Due to a confusion in groups it was announced Saturday that all but $9,256 of the objective had been raised. This figure applied only to the women's group, which is that amount short of its $160,000 quota. Mrs. Howard W. Fenton is chairman of the group.

PREDICT STEEL RECESSION HAS HIT ITS BOTTOM

Operations Now 30½ Pct. of Capacity.

Indications that the bottom of the decline in steel ingot production has been reached were noted by the magazine Steel in the current issue. Operations last week were estimated at 30.5 per cent of capacity, 1 point below the estimate for the preceding week.

"While there is no expectation of an immediate reversal to an upward movement," the trade journal said, "general sentiment is that whatever change comes will be favorable. Consumers continue to operate largely from inventory, but some buying of small lots is being done, indicating depletion of stocks in various lines.

"Some steel producers booked as much business in November as in October, indicating a leveling of demand. Prospects are for continued quiet until the end of the year, with some recovery after stock taking and somewhat better demand in all lines through the first quarter of 1938."

Ingot production declined 3 points at Pittsburgh last week, to 34 per cent of capacity. Wheeling lost 5 points, to 30; Cincinnati, 15 points, to 14, and Detroit, 9 points, to 50 per cent. The rate held unchanged at Chicago at 30 per cent; Buffalo, 21; Birmingham, 54, and St. Louis, 20.6 per cent.

The central eastern seaboard district gained 4 points, to 31 per cent; New England, 5 points, to 32, and Cleveland, 3 points, to 31.

Producers Hit by World-wide Drop in Prices

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Primary producers throughout the world are being hit by a steady decline in wholesale prices, authoritative statistics published here revealed today. The recent cut in buying by the United States is held mainly responsible for the lower trend.

Indices compiled by the London Financial Times disclose an almost identical drop in wholesale prices in the United States, England, and France last month as compared with October.

For England, the November index is 111.4 [1936 is considered 100]. This represents a fall since October of 3 per cent and a decline since August of 6.5 per cent. The November decrease is more marked in the case of raw materials than in food. The United States, according to the Financial Times, also has registered a 3 per cent decline since October, while since August the index number has fallen by 5.7 per cent.

In France, the last month's drop was 2.7 per cent, but there has been a net increase since August as a result of the September depreciation of the franc.

Looking back over the last twelve months, Financial Times found that British wholesale prices are still higher than in November, 1936, but the year's increase, as in the United States, is comparatively slight. The big increase shown by the French index number is solely due to the currency changes which occurred during the year, the publication said.

The fall in cotton prices was less marked than in previous months, the Financial Times index shows, despite the further increase to a new record of 18,200,000 bales in the estimated size of this year's American crop. Cotton prices, however, are now 30 per cent lower than they were a year ago.

The fall of prices, it is said, has now reached a point where it is affecting the primary producers. In Australia this is reflected in a sharp drop in wool prices.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

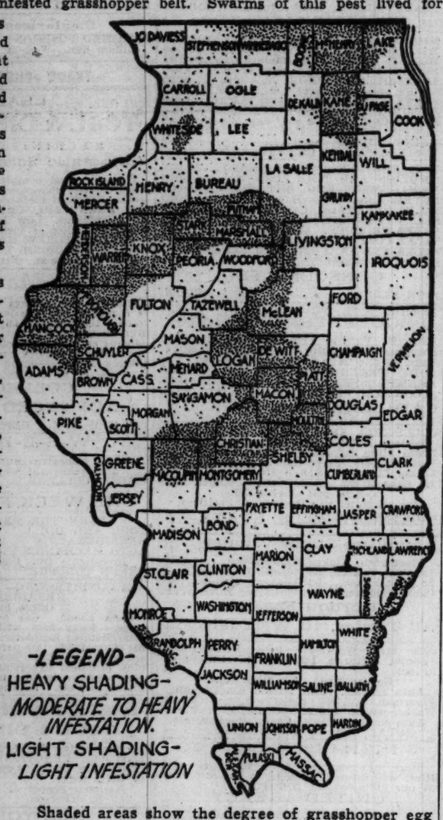
By Frank Ridgway

The Grasshopper Outlook.

December 5, 1937.

The Tribune's Wheaton farm in Du Page county is on the fringe of a fairly heavily infested grasshopper belt. Swarms of this pest lived for several weeks last summer and fall on crops at the farm and have deposited their eggs in fairly large numbers in the Wheaton community. The farm manager is expecting another outbreak of grasshoppers next year.



-LEGEND-
HEAVY SHADING—MODERATE TO HEAVY INFESTATION.
LIGHT SHADING—LIGHT INFESTATION

Shaded areas show the degree of grasshopper egg infestation found in Illinois in a recent survey by W. P. Flint, chief state entomologist.

Other Illinois farmers are preparing to fight the grasshopper in 1938. Encouraging reports, however, came today from W. P. Flint of Urbana, chief state entomologist, saying that the grasshopper campaign for next year will not need to be as general as it was last season. Other states are expecting trouble from the pest next summer.

Flint has just completed a survey of grasshopper eggs deposited in the ground this fall and finds that fewer eggs are now overwintering than was the case last year at this time.

Grasshoppers destroyed approximately $17,000,000 worth of crops in Illinois alone in 1936, and last year at this time farmers were faced with the prospects of the worst grasshopper outbreak in history. The state entomologist points out that cold, wet weather last spring greatly aided systematic control measures which were put in force throughout the state.

He thinks similar weather conditions next spring will determine just how much of a threat the insect will be to the 1938 crops in different parts of the state.

The entomologists' survey shows that in the extreme northern and northwestern sections there is now scattered a moderately heavy infestation of eggs. The worst infestation in the north end of the state is from the north edge of Kendall and Will counties, spreading in fan shape north to the Wisconsin line.

Other areas of moderate infestation were found in north central and central parts of the state. In the southeastern counties there is a little scattered infestation along the Wabash river.

Flint says that in all of these counties there will be many spots where grasshoppers will not be very bad in the spring of 1938 and there will be other areas within the same counties where they will be as thick as they were in the spring of 1937.

He adds that of the 50 or more kinds of grasshoppers found in the state, only three will cause most of the damage next year. In the northern part the two species most abundant are the small, red legged kind and the Mexican grasshoppers. In other areas the large yellow differential grasshopper is dominant.

In many of the western states the number of grasshopper eggs found now is greater than was the case last year.

Kroger Grocery and Baking.

Investors' Guide: Please send me a report on Kroger. Do they pay dividends? If so, for how long?—C. R. C.

Answer: The Kroger Grocery and Baking company ranks third among grocery and meat market chains in sales and second in number of stores operated. Operations extending to some 1,500 cities in 19 states are concentrated in the industrial middle western area north of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi. About one-fourth of the company's 4,137 stores are in Ohio, 17 per cent are in Michigan, 14 per cent in Illinois, 10 per cent in Missouri, and 8 per cent in Indiana.

Rapid expansion through purchase of other chains and opening of new units increased the number of stores from 1,413 in 1922 to 5,575 in 1929—more than 1,500 were added in 1928 alone. Since 1930 the company's policy has been to close or sell unprofitable or duplicating units and combine smaller stores into larger, complete markets.

Sales amounted to $118,122,000 and net income was $1,398,000, or 77 cents per common share in the 24 weeks ended June 24, compared with $107,477,000 sales and net of $985,000, or 54 cents in the corresponding 1936 period. The gain was made in the face of a minor repetition of 1936 flood losses and increased expenses because of higher wages, shorter hours, and social security taxes. The flood cost was equal to 21 cents and added expenses to 79 cents a share in the 1937 period.

The last half of this year is not expected to measure up to the good second half of 1936, however, because of lower price levels and only small sales gains. Sales amounted to $210,657,000 in the 44 weeks ended Nov. 6, compared with $199,582,000 in the corresponding 1936 period. The record of recent years follows:

	Sales.	Net income.	Inc. per com. sh.
1935	229,908,000	3,636,000	1.99
1934	221,175,000	4,198,000	2.29
1933	205,692,000	4,515,000	2.46
1932	213,160,000	2,682,000	1.48

The 1,821,989 shares of no par common stock make up sole capitalization except for $104,100 of preferred stock. Common dividends have been paid in varying amounts in each year since 1903. A rate of 40 cents quarterly has been maintained since late 1934.

The company's financial position is strong, its trade position is secure, and a good record of earnings has been made.

The stock deserves a fairly good rating.

Farm Produce Now Big Part of U.S. Exports

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Agricultural exports now constitute a large part of American sales abroad, according to the latest figures released by the department of commerce. The export figures, however, do not reflect the full extent of the gain resulting from the bumper crops harvested in the United States this year. The big imports of agricultural products which the United States was getting early this year now have been shut off.

The unfavorable trade balance of the United States in the first nine months of this year was accounted for to a large degree by imports of foreign farm products. The small carryover of grain supplies from the short 1936 crops made it necessary for this country to depend on foreign supplies to an unprecedented degree.

U. S. Now Exporting Corn.

The United States was importing large quantities of corn from South America and South Africa until late in September. The bumper corn crop has reversed that trend, and the United States now is exporting corn to Canada and other countries.

The chief item in the export expansion, however, is wheat, which this country is exporting in quantity for the first time in several years. Not since before the farm board experiment in raising domestic wheat prices, which began in 1929, has this country been an important supplier of wheat in the world market.

Now, after a cycle of years of unprecedented surpluses followed by a series of disastrously poor harvests, this country is again a factor in the export market. Sales since last July 1, when the current crop season officially started, have exceeded 25 million bushels, not a big export movement, but large by comparison with the derth of exports in recent years.

Export Outlook Boosts Prices.

The improved export outlook, more than any other influence, accounted for the upturn in wheat prices in the Chicago market last week. Futures advanced 1 to 4¾ cents a bushel.

The range of prices on wheat and other grain futures last week follows:

ColdWeather Brings Sharp Upturn in Chicago Trade

Cold weather last week brought a sharp upturn in Chicago's retail and wholesale trade, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. Much of the earlier lag in buying of Christmas and winter goods was taken up. Some of the larger stores began to add extra help for the holiday rush.

Everyday Economics

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

Strip Mining.

Strip mining is a method of coal mining that is employed extensively in northern Illinois, Indiana, and in some other parts of the country. It derives its name from the manner in which the top soil is stripped off the surface to permit excavation of coal.

This method of getting coal out of the ground is used when the coal vein is close to the surface of the earth. Under such conditions it is more economical than to drive a shaft into the ground and tunnel for coal as is done in most mining operations.

Technological improvements in the equipment used in strip mining have given the industry new life in recent years. Highly mechanized operations permit the removal of the top soil at relatively small cost after which the coal is excavated and loaded into surface cars or trucks for removal to the washing and preparation plant.

The principal equipment used is an excavating machine for stripping the soil off the coal and a smaller excavator for loading the coal. The cost of the equipment is relatively high but labor costs are small in proportion.

With the most modern equipment it is profitable to go down 50 feet for a layer of coal five feet in depth. More top soil may be economically removed when a richer vein is tapped.

U. S. Treasury Announces Details of New Financing

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—[Special.]—The $450,000,000 of securities which the treasury will offer for subscription tomorrow will consist of about $250,000,000 of eight year 2½ per cent treasury bonds due 1945 and approximately $200,000,000 of five year 1¾ per cent treasury notes, series C, due 1942, Secretary Morgenthau announced today.

Adoption by the treasury of the eight year bond is regarded as somewhat novel, since the only recent previous employment of bonds of this short period was in August, 1933, when an eight year bond of similar description was issued on a 3¼ per cent basis.

The amount of the new securities may actually reach an amount of nearly $730,000,000, according to Secretary Morgenthau, because of the exchange feature permitting holders of the $276,679,600 of 2⅝ per cent notes coming due Feb. 1 to exchange their holdings for either of the new securities.

The secretary explained that an additional amount of the securities will be issued above the $450,000,000 cash offering to meet the demand under the exchange provision. If all of the note holders exchanged, which is inconceivable since not more than 90 or 95 per cent of security holders usually avail themselves of such exchange, the total of the new securities would be about $727,000,000.

No "new money" is involved in the financing, since the proceeds of the $450,000,000 issue will, in effect, be used to pay off an equal amount of bills coming due immediately after Dec. 15. At the same time about $450,000,000 of revenue will be coming into the treasury through quarterly income tax payments.

The new securities will be dated Dec. 15 and sold through the federal reserve banks and the treasury under the customary bidding rules. Those Feb. 1 noteholders who do not exchange will be paid in cash on the maturity date, and those who exchange will do so par for par, with an adjustment of accrued interest as of Dec. 15.

Neither the 2½ per cent treasury bonds nor the 1¾ per cent treasury notes will be subject to call for redemption prior to the maturity date. Both notes and bonds will be subject to the usual tax exemption of federal securities.

ABBOTT ISSUE OF PREFERRED OFFERED TODAY

A banking group headed by A. G. Becker & Co., Inc., will offer today at $100 a share a new issue of 20,000 shares of Abbott Laboratories 4½ per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock of $100 par value. The stock will be convertible at any time into common stock without par value at the rate of two common shares for each preferred share.

Proceeds from the sale will reimburse the company for working capital expended for a new research building at North Chicago to reduce current borrowings and to aid working capital. The outstanding capitalization of the company, which has no funded debt, will consist then of this issue and 640,000 common shares.

The net income of the company, which manufactures pharmaceutical products, for the nine months ended on Sept. 30 was $1,327,579.

STEEL SHARES GIVE MARKET AN IRON TONIC

Stocks Stronger at End of Week.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 5.—[Special.]—Under the leadership of the steel shares, the stock market advanced for the second consecutive week. Gains for the most part were modest, ranging from fractions to a little more than 3 points in the leaders.

Activity tended to slow down on the increase, with the trading volume for the six days totaling 6,054,910 shares, against 6,474,340 in the preceding week. On Wednesday brokers twiddled their thumbs as sales dropped to 695,510 shares, the lowest for a full session since Oct. 4.

Stocks started off the week in bad fashion as profit taking came into the list in the wake of the spirited advance of Friday and Saturday in the preceding week. On Tuesday changes in the final table were predominantly plus, but on Wednesday the list was uncertain and finished lower.

Market Turns Stronger.

Thursday the market turned strong in late trading and the rally carried through Friday. Profit taking came into the list in Saturday's short session but the undertone was steady throughout. Short covering by traders unwilling to maintain their position over the week-end enabled the market to close slightly higher.

Using the Dow Jones averages as a yardstick the advance in 30 representative industrials for the week amounted to 4.08 points; 20 rails ne .91, and the utility average came down .55.

Steel shares paced the advance. United States Steel climbed 2⅞ points on the greatest volume in the list. Bethlehem rose more than 3 points. Farm implement shares followed next in line, trailed by the coppers, chemicals, electrical equipments, and rail equipments.

Motor Shares Weak.

Motor shares did not take part in the upturn. The failure of the automobile shares was attributed to the unfavorable price and production trend. Chrysler and General Motors each receded small fractions on the week.

Railroad shares were given a better tone throughout the week on the hearings before the interstate commerce commission on the carriers petition for higher freight rates. Traders seemed to take it for granted that the necessary relief would be forthcoming soon—a hike of at least 10 per cent is hoped for.

Westinghouse Group Plans Air Conditioning Sales

Plans for the 1938 sales season of the air conditioning division of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company will be outlined at a meeting of distributors, engineers, and salesmen at the Sherman hotel today and Tuesday. S. F. Myers, sales manager for the division, announced yesterday. Backed by a large advertising campaign the company will seek to increase sales of air conditioning systems in the Chicago district.

For the right men we will finance the business, which is outstanding in electrical unit operations and backed by abundant capital.
The first year your earnings should not be under $2,500, and likely closer to $3,000. The 2d and 3d years much larger. Come to 4832 Lincoln-avenue, Room 210, on Dec. 6, Monday, at 10:30 a. m. sharp. If we come to an agreement, I will have you established in this business before the end of this week. It is permanent and expanding rapidly.

If you are a serious minded young man interested in your future and if you are 21 to 35 years of age, have a good appearance, the Commonwealth Edison Company will consider you for a position in the Appliance Sales Department. If you meet with the above qualifications and the right attitude, no previous experience is unnecessary. The electrical business is a growing business and men in it receive good percentage, plus bonus. Many in addition a drawing account is available for those who qualify. Apply Monday, Room 1230, 140 South Dearborn-street, 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. only.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh Land in U. S. on Unheralded Visit—Chicago Gripped by New Cold Wave

LINDBERGHS DINING WITH SHIP CAPTAIN ON VOYAGE FROM ENGLAND—A steward of the liner President Harding (left) serving Col. Lindbergh, Mrs. Lindbergh, and Capt. James E. Roberts (right). The Lindberghs were unaware that their picture was being taken. They boarded the ship at Southampton under the name Mr. and Mrs. Gregory and sat at the captain's table throughout the trip, the flyer wearing a tuxedo and black tie.

LINDBERGHS ARRIVING ON SURPRISE VISIT TO UNITED STATES—The famous flying couple showed their backs to photographers as they scurried down the third class gangplank of the President Harding yesterday at New York on an unheralded visit to the United States. Col. Lindbergh is at left with Mrs. Lindbergh in front of him. They left their two sons behind in England. They are expected to spend the holidays in this country.

TRUCK THROWS 120-FOOT BRIDGE FOR A TOTAL LOSS—Landis Thompson, Sedalia, Ind., drove his one and one-half ton truck into an end support post on this bridge near Frankfort, Ind., early Saturday. The post snapped and the steel work fell into the river. Thompson was only bruised and the truck was slightly damaged. Officials estimate that a new bridge will cost the Indiana highway department $20,000.

COLD SNAP BRINGS OUT SLEDS AND SKATES—Robert Henry, 555 Barry avenue, skates as he pushes Martha Walker, 625 Melrose avenue, on her sled, at the foot of Addison street. They were one group among thousands yesterday who enjoyed the cold weather sports. The forecast for today is continued cold.

A survey by the National Highway Users' conference estimates taxes, tolls and fees which would be paid by an Illinois truck not in regular interstate service making a single round trip from Chicago to another state. The average was found to be $223.36, based on use of an eight ton tractor and semi-trailer. The distance traveled inside the state to which the truck is bound is arbitrarily computed at 150 miles in each direction (300 miles round trip), except in the District of Columbia, Rhode Island, and Delaware. These high taxes are of importance to consumers because high transport costs are reflected in higher sales prices.
